OCT 29 1908
D. of D.

To the Board of World's Fair Managers of Indiana:

When, at your hands, I took up the work of Executive Commissioner, I did it without experience of having been connected with former expositions. I determined at the start that if industry, zeal, and work would accomplish the result on my part, that neither of these qualities should be lacking. I fully appreciated the honor of the position, as well as its great responsibilities.

As time went by, my desire for success—that Indiana should occupy the place at this Exposition she was so eminently qualified and entitled to occupy—the nearer the time approached that this was to be made to appear in a material, educational, and artistic way, the greater grew my responsibility and anxiety that we should succeed.

Personal apologies I do not wish to make, except that now I see how many things might have been better done; and if mistakes have been made on my part, they are only such as fall to the lot of mortal and might have fallen on any other person whom you honored with the position I hold.

At the outset of my work the most difficult experience I had to encounter was to get our people to take steps toward having our State properly represented at the Exposition. My experience, though, has been the experience of many executive commissioners or officers in charge of the interests of their several States. This is not said to fault-find. The fact is recited only. Our people having had but one great exposition—the Centennial, education, as to the advantages growing out of expositions, is as necessary as education is upon any other subject.

I have the following report to submit of exhibits made by the State and the citizens of our State:

THE STATE BUILDING.

The Board of Managers at the outset of their work decided that the State Building should be a headquarters for the use, comfort, and convenience of Indiana people, their friends and visitors. They also decided that in its construction it should be made, as far as practicable, a display of Indiana building material. That the building is admirably suited for the uses for which it was built, can not be truthfully controverted by any one. The thousands of people who visit it daily, rest in its cool, large, and inviting rooms, and on its broad verandas, establishes this fact. For the uses it was intended there is not a State Building on the grounds that receives as much commendation as the Indiana Building. Its construction carries out as an exhibit the manufacturing industries of our State in encaustic tile, pressed brick, plate glass, oolitic limestone, and hardwoods in a most artistic manner. The building is all that could be desired, and reflects credit upon the architect and the Board of Managers.

WHERE INDIANA STATE EXHIBITS MAY BE FOUND.

ART DEPARTMENT.

In the Art Hall, Indiana artists have three paintings, two by Gruelle and one by Steele.

While the number is small, yet when the very highest standard of the excellence of paintings was the only one by which paintings were admitted to go upon the walls of the Art Gallery at the Exposition, our State is to be congratulated upon the fact that in this department we are represented in the most creditable manner; and the work of these artists takes place and rank with the best artists of the world. A valuable loan collection could have been made from our State, but none was undertaken.

In the AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT we have the following:

60	varieties of Wheat	in	360	glass jars from quart to two gallon.
10	" " Corn		360	" " " " " " " "
12	" " Oats		360	" " " " " " " "
2	" " Rye		40	" " " " " " one "
2	" " Barley		40	" " " " " " " "
2	" " Buckwheat		40	" " " " " " " "
1	" " Timothy		10 quarts and 10 pints.
5	" " Clover Seed		40 glass jars, pints and quarts.
1	" " Red Top		20	" " " " " " "
1	" " Broom Corn		20	" " " " " " "
1	" " Sugar Cane		20	" " " " " " "
1	" " Hemp		20	" " " " " " "
1	" " Millet		20	" " " " " " "
10	" " Orchard Grass		20	" " " " " " "
1	" " Flax Seed		10	" " " " " " "
5	" " Beans		10	" " " " " " "
5	" " Peas		10	" " " " " " "
1	" " Peanuts		20	" " " " " " "

In addition to this exhibit in agriculture, we will show about eighty varieties in wheat in stalk by samples collected last year. We will show about thirty varieties of corn in stalk, five varieties of barley, twenty-five varieties of oats, three varieties of rye, three varieties of straw, forty-five varieties of grasses. We also have a corn pyramid, twenty-five feet high, of corn in the ear, consisting of thirty varieties.

There are about one hundred samples of small grains in glass jars that go with the cereals in stalk. The jars are labeled with printed labels properly filled out, giving the following information:

Group, class, number, kind of exhibit, exhibitor's name and address, date of planting, quantity of seed per acre, date of harvesting, yield per acre, price nearest market, average temperature, average rainfall, and average snowfall. All this information is on each label and pasted upon each variety.

In the AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT, as above stated in gross, the following contributors are represented:

In the Agricultural Exhibit will be found a large and handsome map of our State, giving the general physical surface of the State, showing altitudes, drainage, counties, county seats, and general statistics of live stock and agricultural products. This map was prepared by L. H. Gibson of Indianapolis. We also have maps showing atmospheric conditions—the precipitation, average temperature and rainfall within our State for a period of twenty-two years. These maps were furnished free of charge by Chief Wappenhaus of the Weather Bureau at Indianapolis.

GEOLOGICAL EXHIBIT.

The exhibition of geological specimens in the Indiana department, in the west gallery of the Anthropological Building, is from the collections of Prof. Wm. W. Borden of Borden, and Prof. G. K. Greene of New Albany, Ind. These exhibits are worthy the attention of the student and advanced collectors, as they embrace the characteristic specimens of the corals found at the Falls of the Ohio and vicinity; also embraces many species of brachiopods and gastropods from Clark and Floyd counties, Indiana. These collections are especially rich in crinoids from the Devonian rocks at Charlestown, Clark County, and from the Keokuk group of rocks in Washington County. Especial pains have been taken to properly identify these specimens, that all those who may have the pleasure to see them may profit by the display.

NOTE.—The writers of this State exhibit over six hundred volumes of Indiana books, and over four hundred newspapers and periodicals.

The educational exhibit has been in charge of the Educational Committee, with Prof. W. N. Hailmann, of LaPorte, Ind., as agent.

The exhibit of the Indiana Institution for the Deaf is a comprehensive one, fully outlining in every way the work in intellectual and industrial departments. It consists of a plate-glass case made by the boys in the institution, surmounted by a frame-work supporting photographic views of the institution, exteriors and interiors, and sketches in oil, pastel, and crayon as made by the girls in the Art Department. The case itself contains specimens of fancy sewing, lace-work, knitting; specimens of carved wood and wall-paper designing; specimens of all kinds of work in wood turning and joinery; all kinds of books and papers, fully describing the work of the institution in its every department. The New York Deaf Mutes Journal says that to Indiana belongs the award of honor for general excellence and variety of its Institution Exhibit. The institution was founded as a private school in 1843, by William Willard; was incorporated as a State institution in 1844, Henry Ward Beecher being one of the incorporating trustees. Richard O. Johnson is at the present time superintendent, and makes the exhibit on behalf of the institution.

Specimens of "interior finish woods," of varying size, representing one hundred species. These specimens of highest finish.

Thirty-four colored maps, showing the distribution by counties of the most important species from a commercial standpoint. (Each 10 x 14.)

Herbarium specimens, showing leaf, flower, and fruit of all species included in the exhibit. Seventy sheets, each 12 x 18 inches.

With the consent of the Board, in October, 1892, I arranged with Prof. Stanley Coulter of Purdue University to take charge of the preparation of the commercial woods of our State. He was authorized to collect specimens in addition to those collected by me. Also to collect veneers in a finished state.

The Committee on Woman's Work, Mrs. May Wright Sewall, has had charge of this exhibit, Miss Mary A. Williamson having been placed in charge of the active management of the work.

The Board of Managers in laying out their work decided to make exhibits upon the same lines as the Columbian Exposition. This includes Education, Agriculture, Wool, Honey, Commercial Woods, Mines and Mining, Clays and Clay Products, Woman's Work, Horticulture, and aid in making a Live Stock exhibit. The work as thus mapped out comprised making nine exhibits and aiding the live stock exhibition. To make these exhibits, States like ours contributed from $150,000 to $300,000. For these purposes our Board had only $125,000. The $25,000 taking the State that had the lowest amount appropriated as a basis between that and our appropriation, is the money that our Board needed more than any other sum asked for. This $25,000, almost begged for from the Legislature, was what was needed to install Indiana's exhibits at the Exposition. The money was not appropriated, and the Board was compelled to do the best it could with the money it had. It is a matter of pride with me, and I trust will be to our Board, that after two months' experience in charge of Indiana's interests at the World's Fair, to be able to say that it is the judgment of expert judges in mines and mining, in agriculture, in education, that Indiana, while represented in a plain way, has made a showing that is in every way creditable to the State, and their wonder is that the Board accomplished as much as it has with the limited means at its disposal.

Ohio expended $16,000 on her mines and mining display.

Missouri expended $14,000 on her mines and mining display.

Wisconsin expended $11,000 on her mines and mining display.

Michigan expended $22,000 on her mines and mining display.

Indiana expended $2,500 on her mines and mining display.

This was all we had with which to make this display. This illustration is applicable to every department of the work of the Board.

The duties of my position have demanded my entire time and attention, which have been given unstinted, to the neglect of my law and insurance business.

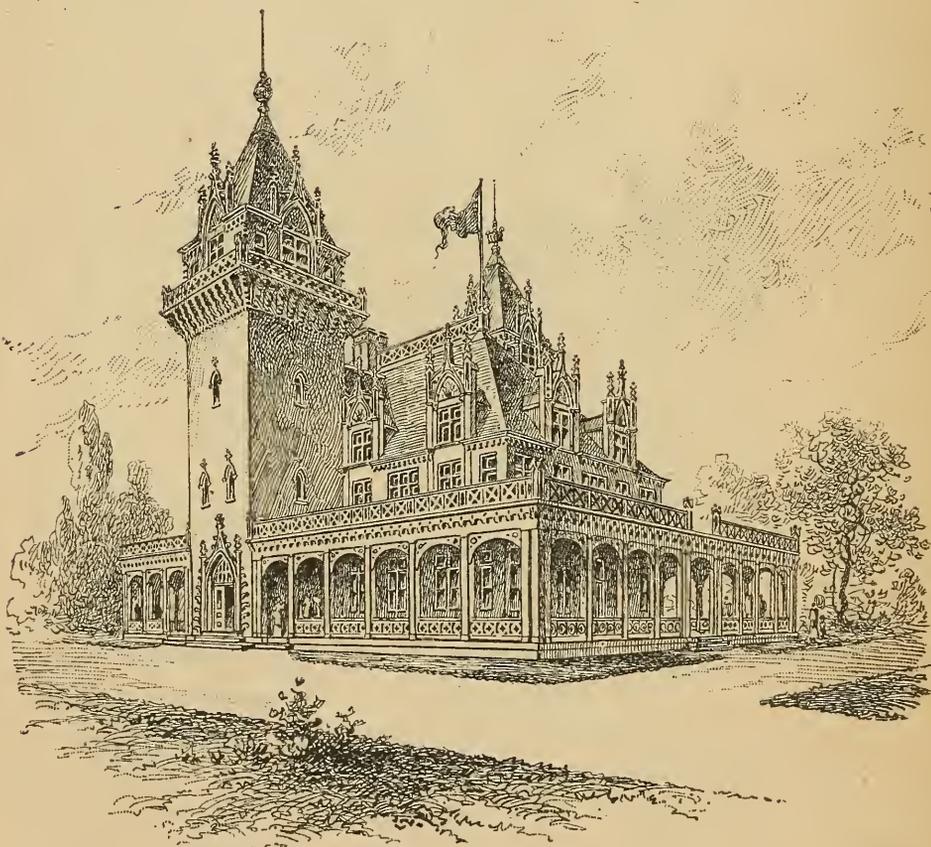

To the Board I return my thanks for their kindly words and appreciation of my work. To President Studebaker I return my most sincere acknowledgments for his aid, counsel, good judgment, and help in the work. I have at all times found him ready, earnest, and true to the duties of his position; giving his time without compensation to the work, at a sacrifice to his own personal interests.

Respectfully submitted,

B. F. HAVENS,
Executive Commissioner.
