do Cul Theire cutrected from mette (Here do Sul. Theine, extracted from matte (Ilex	ė. paraguayensis) class 546, group	87 This alcaloide is exhibited together with matte to show that the latter is a true substitute for Chinese tea. Matte is prepared from the leaves and new branches of Ilex Paraguay-ensis, a tree which abounds in the south of Brazil, in the States of Paraná, Santa Catharina and Rio Grande do Sul. It is prepared in two ways: from the leaves for tea (taken in cups) and from the leaves and new branches, reduced to a powder more or less fine, to be taken with the pump in cuias. Matte is an excellent drink, agreeable to the taste, and very healthy for its diuretic, tonic, aperitive and temperant properties. It can be taken with or without sugar, milk, anise seed, cinnamon, etc. It is drank all over the south of Brazil, and is exported in large quantities for Uruguay, Argentine Republic, Chile, etc. It is considered better than tea and coffee by the greatest part of those who become accustomed to it.
