CHICAGO "LOOP"

The following pages 465 to 546 cover the territory between Chicago River and Roosevelt Road., and the Chicago River and Lake Michigan.

(Note)

The name of the buildings, all entrances, and old and new numbers are shown for each building in the "LOOP". There is at least one new number assigned to each twenty foot of frontage and more numbers where there were more entrances at the time the ordinance went into effect.

Numbers for south side of Roosevelt Road are shown on sheets No. 407, 408, and 409.

There are no new or old numbers on the east side of S. Michigan Ave. between East Randolph St. and East Roosevelt Road. (Grant Park).

CHICAGO STREET NUMBERING SYSTEM

An ordinance passed by the City Council June 22, 1908, amended June 21, 1909, and taking effect September 1, 1909 established the street numbering system now used in Chicago. The ordinance made Madison street , from the lake to the city limits, the baseline for numbering north and south streets. For east and west streets the baseline was State street or an imaginary line extended from State Street's northern terminus through Lincoln Park and the lake. Numbers began with 1 at State street and went east and west from there, 800 numbers to the mile. In a like manner numbers on north and south streets were figured from Madison street. One number was assigned to every twenty feet of frontage on a street. Evenrnumbers were on the north side of east and west streets and on the west side of north and south streets.

The 1909 address change did not affect downtown Chicago, between the river and Roosevelt Road, the river and Lake Michigan. The ordinance was amended June 20, 1910 to include the downtown area. The new addresses for the "loop" went into use on April 1,1911.

North-south streets south of Roosevelt Road (Twelfth street) and east of the Chicago river were not affected by this address change. An ordinance passed by the City Council on December 1, 1879 had renumbered the streets in this area. The change was made to bring the numbers into accord with the numbering system already used in Hyde Park and the Town of Lake. The system adopted in 1879 began the numbering of north-south streets south from Roosevelt Road (Twelfth Street) with 1200. North-south streets that began west of the river, but crossed to the east along their route used the new numbers only after crossing the river. This system was in use by June of 1880.

When Chicago streets were renumbered in 1909 the new system was altered slightly to accommodate this earlier renumbering. This adjustment was responsible for the one break with the 800 numbers to a mile rule. Between Madison street and Roosevelt Road (Twelfth Street) 1,200 numbers were used in one mile. Between Roosevelt (Twelfth) and Cermak Road (Twenty-second Street) 1000 numbers were used in one mile, and from Cermak (Twenty-second) to Thirty-first street 900 numbers were used in one mile.

Prior to the 1909 street renumbering Chicago street numbers were chaotic. There were several separate and distinct numbering systems. The baseline for street numbers varied from street to street. The location of a number on one street thus did not correspond to the location of the same number on another street running in the same direction. Critics often complained that the city's street numbers were without system.
