Civer, Illinois

Civer was located in Fulton County, Illinois. Beginning as a settlement village six miles west of Canton. The earliest record of Civer was a note from 1835 about Charles H. Turner who was engaged in farming until 1869. Mr. Floyd F. Putman was a native son of Illinois, born in Civer, Fulton County on October 8, 1880.

David W. Pittman engaged in the grain business at Civer Station in 1885 for over one year.

The Civer Rail Station was on the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railway, an off-shoot from the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad from the point of connection at the Village of Bryant, Illinois, in a northwesterly direction to Civer Station.

A story in the Bloomington Weekly Leader on Thursday, December 14, 1893 mentions two run-away girls walking from the Lewistown rail station north-northwest to the rail station in Civer (about 18 miles).
