This is one of the romantic spots in Illinois. It is situated at the bluff, one mile south-east of Prairie du Pont village. It derives its name from a spring that gushes out of a perpendicular rock of the bluff, with a fall of sixty or seventy feet. The bluff at this point is a solid wall of limestone, about one hundred and thirty feet in height. The spring flows from an orifice situated midway between the top of the bluff and the rocky bottom beneath. Many years ago a grist mill was constructed at this point, and the water utilized for a power, but no trace of it remains at this time to be seen. Several years ago a hotel was built near the spring, and the place was made a summer resort by the people of East St. Louis and other towns. The hotel is yet standing, and is now converted into a saloon. There are three stone quarries in full blast not far from the spring, and owned by the following companies :- Otto & Parent, William Richards, and Henry Deering. They employ in all about seventy-five men, and load on an average twenty cars per day. A branch of the Coulogue railway runs to the quarries. A stone-crusher dump is in process of erection here by the Vandalia railroad company. We were informed by the foreman that it would take about 200,000 feet of lumber to construct it, and will cost, including machinery, upwards of $50,000. When in running order it will employ about fifty hands, and will have the capacity to crush fifty car-loads of stone per day. Although there is no town here-nothing but boarding houses for the men-yet it presents the appearance of life and business.

PRECINCT AND CITY OF EAST ST. LOUIS.

ST ST LOUIS, precinct, formerly called Illinoistown, occupies the extreme north-western corner of St. Clair county, and was organized as a township the 6th day of June, 1820, the boundaries being as follows: Beginning at the bluff on the Madison county line; thence west on said line to the Mississippi river: thence with the Mississippi to the Cahokia line on the same; thence with said line eastward to the bluff; thence along the bluff northward to the place of beginning. By order of the county commissioners' court, September 14th, 1821, Illinoistown and Cahokia were made one election precinct, with the voting place at Augustus Pensonean's residence in Cahokia. In 1851, Illinoistown became a separate voting precinct, and French Village was named as the place of holding the election. Again, in 1857, it was divided into two separate parts, respectively called Illinoistown and French Village precincts, the division line running due west from south-west corner of section 15, in township No. 2, north range, No. 9 west, to the north-west corner of section 21, same township, thence south on the west line of section 21, to the south west corner thereof, thence west on the section line to the Mississippi through Cahokia precinct, from which a strip of about one-half a mile in breadth is taken from the northern part and annexed to Illinoistown precinct. The foregoing are the boundaries that the precinct embraces at this time. In 1866, the precinct appears under the name of East St. Louis, and that of Illinoistown dropped. This change of name is not made a matter of record, and the presumption is that by common consent, or usage, it assumed the name of its leading town, East St. Louis, which by a vote of the people of the corporation in 1861, gave it its present title At the time of its organization, a strip of heavy timber about half a mile wide, extended south from the present town of Brooklyn to the village of Cahokia. What is now the city of East St. Louis was mainly covered with heavy timbers of oak, walnut, elm, etc., and was a favorite stamping ground for the hunter and the trapper.

The first blow struck toward civilization in this vast solitude, was in the year 1770, by one Richard McCarty, familiary known in those days as English McCarty. He obtained an improvement right or title, to four hundred acres of land, extending on both sides of Cahokia creek, and now included within the present limits of East St. Louis. Here he erected a grist mill on the bank of the creek, and for a time it did quite a flourishing business, but on account of the banks being so easily washed away, a permanent dam could not be constructed. He left the country for Canada in 1787, where he died, leaving heirs to this property. The United States Commissioners appointed by Congress in 1805, to pass upon claims to ancient titles in Cahokia and other French villages, confirmed this tract to the heirs of McCarty. No vestige of the old mill site exists at this time. Another mill was constructed in 1805, by Nicholas Jarrot on the creek not far from where McCarty's mill was located. It has long since disappeared As late as 1855, the machinery was utilized in a mill at Brooklyn by Morris & Son.

The oldest house, now standing in the precinct, was built by Nicholas Boismenue in 1817, and is situated about one mile south of the city limits, on the road leading from what was formerly called Papstown, to the village of Cahokia. It is built after the old French style, with upright hewed walnut logs, and weatherboarded, with porch extending around the entire building. It is occupied by Joseph Boismenue, and is the oldest house in St. Clair county, outside the village of Cahokia and Prairie du Pont.

The founding of the present city of East St. Louis, is due to the foresight of the pioneer, Capt. James Piggott. He was an officer under General Clark, who had command of the Virginia militia stationed on the frontier. Capt. Piggott was one of those who remained after the treaty was made in 1783, and cast his lot with the hardy pioneers of the west. At this time St. Louis was but a small trading port, and Cahokia the metropolis.

No doubt Capt. Piggott's keen business perceptions led him to believe, from the natural surroundings, and other advantages, that in future time the little village of St. Louis would some day take the lead among the few towns then settled along the Mississippi. Accordingly he located a militia claim of a hundred acres on the east side of the river opposite the village of St. Louis, and by his own exertions succeeded in constructing a bridge across Cahokia creek, near the road leading to that village. This was in 1795. In 1797, he had erected two small log cabius near the shore, where he had established a rude ferry system across the river, by the consent of the Spanish Commandant at St. Louis. Thus the first ferry was established, out of which grew one of the wealthiest monopolies of the west. Capt. Piggott died in 1799, scarcely dreaming of the magnitude his enterprise in after years would assume.

The first house of any pretensions built on the present site of East St. Louis, was erected by Etienne Pensoneau, in the year 1810. It was a two-story brick building, and situated on what is now the corner of Main and Menard streets, in the first ward. It was constructed for a dwelling, but was afterwards utilized for a hotel, to afford accommodations to the immigrants, who were then rapidly pushing to the frontier. It has long since passed away with the things that were.

The oldest house now standing within the city limits is situated in the First ward, near the corner of Second and Market streets, and was built about 1818, by the "Old Man" Rail, for a dwelling, and is still used as such. Its structure is of the primitive style, with hewed logs placed upright a few inches apart, and filled between with cement or mortar. The outside is weather-boarded for the better protection from the winter blasts.

The following, relating to the first laid-out town in East St. Louis, we gleau from Reavis' history of "The Future Great City:"

"In 1815, Etienne Pinconeau (now spelled Pensoneau), ventured to lay out a town on his adjoining land, with his brick tavern on the road to the ferry, thence occupied by one Simon Vanorsdal, as a nucleus. He called it 'Jacksonville.' The plat of the town canuot be found; but there is a deed of record for a lot in it. It bears the date 17th of March, 1815. Etienne Pinconeau and Elizabeth, his wife, by it convey to Moses Scott, merchant of St. Louis, in the Missouri territory, for $150, 'all that certain tract, parcel, or lot of land, being, lying, and situated in the said county of St. Clair, at a place, or new town called Jacksonville, containing in depth one hundred feet, and in breadth sixty feet, joining northwardly to Carroll street, facing the public square, and southwardly to Coffee street.'

"Later conveyances by McKnight & Brady, merchants and land operators at that time in St. Louis, referring to this lot of Moses Scott, locate it as lot 5, in block 8, of the town of Illinois, at the south east corner of Market and Main streets. Scott at once erected a store upon the lot, and at that corner conducted the first mercantile establishment in this city. This was the only sale made of lots in this 'Jacksonville.' On the 20th of January, 1816, Pinconeau sold the entire tract of land he had on Cahokia creek (including Jacksonville), extending in breadth from near Railroad street to Piggott street, to McKnight & Brady.

"The immediate result was the consummation, by McKnight & Brady, of Pinconeau's project of a new town. They platted the 'Town of Illinois' upon the site of Pinconeau's Jacksonville. They re-located the public square, widened the streets and enlarged the lots, and put the plat on record. They advertised and held a great sale of lots in the town of Illinois. The sale took place at the auction-room of Thomas T. Reddick, in St. Louis, November 3d, 1817. Thus was made the first record evidence of a town-plat in East St. Louis."

The first railroad constructed in the state was built from Illinoistown to the bluff, a distance of about six miles. It was constructed in 1836, under the personal supervision and efforts of Governor Reynolds, Vital Jarrot and a few others. It was expressly built for the purpose of transporting coal from where it cropped out at the bluff (now Pittsburg) to the St. Louis market. This was an enterprise of no small dimensions at that day. They were obliged to bridge over two thousand feet across Big Lake, which was performed by driving down piles spliced together to the length of eighty feet, upon which the track rested. At times they employed one hundred hands, and so vigorously was the undertaking prosecuted that it was completed in one year. Thomas Winstanley was the first engineer and conductor of the road; that is, he drove the mules that hauled the cars over the route. It proved a non-paying investment, and in 1841 they sold out the concern to the St. Clair Railroad Company.

Captain Trendley built the first school-house in 1840, and the cost was $240. It was a small frame building, 14x16, and was situated on the public square. William Singleton established the first church in 1845. It was of the Methodist denomination, and located on Brundy street, between Second and Third. It is yet standing, and is owned by the colored Baptists. The first blacksmith shop was built by Francis Delorem in 1826, and was situated on what is now known as the Rock road. It was a very meagre and unpretentious affair, but answered the wants of the people at that time.

BLOODY ISLAND.

This island was made in about 1800. Its first appearance was a small sand-bar, below Bissel's Point, near the Illinois shore. At this angle in the course of the Mississippi, the force of the current gradually wore into the mainland, and left a corresponding deposit upon the bar extending southward. In course of time this bar developed into a considerable island, with half the river flowing between it and the Illinois shore. The first to inhabit it was a man by the name of Duncan, who built a small log house within its solitude, and lived there for some time afterwards. The exact date of his location is not known. The next to settle here was a Mr. Lindsey, in 1842, who built two or three little shanties, and kept a small dairy and garden. He named his place "Hoboken Garden." The island now constitutes the Third ward of the city. The early history of the island is stained with human blood; hence the name, Bloody Island. For several years it was not definitely established to which shore the island belonged. It was therefore considered neutral ground; and was the favorite resort for settling differences by mortal combat, according to the then prevailing code of honor. The first duel fought here was in 1817, between Col. Thomas H. Benton and Judge Charles Lucas. Col. Benton was the challenging party. Their differences grew out of harsh invectives employed by them in the trial of a case in which they were opposing attorneys. This challenge Judge Lucas declined, on the plea that he would not respond in deadly combat for words uttered in a professional capacity. They, however, met afterwards, in the same year, when the duel was fought, and Lucas was the unfortunate victim.

In 1823, another duel occurred, between Thomas C. Rector and Joshua Barton, United States District Attorney. The trouble grew out of a newspaper attack made by Barton against Gen. Wm. Rector, brother of Thomas C. Rector. They met June 30th, in the above-named year, when Barton fell and died shortly afterward. The most disastrous meeting was between Maj. Thomas Biddle and Hon. Spencer Pettis, both of St. Louis, and occurred the 27th of Aug., 1830. The trouble was engendered in the heated political canvass of that year. Maj. Biddle was the challenged party, and having the choice of distance, named five paces, on account of his being shortsighted. At the giving of the word, they wheeled and fired simultaneously. They both fell mortally wounded. Capt. Trendley was an eve-witness to this sad affair, and helped to convey the body of Pettis to St. Charles county, Mo., where it was buried. The name, Bloody Island, having many unpleasant recollections connected with its memory, has long since been dropped, and is now simply known as "The Island."

THE FLOODS.

No place in the United States has had more to contend with to prevent its growth and prosperity than the city of East St. Louis. Nothing but the natural advantages of being situated opposite the great city of St. Louis, and the indomitable perseverance of its inhabitants, have kept it from perishing from the earth long ago. What with numerous floods and the encroachment of the river upon the banks, it has nearly yielded up its existence several times to the fates that be. The first flood that did damage to the little hamlet of Illinoistown occurred in 1826. The town was inundated to the depth of several feet, and the malarial fevers that followed nearly depopulated the village. It, however, struggled for existence, and up to 1844 had gradually increased to a town of considerable thrift and importance, when the most vital stroke it ever received almost blotted it from existence. The flood which occurred in June of that year inundated the American Bottoms so that large steamers plied from bluff to bluff. But few of the houses of Illinoistown were to be seen above the water, while no dry land was observable for miles toward the eastern bluff, except a few mounds and high knolls to the east and south of the village. So complete was the destruction that the town never recoverd from it until the general centralizing of the railroads at this point about fifteen years ago. It is said at the time of this flood that the steamer, called " Little Bee," plied between the city of St. Louis and the coal mines on the bluffs at Pittsburg, the captain of which, if living at this time, would be presented with a medal from the "Humane Society," for being the most tender-hearted man on the continent. When the rush of waters came, a sow and her brood took refuge on the top of a mound, situated not far from the farm now owned by Abraham Jones, south-east of the city. The captain of the Little Bee stopped his steamer at this point every day, and gave the refugees a bountiful supply of food for their wants. Thus were the lives of the porkers preserved until the flood receded. Mr Abraham Jones tells us of keeping a dairy at this time of eighty cows on Gov. Reynolds' farm, near the bluff, and marketing the milk in the city of St. Louis. The flood came and he was cut off from his customers. He remedied this, however, by loading his cows on a flat boat, and conveying them to St. Louis, where he remained until the river was again within its banks. The floods of 1851-8, and 1862, did much demage to the town, and for a time nearly disheartened the people, the details of which would fill a volume. The erection of the dikes, which will be noticed in the proper place, have been auxiliary in protecting the city from subsequent overflows.

The outline of the city of East St. Louis is in the form of an irregular pentagon, and acquired its present limits in time and manner as follows: Illinoistown was laid out by McKnight and Brady, May 14, 1818. Reavis, in bis history of "The Future Great City," places the date as 1817; but the records at Belleville show that the former is the correct date. Illinois City was formerly a part of the Cahokia Commons, and was laid out by the Cahokians in the fall of 1818. John Hays, John Hay, and Francois Turcott were appointed commissioners to plat and name the new town by the inhabitants of Cahokia, which proceedings were legalized and confirmed by a special act of Congress in 1820. It became a part of the city in May, 1875. The towns of St. Clair and East St. Louis, the Ferry divisions, the Oebike and Kase addition, are also included within the city limits. The city obtained its charter by a special act of the Legislature in the spring of 1865. The charter was prepared by J. B. Bowman and S. M. Lount, under the direction of a committee of the town council. At the first election Hon. J. B. Bowman was elected Mayor. The following named officers were elected aldermen: First ward, Michael Murphy and John O'Connell; Second ward, James S. Hazen and Henry Schall; Third ward, Capt. John Trendley and J. B. Lovingston. Wm. G. Kase was elected City judge.

As will be seen from the above, the city was divided into three wards. It is now divided into four wards, bounded as follows: The first ward includes all the territory extending east from Cahokia creek to the city limits, and south of Broadway. The Second ward lies between Broadway and Illinois avenue, and extends from Cahokia creek east to Tenth street. The Third ward includes all the territory lying between Cahokia creek and the middle of the Mississippi, and the city limits north and south. The Fourth ward embraces all the territory lying north of Illinois avenue and east of Cahokia creek to the city limits including Illinois City.

At this writing, March 21, 1881, the following are the city officers:

Maurice Joyce, mayor; James Shanon, clerk; John W. Renshaw, marshal. Aldermen: First Ward—John C. Prottsman and Earnest W. Wider. Second Ward—Thomas Hanifan and John J. McLean. Third Ward—Patrick H. O'Brien and Henry Sackmann. Fourth Ward—Levi Baugh, Jr., and James J. Rafter. These constitute the officers and members of the sixteenth Board of Aldermen of the city since its incorporation.

There is no city of its size in the United States that has the railroad facilities of East St. Louis. No less than eleven roads, by the conditions of their charters, terminate here, which are as follows: The Chicago and Alton; Indianapolis and St. Louis; Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific; Rockford, Rock Island and St. Louis, now known as the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy road: St. Louis, Vandalia and Terre Haute (Vandalia Line); Ohio and Mississippi; St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute; (Cairo Short Line); Louisville and Nashville, f rmerly St. Louis and South Eastern railway; Cairo and St. Louis; East St. Louis and Carondelet; Illinois and St. Louis; Union Railway and Transit Company. The latter was organized in East St. Louis in 1874, and a like organization was also effected in St. Louis under the laws of Missouri. These, united, act as agents for the Illinois and St. Louis Bridge Company in transferring cars and merchandise from city to city. All of the above roads centre at the Relay depot, except the Cairo and St. Louis railway.

The city contains several miles of excellent paved streets; the following are macadamized entire: Dyke avenue, Front street, Broadway and Main streets, Collinsville, Missouri and Illinois avenues, and Market street. Fourth and Summit streets and St. Clair avenue are partly graded and macadamized. There has heen some agitation upon the question of adopting a high-grade system of building and paving the city. The cost would necessarily place a heavy indebtedness upon the people, but the reward would undoubtedly more than recompense them for the outlay. The health and future prosperity of the city hang upon this improvement. We predict that it is only a question of time when the people will with one accord act upon this line of policy.

WIGGINS' FERRY AND THE BRIDGE.

Believing that no more complete history of the above could be given than that rendered by Dr. Isaac N. Piggott before the Literary and Historical Society of East St. Louis, in August, 1871, we take the liberty to give our readers an extract:

"From the commencement of the ferry, it was carried on under the immediate supervision of Piggott, until the 20th of February, 1799, when he died, leaving his wife the executrix of his will. She first rented the ferry to Dr. Wallis for the year 1801-2; then to - Adams for the year 1803-4. This Adams was the husband of the distinguished Sarah Adams, of Duncan's Island notoriety. About this time the widow of Piggott married Jacob Collard, and removed from Illinois to St. Louis. Before leaving she leased the ferry to John Campbell, for ten years. This Campbell proved treacherous, and procured a license for a ferry in his own name during the time of the lease; and hence, for a short time, it was called "Campbell's Ferry." But after a lawsuit, Campbell and confederates were beaten, and the ferry re-established to the Piggott heirs, one of whom, assisted by men named Solomon, Blundy and Porter, operated the ferry until part of the heirs sold out to McKnight & Brady. The other heirs of Piggott conveyed to Samuel Wiggins their share of the ferry. He soon succeeded in buying out his competitors, and thus obtained the whole ferry, which he afterwards superintended in person."

This was in 1818. The following spring Mr. Wiggins was authorized by an act of the legislature to establish a ferry on the Mississippi adjacent to his lands, near the town of Illinois. This act also provided that Samuel Wiggins should have the right to one mile of the shore extending along the river bank at this point.

Capt. Piggott's means of transportation was a rude affair, composed of canoes or "dug-outs," lashed together, over which was constructed a platform convenient for storage. The propelling power was by means of paddles or sweeps. Wiggins, however, soon improved upon this mode of conveyance, by building a fairsized ferry-boat, and propelling it by horse-power, until 1828, when the first steam ferry-boat was launched upon the river, and called the "St. Clair." In 1832 another boat, the "Ibex," was put on the line," and on account of the increase of business, and therefore a demand for capital, Mr. Wiggins sold an interest in the ferry to several parties, thus forming a joint-stock company. In 1853 they obtained further privileges by an act of the legislature, and the business grew and prospered beyond the most sanguine expectation. To this enterprise is largely due the growth and prosperity of East St. Louis. Since the completion of the St. Louis and Illinois bridges the business of the ferry has necessarily diminished to some extent, but at this time the possession of ferry stock is by no means a poor investment.

The construction of the bridge was commenced in the spring of 1869, and was completed in June, 1874. It was formally dedicated to the public on the 4th of July following. Its total length, including arches and abutments, is 2,046 feet, and is connected with the Union depot in St. Louis by means of a tunnel, 4,866 feet in length. The cost of the bridge and tunnel was nearly $13,000,000. The sum total of the weight of metal in its construction is upwards of 5,000 tons. On the top of the arches is a roadway for the convenience of vehicles and foot-passengers, while underneath rolls the merchandise and human freight from the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. For a more complete history of the bridge and the railroads see chapter on Internal improvements.

We glean the following history relating to the construction of from Reavis' History of East St. Louis : Before the advent of the great flood of 1844, the channel of the Mississippi opposite the city of St. Louis, though uncertain and troubled with shifting bars, was never seriously threatened with destruction. Thereafter bars formed from the head of Bloody Island, then a little further north than now, to the Missouri shore, almost entirely closing the channel washing the St. Louis shore. The whole current of the river, and the only available and safe channel between St. Louis and the town of Illinois, was between the Island and the town of Illinois, Under the greatest of difficulties only, and by circuitous routes, could boats at all land at the St. Louis levee. Navigation then being the chief, if not the only means of communication between commercial points and from a common centre, as St. Louis then was growing to be, was the mainstay of the importance, present and prospective, of that city. Realizing this fact, public meetings were held, at which the terrible fate of St. Louis was the subject of consideration.

THE DIKES

In 1847 ordinances were passed by the city council of St. Louis, appropriating money, and directing work to be undertaken on the Illinois shore, as the only means of salvation. Nothing less than a permanent dike across the then principal channel of the Mississippi to the east of Bloody Island, promised sure relief. This, of course, meant destruction to the harbor of the town of Illinois, and its ferry landings on the main shore. Alton, then a rival of St. Louis, calculated that what was to the disadvantage of St. Louis was ipso facto a benefit to Alton. The feeble complaints of the Town of Illinois were fanned into a flame of fearful excitement. The laborers upon the dike about being built by St. Louis across the eastern channel of the river, were driven away by force. Cannons were planted upon the banks, the state militia turned out, and thus state sovereignty and Alton policy were victorious, for a time, at least.

In 1848, an injunction was sworn out in the St. Clair Circuit Court, enjoining the authorities of St. Louis against any attempt to re-open like projects. Early in 1849, the legislature of Illinois was waited upon by a large delegation from St. Louis, and after due consideration, becoming a question of such magnitude and importance, by a joint resolution, it granted to the city of St. Louis for the fullest possible relief, all the authority necessary for the construction of cross and wing-dikes upon the Illinois shore opposite, so as to thoroughly protect and secure its harbor, with this provise, that St. Louis should construct upon some of these dikes, roadways, especially upon the main dike acro s to the to-be-closed channel of the Mississippi from the Illinois main shore to and across Bloody Island. Under this enactment, the work pushed rapidly to completion, so that in the spring of 1851, the main dike was finished except the road upon the embankment. It was built of rock throughout, and for a large part of the way, in the channel to be closed, in more than forty feet of water; but strong as it was, the fearful flood of that year swept the most of it away In the fall, however, another dike was projected which was situated a fourth of a mile north and nearly parallel with the former dike. This was finished in 1856, and cost $175,000. It is still standing as a monument to the perseverance and genius of its builders. Thus the channel on the east side of the river was diverted from it course, and the pier of St. Louis re-established. Other dikes have since been constructed, and the city is now comparatively safe from future inundations.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The East St. Louis Fire Company, No. 1, was organized in December 1872. Its first officers were as follows: William O'Neill, president; Charles Hauss, vice-president; James W. Kirk, secretary; John V. Tefft, treasurer; Benedict Franz, captain; Adolphe Donard, first engineer; John Easton, second engineer. The company was furnished with the largest kind of Babcock engine, on trucks, and was supplied with 500 feet of hose.

Island Fire Company, No. 1, was organized November 25th, 1874. The officers elected in 1875 were: Nicolas Colgan, president; Wm. L. Johnson, vice-president; Maurice F. Tissier, secretary; Geo. W. Shields, assistant-secretary; Adolphus Lovingston, treasurer; Henry Sackmann, captain; John Keiflin, lieutenant. We are informed that since 1878, these companies have partially disbanded.

PRIZE-FIGHTING.

This was quelled in 1873, through the united efforts of the city and county authorities. Much is due to the prompt efforts of Captain Renshaw, chief of police, Ex-Mayor Bowman, Michael Walsh, and the then sheriff of the county. The warrants were sworn out by Captain Renshaw, the ringleaders were arrested, and the whole gang bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury. This wholesale onslaught and determined action on the part of the authorities, had the effect of breaking up the clan, since which time there have been no attempts to revive the prize-ring once so formidable in this part of the West.

STREET RAILWAY.

The permit for the construction of this railway was obtained by city ordinance in 1872. The company was duly organized with Harry Elliott as president, and Thomas Winstanley, manager. By the conditions of the charter the company was authorized to build the road with single or double tracks, and all necessary switches for the convenience of the road. The first line of rail extended from Bowman's Dike, near the levee, to the corner of Missouri and Collinsville Avenues. Its terminus is now at the approach of the National Stock Yards on St. Clair Avenue. It contains upwards of two miles of track, and cost, including rolling stock, etc., about $20,000. It is at this writing under the special management of Mr. Winstanley, who, by giving the enterprise his main attention, is labouring to make it a convenience to the public and a profit to the company.

EAST ST. LOUIS PUBLIC LIBRARY.

This noble enterprise was created under a city ordinance. July 16, 1872. It was organized August 13, 1872, and opened to the public February 5, 1874.

The following is gleaned from the published report, made by

R. Lee Barrowman in 1876: The total number of persons enrolled and furnished with cards is 495, which are in constant daily use. The total number of volumes on hands are 4,437; of this number 433 are in the German language, 3 in the French, 9 in the Spanish, and 1 in the Hebrew. The number purchased was 1,409. The number of books donated was 67, pamphlets, 37. The percentage of the circulation is as follows: Novels, 69; historical and miscellaneous, 20; juveniles, 11.

The library also contains eighty-nine American newspapers and periodicals, among which are (dailies) Philadelphia, Times, Baltimore Sun, Boston Post, Chicago Times, St. Louis Globe-Democrat, New York Herald, Cincinnati Enquirer, etc.; (weeklics) Appleton's Journal, Irish World, Danbury News, and many others; (monthlies) Aldine, Atlantic Monthly, Harper's and Scribner's Magazines, and twenty-seven other first-class journals.

There are fourteen British publications, and nine German, among which we find the following : London Times (daily), Dublin Nation, Blackwood's Magazine, London Quarterly Review, Edinburgh Review, St. Louis Westliche Daily Post, Berliner Kladderadatsch, and the Ueber Land und Meer.

The whole number of visitors attending the rooms were 30,954, making an average daily attendance of 86. The attendance on Sunday was upon an average twenty-five per cent. more than upon other days of the week, although open only from 2 p.M. to 10 p.M. The number of books loaned out in the time was 12.924 volumes, making a daily average of 36 volumes.

Mr. Barrowman in the closing of his report gives the following gratifying information: "An extra and successful effort has been made to bring within the influence of the Library, the many boys and youth who stroll about our streets during evening hours. Let me here state the result. They were first kindly invited to come to the Library, and by supplying them with such books and papers as they took an interest in, they were thus induced to continue and renew their visits. There were some unruly ones among them, but by reproof, and expelling some of the worst, the others have remained, and at present are as well behaved as any that attend the library and give promise of becoming useful and bright members of society." And we will add, may the Reading Rooms of East St. Louis ever exist and grow in importance and influence to the last generation.

CEMETERIES.

The first interment made within what is now the city limits, was on survey No. 116, in the First ward, where the Pittsburg railway crosses said survey. This was abandoned after the flood of 1844, on account of the liability to overflow. Many a ghastly skeleton, by that flood, was washed from its resting place, to meet the gaze, perhaps, of the friends that had but a short time ago followed it to its lonely abode. To make secure from further disasters of the kind the inhabitants selected for their burial place the old Indian mound, then situated between what is now Collinsville avenue and Fourth street, and at the foot of Ohio avenue. It is said that the Indians had used it for centuries, so far as any one knew to the contrary, for a place of burying their dead. The mound was about four hundred feet in diameter at the base, and forty feet in altitude from summit to base. At that time (1844) and for years afterward it was covered mostly with heavy oak timber. In 1871-2, it was removed and the earth utilized to fill up a slough in the Second ward, and to make the ground at the south-east round-house. Nothing but a vacant lot now marks the spot. When the earth was removed, human bones and many kinds of shells were found to the depth of thirty fect. These were no doubt the remains and trinkets of a pre-historic race, called mound builders. The most of the remains of those who had been buried in our own times, were cared for by their friends and conveyed to the new cemetery. For months, however, a grinning skull might have been seen peering from the fresh cut bank of the mound at the passer-by, and so close to the street that the hand of the pedestrian could touch it as he passed.

The city at this time contains two cemeteries, both situated in Fourth ward, not far from the National Stock Yards. These were laid off for grave-yards, when the Cahokians first established Illinois city; but were not used as such until about fifteen years ago.

THE NATIONAL STOCK YARDS.

Prior to 1845, the live stock trade of St. Louis was carried on at what was formerly known as Papstown or New Brighton, and situated in the south-eastern portion of the present city of East St. Louis. About this time yards were established on the west side of the river at St. Louis. Here the business was conducted until the opening of the National Stock Yards on the east side of the river in 1873. The subject of constructing these yards was mooted as early as 1871. The agitation of the question culminated by the united efforts of several prominent Eastern and Western capitalists, who proceeded at once to purchase six hundred and fifty acres of land on the east side of the river near the city limits of East St. Louis. In July, 1872, mutual covenants were entered into between the company and the city authorities. The former were to construct a hotel to cost not less than $100,000, and to contain commission offices, brokers' offices, telegraph and post-offices, with all modern conveniences for transacting business. The stock yards were to exceed in completeness and magnitude any institution of the kind in the United States.

The city on its part covenanted to refrain from infringing, by constructing streets, or any city improvements whatsoever upon the survey, No. 627, and owned by said company. To all of which was attached the city seal and signature of A. M. Allerton, manager and attorney of the company. The yards were opened for business in the fall of 1873. One hundred out of six hundred and fifty acres purchased, are enclosed and laid out with all the convenient appurtenances of a first-class live stock market. The form of the enclosure is a rectangle and describes nearly a square. It is laid by avenues which intersect each other at right angles. Four of these avenues extend entirely through the enclosure from east to west. The floors of the yard are paved with stone, and the sheds are comfortable and well arranged for the convenience of stock. The arrangements for receiving and shipping the same are complete. No less than seventy cars can be loaded and unloaded at the same time. It contains one mile of cattle pens, which can accommodate upwards of 10,000 head of cattle. The bog and sheep houses are models of convenience and cleanliness. Over the entrance to the hog-house is inscribed the words, "Hotel de Hog," and of the sheep house, "Hotel de Sheep." The hog-house is eleven hundred and twenty-two feet in length, and capable of accommodating upwards of 20,000 head. The sheep-house is upwards of five hundred feet in length, by a hundred in width, and has the capacity of holding, if necessary, 10,000 head. The stable is a fine building, two hundred and eighty-five feet long, by eighty wide, and fitted with stalls for the accommodation of three hundred head of horses. The racks and mangers are constructed of iron; the former are supplied with hay by wooden cylinders, and the stalls are well arranged for drainage. There are two hog barns, and each has a capacity to hold eleven hundred tons of hay and fifteen thousand bushels of corn. At the approach of the yards from the south-east, on St. Clair avenue, is situated the "Allerton House," a magnificent building of brick with free-stone facings, and all the belongings of first-class material. It is two hundred and fifty feet in length, by one hundred and forty in breadth, and has one hundred rooms for the accommodation of guests. There is a telegraph communication with the exchange building, and every other convenience to the drovers or traders. Itscost, including furniture, was upwards of $150,000.

The Exchange Building is centrally situated, and conveniently arranged for the transaction of all business connected with the yards. It is a large brick building, plain in architecture, and three stories in height, including basement. In the north wing of the latter are the offices of the railroad stock agents, and in the center and south wing are a bar, billiard hall and refreshment room. The first floor is occupied by the officers of the yard company, bank and commission firms. On the second floor is situated the telegraph office, printing office, etc.

The Stock Yards Bank, situated in this building, is one of the important features of the concern. It materially facilitates the business of all who have transactions at the yards, its daily business aggregating upwards of $300,000.

The water-works of the yards are situated on the east bank of Cahokia creek, near the packing houses. Along the avenues are placed watch-boxes, each containing a hydrant and fire-hose, and so arranged as to cover any fire with one or two hydrants. The tankhouse is a substantial building seventy feet in height, and contains three tubs, each thirty-two feet in diameter by thirty feet deep, and capable of holding 600,000 gallons of water. The total expenditure in establishing the yards, including lands, buildings, etc., is upwards of a million and a half dollars. They are complete in every arrangement, and the rapidity with which stock can be transferred from the Missouri side to the yards, or from point to point, is a matter that every shipper is interested in, as "time is money" to the live business men. Hon. Isaac H. Knox, vice-president and manager for the company, is the right man in the right place. He is a clear-headed business man, combined with affableness and rare executive ability. Under his management the business has materially increased, and become one of the most important stock markets in the country. The following is a table showing the receipts of the yards since their opening:

| Cars.          | Cattle. | Hogs.     | Sheep.  | Horses. |
|----------------|---------|-----------|---------|---------|
| 1874 - 17,264  | 234,002 | 498,840   | 41,407  | 2,235   |
| 1875-13,938    | 232,183 | 181,708   | 46,316  | 2,385   |
| 1876 - 18,052  | 234,671 | 333,560   | 84,034  | 2,616   |
| 1877 - 24,342  | 322,571 | 425,389   | 119,165 | 2,366   |
| 1878 - 31,003  | 317,830 | 833,446   | 82,549  | 2,534   |
| 1879-85,641    | 333,155 | 1,163,748 | 99,951  | 4,338   |
| 1880 - 38, 294 | 346,533 | 1,262,234 | 129,611 | 5,963   |

OTHER BUSINESS AT THE YARDS.

St. Louis Beef Canning Company.—This company was organized in the fall of 1876, with a capital of 200,000, and promises to be in time the largest establishment of the kind on either continent. It is situated on St. Clair avenue, and occupies eight acres of ground. The main building is  $324\times100$  feet, and four stories high. The slaughter house is  $240\times76$  feet, two stories high, and is adjoined to the main building. The warehouse is also two stories in height, and  $176\times100$  feet on the ground. In addition to these there is an engine room  $60\times61$ , tank-house  $76\times30$ , and smoke-house  $24\times60$ . The establishment furnishes employment to nearly one thousand persons, two-fifths of whom are boys and girls. One thousand head of cattle arc slaughtered daily, and the annual value of manufactured products is between four and five millions of dollars. Hon. Isaac H. Knox is president of the company, but the establishment is under the immediate supervision of Mr. Patterson, sccretary and treasurer.

East St. Louis Packing and Provision Company.—This enterprise was established in 1873, under the firm name of W. E. Richardson & Co, and merged into a stock company in 1875. The grounds, on which this packing house stands, contain ten acres, seven of which are covered with the buildings. They are mainly three stories in height, and all of them are constructed of brick. It is one of the most extensive packing houses in the West, and when worked to its full capacity, gives employment to seven hundred meu. The nominal capacity of the works is 8,000 hogs per day, and the value of its annual shipments is from three to five millions of dollars. It is under the efficient management of D. L. Quirk, president, and W. E. Richardson, vice-president.

Francis Whitaker & Sons.—This packing house was erected in 1877, at the expense of upwards of \$100,000. The main building is  $185 \times 185$  feet, and is three and a half stories high, with a cellar under the entire building. A tank-house  $80 \times 90$  feet joins the main building, and adjacent to the former is the slaughter-house,  $30 \times 60$  feet. Besides these there are eight pen-houses, all under one roof,  $120 \times 120$  feet, and a platform packing apartment  $40 \times 185$  feet. The average capacity of the house is 3,000 hogs per day, and employs about three hundred hands.

North-Western Fertilizing Company.—This is a branch establishment of a well-known Chicago firm. The works commenced operations here in the fall of 1877. The building is a frame structure, and covers one acre of ground. The machinery of the factory is run by a one hundred-horse power engine. Fifty hands are employed daily to conduct the works. It has the capacity of manufacturing, annually, 15,000 tons of fertilizer, which, when thrown upon the market, will bring upwards of $400,000. Within the last year the company has added machinery for the purpose of manufacturing "Plant-Food," specially adapted for house plants and lawn use, on account of its being entirely odorless. Large quantities of both the Fertilizer and Plant-Food find a demand in the eastern markets.

McCarthy Live Stock and Packing Company, situated on the corner of Provision street and the plank road. The building was erected in 1877-8, by Arch. Allen, but is now owned by F. G. Rowe, and the business is conducted by John McCarthy. The building is a snug two-story brick, and with the attachments, covers nearly an acre of ground. It has the capacity of slaughtering and packing daily 1000 head of hogs and fifty head of cattle. It gives employment to twenty men.

St. Louis Carbon Works.—These works were established in 1875 at a cost of $40,000, and are situated on the National Stock Yards railroad. They were first known as the "Western Fertilizing and Chemical Works," and in 1878 again changed the name to "Keeler's Carbon Works." They afterwards assumed the former title, and are so-called at this time. The company owns three acres of ground, upon which the factory is situated. The building is a frame, 150 by 300 feet, the main portion of which is two stories high. The machinery consists of a fifty horse power engine, a bone mill and bone kiln. It manufactures from five to six thousand tons of bone yearly, and employs from thirty to forty hands. The annual manufactured product is upwards of $600,000. Max Dietrich is the superintendent of the works.

Carey's Bref and Pork Packing House is situated on Provision street, and north of McCarthy's packing house. It was established by Richard Carey, sole owner and proprietor, in the year 1880, at a cost of $10,000. The building is a snug two-story house, with stone basement, the upper portion being built of brick, and in size is 48 by 55 feet. There is also a boiler and tank-house, 30 by 40 feet, which is detached from the main building. This is also built of brick. and is two stories in height. When worked to its full capacity, it can pack 600 hogs and 100 beeves daily, and gives employment to forty persons.

St. Lo. is Rendering Works. Levi Baugh, jr., proprietor. These were established in 1872, and located on the east side of Provision street and the Stock Yards railway. The building is a frame twostory structure, 68 by 80 feet on the ground floor, with a side room for cooling purposes 16 by 30 feet. The engine-room, attached to the main building on the north, is 30 by 30 feet. The cost of the works was $2,500, and they give employment to about twelve men. The establishment, under the efficient management of Mr. Baugh, is capable of rendering 150 hogs and 50 beeves per day.

George Mulrow & Company, Pork Packers.—This institution is situated between the East St. Louis Packing House and the National Stock Yards enclosure, and was established in 1880. The building is a frame, two stories, and 50 by 150 feet in size, and cost, including machinery, etc., $3,000. It has the capacity of slaughtering and packing 300 hogs per day, and employs on an average fourteen hands. James Lillay, foreman.

Baugh's Catch Basin is situated just across Cahokia creek, outside of the limits of the Stock Yards. It was constructed in 1880, at an expense of about $600, and is utilized to catch the superfluous grease that escapes through the sewer from the packing houses. Formerly the sewer opened into Cahokia creek, but the city authorities made complaint; hence at this point a flume was built across the creek, and Mr. Baugh erected this basin. It is 30 by 40 feet in size, and contains eight vats, four on each side. Here the water is retained and cooled, when the grease floats, it is skimmed from the surface and deposited in barrels arranged for that purpose. When the packing houses are all in full blast, from fifteen to twenty barrels of grease are caught daily.

St. Clair Rendering Company.—This institution is owned and operated by M. E. Richardson and Capt. Clubb, and is situated on St. Clair avenue, between the National Stock Yards and the town of Brooklyn. It was established in the spring of 1880 by Rogers & Mullholl, and passed into the hands of the present proprietors the fall following. The main building is two stories high, frame, and in size 76 by 76 feet, and cost, including necessary machinery, $5,000. It has the capacity of pressing ten tons of tank stuff, and drying one ton of blood daily, besides rendering three hundred and fifty hogs per week. It employs on an average fifteen hands, and manufactures $100,000 worth of products annually. Foreman, Wm. H. Courtney.

CITY MANUFACTURES.

St. Louis Bolt and Iron Company.—This is the largest manufacturing establishment in the city, and is situated near the Cairo Short Line railroad. The officers of the company are T. A. Meysenburg, president; O. W. Meysenburg, superintendent; Geo. S. Edgell, treasurer. The works contain six puddling furnaces, three heating, six spike, and two bolt furnaces, besides all the necessary machinery peculiar to the works, such as planers, lathes, etc. Street rails, T rails, bolts and spikes are made a specialty of manufacture by the company. The works are in operation day and night, the laborers being divided into two sets or watches. These works employ about one hundred and fifty men, and have the capacity of manufacturing daily forty tons of finished iron, ten tons of railroad spikes, and several thousand strap or trace bolts. From three to four thousand dollars are paid to the employees every two weeks. The company own two and a half acres of ground and two railroad switches where the works are situated. The products are shipped to points both east and west.

Grape, Sugar, and Glucose Works, O. W. Heyer & Co., proprietors. These works are situated in the Third ward, on the river front, and were erected in 1869 by Brotherton & Morse for milling purposes. The present company purchased the property and remodelled the building suitable to their wants. They commenced operations of manufacture in the spring of 1875. The present factory, as remodelled, is made up of three departments or buildings. The main building, or manufactory proper, is four stories high, and 45 feet square. The engine house is 20 by 36 feet, besides a starch room, used exclusively for the manufacture of starch. The whole structure on the ground covers 50,000 square feet. The cost of the building and appurtenances thereto was $150,000. It has the capacity of grinding 3,000 bushels of corn daily, and can manufacture in the same time one hundred and fifty barrels of syrup. From seventy-five to one hundred persons are constantly employed in the works. The approximate value of manufactured product is $100,000 annually. The business is under the immediate supervision of Louis Strehl.

Railroad Frog Works.—This establishment dates from 1874, then under the sole supervision and management of George and Henry Elliot. In 1875 Mr. George Elliot died, and the institution passed into the hands of the present owners, H. & H. Elliot. The works were established for the purpose of manufacturing railway crossings, frogs, switches, and track tools, and are located on Main and Broad streets, near the East St. Louis and Carondelet railway. The main building, or machine shop, is 39 by 90 feet, with other convenient attachments. The works were constructed at a cost of $10,000, and give employment to about sixty men, who receive for their labor from $1.75 to $3 per day. The capacity of manufacture is about 4,500 frogs and 100 crossings per annum. Value of products, $150,000.

Heim's Brewing Company.—This is the only Brewing Company in East St. Louis. It was established by Nick Spannagel in 1856, and was afterwards purchased by the present company. It is situated on the corner of Tenth street and Belleville Turnpike. The buildings occupy the identical site of the old hotel, built and kept in an early day by Mr. Condit, and the place known as Papstown. The main building is a splendid three story brick structure, and with the attach ments covers nearly an acre of ground. The cost of the building and machinery aggregates $150,000. Its capacity is from fifty to sixty thousand barrels annually, and gives employment to about forty persons. The annual value of manufactured goods is over $500,000. The company is attaching an ice machine for the purpose of cooling the cellars, which is an entirely new departure in the brewing business.

East St. Louis Gaslight Company was established in 1874, and situated at the junction of the Illinois and St. Louis railroad, near Cahokia creek. The size of the tank is sixty feet in diameter and twenty feet in depth. It has the capacity of supplying 58,000 feet of gas, and is supplied with seven-and a-half miles of pipe. The capital invested is about $125,000, and at present receives an income of upwards of $7,000 from the annual manufactured material. Wm. H. Watts is the efficient superintendent of the works, and has under his supervision the employment of eleven men.

East St. Louis Flouring Mills.—St. Louis has been one of the most unfortunate cities in the country with regard to the destruction by fire of her flouring mills. Many have been built, and but one is now standing. This was first constructed in 1855, by F. H. Krite 39 and A. De Clansel for a saw-mill near the old Belleville depot. In 1861 it was sold to a company who transformed it into a grist-mill; this was torn down in 1865, and a large four-story brick erected in its place. The latter was a first-class mill in every respect, and was built and operated by Notley, Krite & Co. In the fall of 1866, it was destroyed by fire, involving a heavy loss to the owners. The present building was erected in 1868-69, on the old site, and is the only flouring mill in the city. It is a four-story brick building with basement, and in size 40x80 feet. The cost of construction exceeded $80,000, having all the modern machinery and improvements for manufacturing flour. The mill has the capacity of making four hundred barrels of flour per day, containing seven run of stones, three for meal and four for flour. It employs about twenty-five hands, and handles annually nearly $500,000 of manufactured material. Mr. F. H. Krite is the secretary of the firm, and has the general supervision of the mill.

City Planing Mill.—This factory was originally located at Litchfield, Ill., and was removed to this city in 1877. It is now owned by Theodore Wiegreffe, and situated on Fourth street, between Missouri and St. Louis avenues. It is a frame building, mainly two stories high, and 86x112 feet, on the ground. The cost of the factory, including all the appurtenances, was upwards of $6,000. From twelve to fifteen hands are constantly employed, and manufacture over 8,000 pork-packing boxes annually, beside making a large quantity of doors, sash, blinds, etc. The amount of manufactured goods is $15,000.

East St. Louis Elevator Company.—This institution is one of the leading industries of the city, and was established in 1867, by an act of the legislature, approved March 6th of that year. It is situated on the river front below the bridge, and occupies the ground on the line of the dike, which was built to improve the harbor in 1842, by Capt. Robert E. Lee, then Chief Engineer of the United States army. The company owns five hundred feet front on the river, by four hundred feet deep, and by the conditions of the charter it may extend these boundaries to one thousand feet front by the same in depth, and occupy by purchase any other lands within three miles of Bloody Islaud. The capacity for storing grain is upwards of one million bushels. The cost of the grounds, building, machinery, etc., was nearly $1,000,000.

The Advance Elevator and Warehouse is situated on the island, near Front street, between the Chicago and Alton, and Ohio and Mississippi railways. It was established in 1872, by Messrs. Mc-Cormic, Adams and Armington, at a cost of $125,000. In 1880 it passed into the hands of the present company. The elevator and warerooms covered 20,400 square feet of ground. The elevator proper is 50x60 feet, 130 feet high, and has convenient connections with the river and all the roads leading into East St. Louis. It has an engine of eighty horse-power, and all necessary machinery for handling grain. From twelve to fifteen men are employed daily, and seventy car-loads of grain can be elevated in one day. Three tracks pass through the entire building. It has the capacity of storing 400,000 bushels of grain. The present company are R. S. McCormic, C. W. Isaacs, D. P. Slatery, Jno. Jackson, and H. Rogers.

Pioneer Warehouse.—This was established by Benj. F. Horn in the spring of 1880, and is situated east of the East St. Louis Flouring Mills, and south of the Illinois and St. Louis railway track. The building is a frame, one-story, and 20x60 feet. It has the capacity of manufacturing 270 flour barrels per day, and gives employment to twenty men. Richard Zimmerman, foreman.

HALL'S PATENT DRY PRECIOUS METAL SEPARATOR, EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL.

Hall & Co's. Manufactory was established in the spring of 1880, with the following officers representing the company: Giles Hall, President; J. M. Macdonald, Vice-President; Ferdinand Heim, Treasurer; Wm. P. Launtz, Secretary. The machines manufactured by this company are for the purpose of separating or extracting gold and other precious metal from auriferous deposits. This process is ingeniously effected by means of compressed air in connection with chemicals (see cut above). It is entirely a new invention, and if it succeeds in performing what the inventor claims for it, the company has certainly struck a bonanza. The capital stock is $12,000. The factory is situated on Collinsville avenue, between Broadway and Missouri avenues.

C. B. & Q Elevator Company.—This is a new enterprise, and the elevator is now in process of construction. It is owned by, and will be conducted in the interest of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company. It is situated at the terminus of the road, and a little north of the company's freight-house. The foundation is composed of seventeen piers besides the outer walls, and the size of the main building is to be 87x177 feet, and 148 feet in height. The cost of its construction, machinery, etc., will exceed half a million dollars, and it will have the capacity of storing 750,000 bushels of grain. Four tracks are to be laid through the building.

Turning Factory, Henry Sternkopf, proprietor. This factory was established in 1876, and is located on Brady street, between Main street and Cairo Short Line railway track. The building is a frame structure 24x30 feet, and cost, including machinery, $1,500. Mr. Sternkopf has in his employ from four to six men, and manufactures all articles in wood work. Wooden faucets are made a specialty, turning out from fifteen to twenty gross per week. The annual sales of manufactured goods are from two to three thousand dollars.

So la Factory.—This enterprise was established in 1870, by C. Lutt & Co. The business is carried on in a fine two-story brick building, 40x80 feet in dimensions, and it is located on Main street, between Broadway and Railroad street. The cost of construction, with the necessary appliances, was $4,500. The factory is capable of manufacturing three hundred boxes of soda-water per day. It gives employment to four persons, and handles a manufactured product of $25,000 per annum. Seltzer-water is also manufactured to some extent by this firm.

Lumber Mill is situated south of the Cairo Short Line Roundhouse, and was built in 1878, by J. H. Modrell, owner and proprietor. It is driven by an engine of thirty horse-power, and is capable of sawing $75,000 worth of lumber annually. Its construction cost the proprietor $3,000. Six hands are kept in employment the greater portion of the year. There are two circular saws, one arranged above the other, for the purpose of handling, properly, the largest sized logs. The timber for sawing is mostly shipped frem Tennessee, and is manufactured into lumber suitable for bridge building.

Schroeder's Soda Factory.—These works were established by John Kerns in 1862, and became the property of Edward Schroeder in 1864. It was the first establishment of the kind built in East St. Louis, and is located on Illinois avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets, and west of Heim's Brewery. Both soda and Seltzer are manufactured, having the capacity of making daily upwards of four hundred boxes of the former. The building is a substantial brick structure, and is supplied with all the necessary machinery and apparatus peculiar to the business.

Ice Houses.—Smith & Sons own three of the largest houses in the city. They are situated just south of the river bridge. They each have room to stow upwards of 7,000 tons of ice.

C. Lutt & Co., have four ice houses near the Relay Depot. They have the capacity of 4,000 tons each.

BANKS.

There are two banking institutions in the city, besides the one in the Exchange building at the Stock Yards, which has already been mentioned.

Working Men's Banking Company.—This Bank was organized August 15th, 1870, by John McMullin, George W. Davis, Henry Schell, E. W. Wider and others, and has a capital stock of $50,000. It is located on the corner of Broadway and Fourth street, and is one of the finest buildings in the city, and is the only house in East St. Louis built above high-water mark. President, R. J. Whitney; Cashier, Geo. W. Dausch.

East St. Louis Bank was established in 1865, and has a capital stock of $100,000; surplus, $26,000. The bank is situated on the corner of Misscuri and Collinsville avenues. Themas Witstanley, President; Henry Jackiesch, Vice-President; Theodore Meumann, Cashier,

Besides the foregoing, the city contains nine round-houses, some of which are equal to any institutions of the kind in the state; five large warehouses, with several others of smaller dimensions. The following is a condensed showing of other industries represented in the city: Bakeries, 6; cigar manufactories, 5; harness, 2; wagons, 1; blacksmiths, 5; tinners, 4; tailors, 2; jewelers, 2; carpenters, 44; printing offices, 2; shoemakers, 15; butchers, 9; undertakers, 1; dentists, 1; painters and glazers, 2. There are upwards of thirty hotels, and over seventy-five places where liquors are sold. There are three wholesale grccery houses, two dry-goods, two hardware establishments, and one wholesale liquor house. The retail business of every kind is well represented. The various churches are also numerous, there being two Catholic (Irish, and German), one Methodist, one Presbyterian, one Lutheran, and two Colored churches. There are eight distinct schools in the city as follows: First ward, two; Second ward, three; Third ward, one; Fourth ward, two. For further information on schools, churches, and printing offices, see special chapters relating to the same.

The following is a tabular showing of the number of inhabitants, families, and buildings that the city contained (with a slight discrepancy) in 1880:

SECRET SOCIETIES.

East St. Louis Lodge, No. 504, A. F. & A. M., was organized in October, 1866, with 28 charter members. Its place of meeting is in Masonic Hall, over Schaub's hardware store, and meets the first and third Thursday evenings in each month. The Lodge has a fine hall and is in a prosperous condition.

East St. Louis Chapter No. 156, R. A. M., was chartered in October, 1873, with a membership of 31, since which time it has materially increased. Meets in Masonic Hall every second Thursday night in each month.

Golden Rule Lodge, No. 374 I. O. O. F.—This Lodge was instituted June 16th, 1868, and chartered October 13th, 1868. The number of charter members were 8, and the present membership is 55. Meets in Odd Fellows' Hall every Thursday evening in each week. The Lodge is in a prosperous condition and good working order.

Pride of the Valley Lodge, No. 435, I. O. O. F., was chartered the 11th of October, 1870. Number of charter members, 10, present membership, 51. Meets every Monday night.

Harmony Encampment, No. 102.—This institution was chartered the 12th of October, 1869, with a membership of 12. It meets in Odd Fellows' Hall the second and fourth Thursday nights in each month.

Helvetia Lodge (German), No. 480, I. O. O. F., was instituted February 22d, 1872, and chartered October 8th, 1872. Charter membership, 11; present number of members, 55. Meets every Friday night.

Naomi Rebecca Degree Lodge, No. 5.—Chartered October 11th, 1870, with a membership of 27, since which time it has largely increased. Meets in Odd Fellows' Hall the first and third Thursday evenings in each month.

Eureka Lodge, No. 81, K. of P., was organized December 26, 1878, and chartered October 23d, 1879. Number of charter members, 24; present membership, 55. The Lodge is in a flourishing condition. Meets in Schaub's Hall every Monday evening.

Illinois Lodge, No. 268, K. of H.—This Lodge received its charter Dec. 5th, 1876, with the names of nineteen members. It has had an unprecedented growth, having a present membership of 160. Convenes in Odd Fellows' Hall every Wednesday evening.

Catholic Knights of America.—This institution was organized March 19th, 1880, with a membership of 8 Knights; present membership, 53. They meet the first and third Sundays of each month in St. Patrick's Church Hall. This is a wide-awake and prosperous organization.

Olive Branch Lodge, No. 335, K. & L. of H., is under dispensation, granted May 28th, 1880. Charter membership, 46; present membership, 54. The Lodge meets at Fink's Hall the first and third Mondays in each month.

F. W. Arnold, No. 44, B. of L. & F., was chartered May 2d, 1880. Number of charter members, 18; present membership, 23. Meets the first and third Tuesday nights of each month in Fink's Hall.

East St. Louis Sangerbund was instituted March 23d, 1872, with 25 members; present membership, 50. The organization meets at Jackiesh Hall every Wednesday night.

There have also been organized in times past the following orders: Knights of St. Patrick, Independent Order of Foresters, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, St. Clair Gun Club, and Workingmen's Party.

First Land Entries.—Joseph Pepin entered the south-east quarter of sec. 4, 160 acres, Sept. 16th, 1814. Joseph Gonville entered, September 28th, 1814, 320 acres of the west half of the same section. Dec. 15th, 1814, William Russell entered 131.92 acres on section 6.

The city of East St. Louis has made an eventful history. From its infancy it has withstood many reverses that would have totally discouraged a less enterprising and plucky people. Five times has it been washed by the floods and barely escaped annihilation. The fire fiend has likewise been a frequent and destructive visitor, having once-1872-wiped out a considerable portion of the business part of the city. Political convulsions have also swept through its midst and shaken the municipal fabric to its foundation. Yet, with all these misfortunes to retard its progress, it lives and grows and prospers. The manufacturing facilities of the city are unsurpassed; it has the coal, the water, the advantages of cheap labor, and last, but not least, the ready capitalist, who is shrewd enough to comprehend the advantages of the situation and to invest accordingly. With future peace and harmony among the citizens of East St. Louis, it can be but a question of time when it will take rank among the first cities of the west.

TOWN OF BROOKLYN.

This village is situated in the extreme north-western part of East St. Louis precinct; the northern boundary being the Madison county line, and the Mississippi river forming the western limits. It was laid out March 17th, 1837, by the following parties : Thos. Osburn, James P. Morris, Charles Collins, Joseph Tabor, and W. J. Austin. The town plat was placed on record the 1st day of May following. July 14th, 1874, it was incorporated under the general law, when it established village ordinances and prepared to govern its own municipal affairs. The first house built within the limits was a small log dwelling, but has long since given place to later improvements. Among the first inhabitants were J. R. Stites, Thos. Osburn, Daniel Wilson, Geo. H. Lewis, John Baltimore, Charles Woodworth, Hardy Roberts, Alfred Sparks, Nicholas Carper, Mrs. Newell, and Mrs. Wyatt, some of whom are still residents of the village.

The town, at this writing, contains between five and six hundred inhabitants, seven-eighths of whom are colored people. There are four small grocery stores, the most extensive of which is kept by Frederick Archer. This store is a snug two story frame building, and is situated on Fourth street. The village contains a fine twostory brick school-house, so arranged as to employ two teachers, and is thus partially graded. It was built in 1879, at an expense of three thousand dollars. It is exclusively a colored school. There are also two churches, both colored, one Methodist, the other Baptist. The former was built in 1879, and cost $2,500; the latter was constructed at an earlier period, and cost $1,500.

Brooklyn is so closely situated to the city of East St. Louis, on the south, with Venice almost touching it on the north, that it has but little chance for its life, so far as a trading point is concerned. Indeed it might be considered as a suburb of East St. Louis; and the time is not far distant when it will be such in fact.

The following are the present officers of the village : President, J. R. Stites; Trustees, James Maffit, William Weyh, George Bachelor, Charles Jennings and Frederick Archer. Clerk, Henry Rountree; Treasurer, Joseph Archer; Marshal, James A. Pettiford.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

THE present mayor of the city of East St. Louis, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, January 4th, 1841. His father, Milton M. McLean, a lawyer by profession, had acquired considerable property interests in the west, especially in and around East St. Louis, among others, a distillery in 1840. After ten years' management of this property he concluded on changing his residence from his Cincinnati home, to enable him to personally care for his rapidly growing interests here. Hence, in 1850 he took up his abode in East St. Louis. In 1851 he disposed of the distillery and moved to St. Louis, where he continued the practice of his profession until the time of his death, July 4th, 1855. He was one of the largest land owners on this side of the river. For a time he was a partner of Church Blackburn, one of the most eminent criminal lawyers of his day. He had received his education in the Miami University. He ranked with the first young men of the west in point of talent, integrity, and 309 all the virtues that tend to constitute the highest degree of moral worth. At the time of his death the members of the St. Louis bar paid the highest honors to his memory, and he was followed to his grave by hundreds of truc and sincere friends as mourners. Hewas a nephew of Justice McLean, whose worth is known to all.

The mother of John J. McLean was Mary W. Johnson, a daughter of the first Indian Agent ever appointed in Ohio.

A brief and interesting sketch of his life is retained by the family, from which we glean the following :--He was born near Ballyshannon, Ireland, March 3d, 1775. At an early age, soon after the termination of the revolutionary war, he was brought to the United States, locating in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania. He was with Gen. Wayne on the Ohio, in 1793-4; was a captain in Philadelphia in 1798; clerk in the War Department and Indian Bureau, in all thirty-one years. In the war of 1812 he was a pay-master and quartermaster by turns. In 1841-2 he was U. S. Commissioner for treating with the Indians. In all these positions he acquitted himself honorably. In a letter yet extant written by him in his old age, he said "he had suffered political martyrdom thrice for adherence to Whig principles; once by the tyrant Jackson once by the nondescript Tyler, and once by the democratic legislature of Ohio."

Of these families came John J. McLean, the subject of this sketch, a man who has inherited many of their good qualities; a man of energy, of generous impulses, and who is held in high esteem. He received a common school education in the public schools of St. Louis, Missonri, and subsequently attended the Methodist College at St. Charles, in the same state about a year. As a youth in school he exhibited those traits of character,—that same restlessness of disposition that has prompted him to dare and to do whatever he conceived to be right.

He was married to Eliza Griffith, a most estimable lady, in June, 18—. By this marriage there have been born the following children: John Joseph, Clara Belle, Nathaniel Charles, Eliza Laurence, Ralph Edwin, Gertrude Bertha, and Estelle May; all living, and constituting a happy family.

His mother died in Shiloh, this county, Feb. 9th, 1877, in the sixty-third year of her life. To resume his personal history : at the age of seventeen telegraphy possessed for him its charms. He rapidly acquired a knowledge of its mysteries, and for a year remained at this work as operator in the employ of the Ohio and Mississippi railroad. He next learned the trade of machinist, at which he worked for a period of nine years, in the locomotive shops of the same railway company for which he had served as telegraph operator. In 1870 he took charge of one of the boats of the Wiggins Ferry Company, as captain, which position he held for about ten years. From 1867 to 1870 he served as chief of the Metropolitan Police force of East St. Louis. His quickness of perception and promptness of action served him well here, and doubtless at different times saved bloodshed and riot. Possessed of a clear insight into the motives of men, coupled with the nerve to do what he deemed to be right, he never halted until proposed mischief was effected, but before it got under full headway he was on hand to check its tide. This promptitude together with his generous treatment of associates, gave him a strong hold upon the affections of his fellows, and rendered him personally popular with all. He served his constituency in the ward for two terms, of two years each, as member of the City Council, with credit to himself and honor to his supporters. In April, 1881, as a just recognition of his worth, he was elected mayor without opposition; this too, in the face of the fact that he is an ardent republican, whilst his city is strongly democratic. His first presidential vote was cast for Abraham Lincoln. Possessed of sound judgment, of excellent social qualities, of fine executive ability, he is filling his position to the satisfaction of all citizens.

JOHN O. BUTLER

Was born in St. Louis, Missouri, March 10th, 1827. His father was Armstead O. Butler, a physician of large reputation and extensive practice, was born in Mecklenburg county, Virginia, studied medicine in Philadelphia, Pa., and located in Cahokia. His circle of practice embraced a radius of forty miles, throughout which he was recognized as a skilled and erudite physician. The memory of few men is treasured up by the old pioneers of this part of the county more sacredly than that of their old family physician, Dr.

Butler. The mother of the subject of this sketch was Jane Tournot, of the old family of that name known to Cahokia records for perhaps a century. When he reached the age of fifteen years his father died. His widowed mother subsequently became the wife of Dr. A. H. Illinski. He received a fair business education, attending the schools of the day in Caho kia and ft. Louis, and after wards St. Vincent's College at St. Mary's. This institution of learning was moved, whilst he was a student, to Cape Girardeau; thither he went, but did not complete the prescribed course of study. For a time he pursued farming near Cahokia. He was united in marriage to Miss Julia C. Brackett, daughter of Dr. James Brackett, April 25th, 1853. He commenced mercantile pursuits as a clerk in a dry goods establishment in St. Louis. In 1849 he went to California, making it a trans-continental trip, as he was visiting friends on the Atlantic seaboard immediately before starting for the land of gold. In California he was engaged in a variety of pursuits; as mining, keeping a hotel and livery. Returned in 1853, farmed for a time, and then commenced merchandizing in 1856 in Warren, Hancock county, where he was made post-master. In 1863 he went to Montana, where for about eight months he sold goods. He bought out the lumber yards of General Jarrot, in May, 1876, in which business he is yet engaged, in connection with Nicholas McCracken. Last year their sales amounted to over 4,000,000 feet of lumber.

GEORGE W. DAUSCH.

THE hope of the country is vested in her young men. If they be possessed of energy, good practical business ideas, and are directed by strong common sense then all is well. Belonging to this class no better representative can be found in East St. Louis than the subject of this sketch. He was born here Oct. 2d, 1855, hence is but twenty-six years of age, although occupying various positions of profit and trust. His parents, George and Julia Ann Dausch, came from Germany to this county during the revolution of 1848. His father was by trade a broker. He died here in 1846, leaving a widow, a son and daughter. His wife, who is yet living, subsequently married Louis Weris, by whom she has a large family of children. George W. Dausch attended the East St. Louis public schools, and atterwards, desirous of perfecting himself in a business education, attended Jones' Commercial College, St. Louis, Mo., where he graduated in 1869, at the early age of fourteen years, among, if not, the youngest graduate ever sent forth from that institution. He also attended a German institution, acquiring there a fair education. In 1846 he engaged in the service of the Workingmen's Banking company as a messenger. Step by step he has worked his way up, filling the various positions of book-keeper, teller and cashier, to which position he was chosen in 1878, and which he fills with great credit to himself. In 1880 he was appointed by the City Council of East St. Louis as City Treasurer, a just recognition of his genuine business worth and compliment to his attainments and integrity. He is a member of the order of Knights of Pythias, in whose working and advancement he takes deep interest. Politically, he is an avowed Republican, having cast his first vote for Rutherford B. Hayes, and last for James A. Garfield. He allies himself with the stalwarts, finding in their leader his beau ideal of manhood. Generous almost to a fault; of an eminently social turn of mind, he is recognized as a hale fellow, well met by all who know him. Guided by strict business principles in all his transactions, his future is full of promise. Few men have battled more successfully for position than he, and few are more esteemed by their fellows.

1111

FOURTH WARD HOUSE, CORCOLLINSVILLE & SUMMIT AVE. EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL. M.M.STEPHENS, PROPRIETOR.

3

THE GUERDAN HAT CO.S.E.COR.MARKET & SECOND STR. ST. LOUIS, MO. HATS, CAPS & STRAW GOODS, WHOLESALE & RETAIL.

ERNEST W. WIDER, (DECEASED).

FEW men have been more prominently before the attention of the public in East St. Louis than he whose portrait and autograph appear on this page. Fewer yet have contributed more to promote the general good than he. He may have made mistakes, doubtless did, but they were errors of the head, not of the heart. Many of his public acts may have been prompted by a spirit of rivalry, but most were certainly intended for the promotion of local enterprises. Ernest W. Wider was born on the 7th of May, 1835, at Beerfelden, Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany. He was educated at the University of Heidelberg, served his apprenticeship as a druggist at Erbach, emigrated to America in 1851, and settled in East St. Louis in 1855. His father, Carl Frederick Wider, was born March 23d, 1792. Was for a time chaplain at Reictheldenheim von Kahn. In 1812 was installed as Lutheran preacher at Beerfelden, and in 1820 was installed as Oberpfarrer (or chief priest.) He was married to Louisa Maria Flach, May 24th, 1832. Of this union came the subject of this sketch. In 1856 Ernest W. Wider engaged in the drug business here, for which his education and pronounced ability as a chemist pre-eminently fitted him. In fact he was regarded as among the best in the state. His working laboratory was one of interest, and betokened his enthusiasm in chemical pursuits.

In 1858 he received the appointment as Postmaster for East St. Louis, under Buchanan's administration. The following year he was removed for political reasons, he having identified himself with the republican party, in the advocacy of whose principles he was earnest and euthusiastic. In 1861 those principles having been sustained in the election of Abraham Lincolu to the Presidency, he was again appointed in April of that year, and held the office for a period of eight years. Ever since his advent in East St Louis he has taken an active part in politics. Few republican conventions have been held in which he has not been a conspicuous figure. In state, congressional, district and county conventions he has represented his fellow citizens, and been most persistent in advancing men and measures pleasing to himself. In national politics he was a republican of the most pronounced type-one who delighted in the name of Radical with all the party zeal that the name implied. Every city election found him a worker, usually in the interest of others. The only cleetive office he ever h ld was that of member of the city council, to which he was chosen from the first ward, first in 1876, and re-elected in 1878 and 1880. He was a member of this body during the excited times that East St. Louis polities passed through, and was, by common consent, the recognized leader of the anti-Bowman party. For a time the city had two sets of officers, or, in other words, a dual government, growing out of what was popularly denominated the metropolitan police fight. Since 1867 Mr. Wider had been the champion of the metropolitan police system, decming it to be the interest of the city to have such a system. Throughout it all Mr. Wider acted the part of a man, sincere in his convictions, and determined iu carrying out his policy. He was several times honored by appointments, such as being a delegate to the third annual meeting of the Americau Board of Transportation and Commerce at Chicago in 1875, as Notary Public, by Governor Richard J. Oglesby, and as member of the State Central Republican Committee in 1876. It was his nature to be active, and whatever he took hold of he did it with his might. True to his friends, a man of broad culture, of goodness of heart; his demise was mourned by many. A friend of the poor; he never turned them from his door, but attended to their wants with cheerfulness. Many prescriptions were filled by him, free of charge, when brought to him by those who were needy. He was married to Dora Sikking, March 21st, 1859, by whom he has had four children, only one of whom is living, Miss Emma, a beautiful and accomplished young lady of fifteen. His death, which occurred July 7th, 1881, was a shock to his family and fellow-citizens. In the full vigor of health but a few short hours before, doing business with his accustomed energy, its suddenness created excitement and surprise. He had returned, the night before, from his farm near Pevely, Missouri, quite exhausted. The morning found him asleep in death. The coroner was summoned, and pronounced the cause to have been congestion of the brain. Thus passed from earth one of East St. Louis' most active citizens, when apparently in the full vigor of manhood.

THOMAS GRANEY

WAS born in the county of Kerry, Ireland, September 29, 1839. His father, Edward Graney, a farmer, died when he was but six months of age. He was taken care of by an uncle, Patrick McElligott, also a farmer. During the prevalence of the famine of 1848 throughout Ireland, his uncle and mother, Ellen McElligott, determined on leaving the ill-fated island, and moved to Canada, locating in Guelph, Wellington county, Canada West. Here they remained until 1858, when Thomas Graney enlisted in the 100th, or, as it was popularly known, the Prince of Wales Royal Canadian Regiment, organized for the purpose of going to the East Indies to suppress the war being waged by Nena Sahib. The regiment remained under instruction and drill in England nearly a year, when they were ordered out, and went as far as the heights of Gibraltar, whence they returned to England. As a soldier he stood high in favor, having been one of the thirty chosen from his regiment as a member of the Guard of Honor to the Queen, when she reviewed the troops in Aldershot Camp; was also lance corporal nine months, and lance sergeant eighteen months. He received a good-conduct badge which entitled him to a small pittance extra pay, and a badge for superior sharp-shooting. After three and a-half years' service, he bought his discharge, and in 1865 returned to Canada. In May of the same year he took up his abode in the United States, locating first in Chicago, where he helped in the erection of the Soldiers' Home, thence to Oil City, Pennsylvania, and thence to East St. Louis, where he entered the employ of the O. & M. railway company as blacksmith helper. In this employ he remained until 1874, when he was elected Constable. In 1877 he was elected Justice of the Peace, an office for which he is well fitted, and which he has since held. But one decision made by him among the many cases carried to higher courts has been reversed, and that was on technical grounds. Politically he is a pronounced democrat. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Sheridan, July 4, 1866, by whom he has two children living, Edward John and Ellen. In 1866 a company of Fenians was organized in East St. Louis for the invasion of Canada, in which he was a sergeant. They went as far as Chicago, remained two weeks, and were ordered home. He is at present Assistant Coroner for St. Clair county.

A. M. MEINTS.

WHEN we trace the history of our successful men, and search for the secret of that success, we find as a rule that they were men who were early thrown upon their own resources. A. M. Meints furnishes an apt illustration of this rule. He was born in Hanover, Germany, March 8th, 1844. His father, J. R. Meints, came to America in 1847, leaving his family behind. They followed in 1848, and the same year Mrs. Meints died of cholera in St. Louis. Missouri, so that Mr. Meints was left with two motherless children. Sickness overtook him, and distress to self and family with it. A. M. Meints, the subject of this sketch, when but eight years of age, together with his sister, gathered drift wood from the river to sell, and thus aid in the family support. At the age of nine he obtained employment as a boy in the grocery of H. Household, known as the three mile house on Broadway. Here he remained a year and a half; then was engaged by Edward Beckmann & Bro. two years; next by Rabenbury, with whom he remained a year and a half. During all this time Albert gave his earnings to his father. For two seasons he attended the public night school where he received all the education he ever acquired. In the mean time his father, who was a man of great energy, had saved sufficient means with which to purchase a stock of groceries, which he did by opening a store on Market, between 9th and 10th streets, in the year 1861, taking Albert with him. For five years he remained with his father, during which time he formed habits of industry, economy and honesty, that have ever characterized him, and which have . crowned his labors with success. His father taught him the value of money, and counseled him to save the quarters which he now and then gave him. With the first twenty dollars he succeeded in saving he purchased a gun. Hunting and fishing were his means of recreation.

At the age of twenty-two he left St. Louis, for the first time since his advent there, for a journey any distance from home. Went as far as Fayette, Missouri, where he passed two pleasant weeks in the society of S. Baumann, a former playmate, and returned home, but not to re-engage his services to his father, who although kind, he thought too rigorous in his dealings with him. Seeing an advertisement, Grocery clerk wanted by H. Jackeisch, East St. Louis; he responded and his services were accepted. He entered this service June 30th, 1866; remained in this employ until April 1st, 1868, when having accumulated about sixteen hundred dollars, he commenced business for himself, first in a building owned by Daniel McGowen, a place quite out of the way of trade, yet the only available place he could secure. In 1869 he purchased the lot he now occupies, and built a store-room 22 x 50, which he opened to the trade in September, 1869. His business has constantly increased, compelling him to erect additional buildings, until now he occupies a building with a frontage of seventy-five feet, and even that does not accommodate his trade. Since commencing business for himself he has been fortunate in every step. His real estate speculations have added largely to his wealth, and now he is the possessor of over twenty tenement houses, and three fine farms in St. Louis county, Missouri. August 30th, 1870, he married a most estimable lady, Miss Sophia E. Hauss, of Louisville, Kentucky. Mr. Meints owes his success to strict attention to business. For eight years, whilst he was laboring earnestly to gain a footing in the world, he availed himself of no species of enjoyment. Once comparatively independent he re-engaged with genuine boyish zest in his old sport of hunting, and is known to-day as one of the Nimrods of East St. Louis. In his career we have exemplified, in the truest sense, a self-made man.

AMONG physicians and surgeons of this part of the state, who have attained distinction in their profession, Dr. T. C. Jennings takes rank with the foremost. He was born in Bloomfield, Chatauqua county, New York, May 8th, 1836. His father, Rev. Thomas J. Jennings, was a Methodist preacher. His mother's maiden name was Catharine Ditmars. When he was about six years of age, his father removed to Ohio, and because of failing health changed his vocation to that of farming. After living about four years in the Buckeye state, he removed to Wisconsin. Here, availing himself of the facilities afforded by the state, the subject of this sketch attended West Bend Academy, a school in charge of Dr. A. H. Hayes, a physician and teacher of rare abilities and high attainments. To him, more than any one else, is the doctor indebted for his aspirations in life, and for his determination to become a physician. Taking him as his model, he commenced the study of medicine under his instruction after he had acquired considerable proficiency in the classics, mathematics and natural sciences, preparatory to admission into Rush Medical College at Chicago. In 1856, he entered this institution, from which he graduated February 17, 1858. Returning to Wisconsin, he located in Mayville, where he prosecuted the practice of his profession a year, and in 1860 determined on finding a southern home, he came as far as St. Louis; at the time mutterings were heard all over the south which grew into threats of rebellion. He concluded to wait until the state of affairs had become more settled, and not desiring to resume the practice of medicine until he had found a congenial home, he enlisted himself among the pedagogues of St. Clair county by her thundering feet all along Mason and Dixon's line; his country had become involved in the mighty throes of fratricidal strife: his patriotic heart beat responsive to his country's call for aid, and forsaking the school-room, he promptly offered his services and was accepted as assistant surgeon of the 117th regiment, Illinois Volunteers, November 15th, 1862. With this command he remained until August 5th, 1865, when with the regiment he was discharged with honors. He took part in the Meridian, (Mississippi) the Red River, the Tupelo and Oxford campaigns, (Mississippi) the Price campaign in Missouri, the campaign after General Hood in Middle Tennessee, and in the years 1864 and 1865, in the Mobile campaign. He was engaged in the battles of Fort De Russey and Pleasant Hill, Louisiana, Tupelo, Mississippi, Nashville, Tennessee, and Fort Blakely, Alabama. It is related of him, by his comrades, that his impatience was often such as to impel him to the very front of battle with patriotic cheer to urge on his fellows, when officers in his position were expected to take position in the rear, ready to receive any wounded that might have to be borne from the field of battle. Immediately after the war he located in East St. Louis, where he has ever since prosecuted his life work of practicing his profession. He was united in marriage to Miss Clementine Illinski, daughter of Dr. A. X. Illinski, June 24th, 1867. By this union there have been born four children, three of whom are living, Anna Belle, Clementine and Dio Illinski. Thomas Francis, the taking charge of the school at French Village, where for two years

he successfully engaged in this work. The threatenings of secession had become a dread reality; red battle had stamped third in order of birth, died in childhood. The doctor's pre-eminent fitness for the position caused his friends to single him out as the republican candidate for the legislature from the 49th district in 1878, and most gallantly did he lead on to victory. As a representative, he was active, fearless in his advocacy of the right, gave close and constant attention to the business before the legislature and made an efficient member. In manners and deportment Dr. Jennings is a sociable and agreeable gentleman; as a physician prompt and methodical: and as a man his reputation for integrity of character, and for earnestness of purpose is as wide as the circle of his acquaintance.

313

D. D. ANTHONY.

Among the promising young men of East St. Louis few are more deserving of honorable mention than D. D. Anthony, who was born in Ripley county, Indiana, November 18, 1843. His father, Philip Anthony, was of the good old Puritan stock of New England, a farmer by occupation, and for fifteen years a justice of the peace in his adopted state. His mother, Mary Ann Anthony, was an Ohioan by birth. The subject of this sketch followed farming until the year 1859, when he came to Illinois, locating in Kankakee county. He received a common school education. At the time of the break ing out of the war he returned to Indiana, and on June 16, 1861 volunteered in Co. I, 13th Regiment Indiana Volunteers. Served in the campaign in West Virginia, under General McClellan; then under his successor, General Rosecrans. Was in the various battles and skirmishes throughout West Virginia, among them that at Rich Mountain, Cheat Mountain, Summit and Green Briar. With his command he went to the valley of Virginia and took part in the fight at Winchester, under General Shields In 1862 his regiment was transferred to the army of the Potomac, with quarters at Suffolk, whose siege-at the hands of Longstreet-they gallantly withstood; left Suffolk for Charleston, with General Gillmore, where they took part in the siege of Sumter; thence to Florida; they were then ordered north, to join Butler's fleet at Yorktown, preparatory to ascending James river; took part in the Petershurg fight, where, on the 10th of May, 1863, he was taken prisoner. His prison life, extended as it was over a space of nine months and eighteen days, and divided between various Southern prison pens, is of great interest. First he was taken to Libby prison, at Richmond, where he was kept about a month; thence taken to Andersonville, where he was subjected to the gross neglect and hard usage for which that prison is so noted. He was an eyewitness to the bursting forth of the spring of water in the beaten path within the pen, spoken of by many prisoners, who-famishing with thirst-looked upon it as God's deliverance. After three months he was taken to Savannah, thence to Charleston, under guns hc had himself helped to set months before; thence to Florence, where he suffered terribly. During his four months' imprisonment here he had not to exceed four ounces of salt with his ration of one pint of corn meal per diem, perhaps a half-dozen rations of meat, and a spoonful of molasses per week, during the time. At Goldsborough, North Carolina, he was exchanged for a well-fed Southern soldier, February 28, 1864 Being sick-scarcely able, in fact, to walk at all-he was taken to the hospital on David's Island, New York harbor, where for months he was treated with all the skill of army surgeons. His eyesight was almost gone-so far that its recovery was long thought doubtful. He was discharged from the U.S. service June 14, 1865; returned to Indiana, where he was married to Sarah Belle Payton. April, 1866, by whom he has one child. After marriage he went South to Choctaw county, Alabama, where his wife was engaged in teaching a Freedmen's school for one year. During this time be was appointed by General Pope, commanding the Southern division, as re-constructing officer for registration of voters, administering the so-called "iron-clad oath," &c. Was taken sick, and returned to Indiana, where he remained only six months, returning to Alabama to engage in general merchandizing. In 1870 he was appointed assistant U.S. marshal in the Alabama district, during which service he enumerated the census of Choctaw county. When Alabama became democratic, and it was no longer safe for Northern men to express their sentiments in the South, he returned to Indiana, where he was employed by the Ohio and Mississippi railroad company. After remaining a year in their employ he went to Kansas, where he invested in a stock ranche, which he still owns. After a few months "roughing it," he returned to East St. Louis. where he was engaged in the erection of water works at the National Stock Yards. Here he remained several years as an engineer and water supply superintendent. In December, 1880, he was appointed deputy sheriff of St. Clair county by Frederick Ropiequet, a just recognition of his public services in behalf of the success of the republican party and of his worth as a man. Mr. Anthony is a member of the I. O. O. F., being a P. G , Golden Rule Lodge of E. St. Louis. Politically he is a stalwart, out-spoken, fearless republican. During the last campaign he made some very effective speeches in behalf of republican principles, reciting-as his experience enabled him to do-many instances of cruelty in the South. His republicanism was learned in very early years when his father kept an underground railway station on the Polar Star route from Slavery to Freedom. Efficient as an officer, true to all trusts reposed in him, genuine by nature-Mr. Anthony deserves well of his fellowmen.

JOHN B. SIKKING,

THE present efficient post-master of the city of East St. Louis, was born in Wenterswyke, Holland, August 16th, 1836. His father. John B. Sikking, was a carpenter, and emigrated from the land beyond the sea to America in 1844, locating in the city of St. Louis, Missouri. There were in all seven children in the family, of whom John B. Sikking was the fourth in order of birth. He received a common school education, and became a machinist. For thirteen years he engaged his services to the Ohio and Mississippi railway company. He was appointed post-master under Gen. Grant's administration, in 1869. Had officiated in this capacity for about two years prior, during Johnson's administration, as he served out the term of his predecessor and brother-in-law, E. W. Wider. As post-master he has proved faithful and capable, and has won universal esteem. He was married to Sarah E. Cunningham, a most estimable lady from Obio, on the 24th of December, 1863. Bv this union there are six children. In politics Mr. Sikking is an ardent, outspoken republican, who has the honor of having always been true to his party, and party friends. Takes an active part in both local and national affairs. He and his wife are members of the M. E. church. He is also a member of the Masonic order. As a citizen he is quiet, unassuming, straightforward, and one that cannot be swerved from the path of duty.

RESIDENCE OF CAPT. JOHN TRENDLEY, EAST STLOUIS, ILL.

·

ι

·

·

IDENTIFIED with the interests of East St. Louis for the last fiftyfive years, during which time nothing of public moment has been started but that has had a share of his attention, Capt. John Treudley is looked upon as one of the fathers of the city. To adopt his language, "he wore out in the service as ferryman five horseboats," and the company are now using the twenty-fifth steam ferry boat, whilst he yet lives to take an active interest in the work. He was born in the Black Forest, Germany, June 20, 1804. Came to America in 1817, landing first at Alexandria, Virginia. Two years after he came up the Mississippi from New Orleans, and located here. He was married to Harriett Aberle, a Swiss lady, March 28, 1828, who died March 21, 1869. Capt. Trendley preserves his faculties in a remarkable degree, and delights in living in the past, recounting the incidents of an active and well-spent life. His contributions to the upbuilding of his adopted city have perhaps been more notable than those of any other one man. He is prepared to spend the evening of life in the enjoyment of comforts, the fruitage of a life of economy and industry. As one of the pioneers, a sketch of his life's work will be found in its appropriate place in this work.

Alenick

THE Messick family, as the name indicates, were of German origin. When they first came to America is unknown. That they first settled in Virginia has been fairly established. Joseph W. Messick, the father of the subject of this sketch, and his wife, Sarah Messick, nee Kittinger, were natives of Kentucky. The ancestors of the Kittingers were Pennsylvanians. Joseph B. Messick was born in Maconpin connty, in this state, January 29th, 1847. As a youth he followed the plow, cared for stock, and such other work as is incident to the life of a farmer lad. Here he formed habits of industry and honesty that have ever prompted him in his associations with his fellow-men. Full of hope, he has ever looked on the bright side of life; fond of jokes and joking, his companionship has always been sought. His elementary education, acquired in the rural district school, was supplemented by attendance, during the years 1866 and 1867, at Shmtleff College, Upper Alton. Having thus fitted himself for the work, he engaged in teaching, that universal stepping-stone to the higher professional life-and, as he taught, he studied law. As a teacher, he succeeded, and after his admission to the bar in 1871, continued in the work. He was admitted to practice in Carlinville, and, at first, thought to locate at that point, but, after his school closed, determined on seeking a new field, and did so, locating in East St. Louis. Here he rapidly gained friends, acquired practice, and received recognition as a lawyer of promise. In 1875 he was elected judge of the city court of East St. Louis. As a judge he presided with dignity, and with satisfaction to the bar. Political life possesses a strong attraction for him, hence with each campaign he is found an ardent advocate for his political preferences, both upon the stump and in social conver e. A pronounced and uncompromising republican, his voice and vote were employed to aid in the election of the captain of the age, General Grant, to the Presidency. During the campaigns of 1876 and 1880, he made telling speeches in behalf of republican principles. His patriotism was taught him at his father's fireside When but seventeen years of age, he volunteered as a private in company "I," 144th Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and served until the end of the war. On February 1st, 1881, he was appointed U.S. Deputy Collector Internal Revenue, for the 4th Division, 13th District Illinois. A position for which his attainments well adapt him. The annual collections for the division amount to an aggregate of about a million dollars. As a speaker, Judge Messick is carnest and impressive. Varying his efforts with flashes of wit and sareasm, he does not fail to impress the minds of his hearers. His language, while it is chaste and appropriate, derives additional force from his tall and commanding figure. He has admirable conversational powers, and, with his inexhaustible fund of ancedotes and large amount of good humor, he never fails to amuse and entertain his friends. Physically, he is six feet two inches in height, erect and well-proportioned. Personally, he has fine qualities; generous and frank; he is strongly attached to his friends and preserves that same familiarity that characterized his youth. Tender-hearted and benevolent, he is always ready to assist the needy. In his character he combines those qualities of mind and heart that render him deservedly popular, and secure to him the warm friendship of all who know him.

MAURICE E. TISSIER.

THE able editor of the East St. Louis Herald, was born in Florisant, St. Louis county, Missouri, December 25, 1853. His parents are both living. His father is a grocer by occupation. His mother's maiden name was Mary Formaz. The Tissiers came to America in 1849, from Switzerland. They located first in Wisconsin, thence went to Chicago, and last to St. Louis. Maurice F. Tissier attended the college of the Christian Brothers in 1865 and 1866; then St. Vincent's College, at Cape Girardeau three years, and last St. Vincent's Seminary, in Germantown, Pennsylvania, where he graduated in 1873, after which he returned to St. Louis and commenced commercial life, clerking for his father, who was then in the clothier's trade. On the 18th of August, 1875, he was married to Miss Catharine Myers, of Carondelet. This was notable as having been the first solemn nuptial High Mass wedding in East St. Louis. By this marriage there have been born three children; Louis, who was born on the first anniversary of the wedding day, Mary, and Maurice Nicholas. In 1875 Mr. Tissier went into the grocery business on the Island, where he remained two years, vacating in favor of his father, whose store had been destroyed by the bridge fire in February. In May, 1877, he was appointed city clerk by Mayor Bowman, which position he held until discharged in December. In March of the following year he was reinstated in this position by vote of the city council, and held it two years. His first writing for the press was in 1874, at which time he averred the time would come when he would own and edit a newspaper. In 1878 he started the East St. Louis Herald as an opposition paperthat is, opposition to the Bowman rule in the city. This paper has met the approval of the people, and, being well conducted, is a recognized power in local politics. Mr. Tissier is a member of the Board of Education, in whose work he takes a lively interest. He is a member of the order of Catholic Knights of America, and is at present the recording secretary of his branch, and was a delegate to their last national convention. He was appointed a Notary Public July 4, 1877, by Gov. Cullom, to which position he was re-appointed in 1881. As a business man he is prompt aud energetic; as a citizen, alive to the best interests of his community. A true friend himself, he lacks not for friendship; gentlemanly and courteous in manner, he and his paper, which reflects his sentiments, are growing in popular favor.

Few firms are bolder in the execution of their plans or are possessed of greater courage in experimenting where grand aims are to be attained or much means lost than the Heim Brothers, an engraving of whose buildings adorn this work. Ferdinand Heim, the elder of the brothers, was born in Wolfert, Austria, February 27th, 1830, and came to America in 1851. His father, Wunnibald Heim, a rope-maker and farmer, died in Austria, in 1857. Ferdinand, after reaching this country, located in Utica, New York, where he engaged in his father's occupation of rope-making, in which industry he continued for two years. The great west was at that time the magnet of attraction, so he moved to Dubuque, Iowa, where after a short sojourn he again moved to St. Louis, Missouri, where he pursued his trade until the time of the arrival of his brother, Michael Heim, whereupon they embarked in the dairying industry, which they successfully prosecuted for about five years. They next engaged in the cattle trade, an easy transition from their former pursuit, which they followed about six years. In 1869 they commenced operations as brewers, in which industry they have been emiuently successful, having perhaps the best equipped establishment in the state of Illinois. Every modern improvement, calculated to advance their industry, is at once adopted. At great expense, they have introduced an ice manufacturing machine, which works like a charm. By its aid the pillars and walls of their cellars—if cellars, a large building might be termed—are encased in perpetual ice. A full description of their brewery may be found elsewhere in this work. As illustrative of the magnitude of their trade, it may be cited that they purchase about $3000 worth of revenue stamps per month, and the business is rapidly increasing. Ferdinand Heim was married to Elizabeth Beil, Feb. 15th, 1855, by whom he has three sons, Joseph J., Ferdinand F., and Michael.

FERDINAND HEIM, PRESP. MICHAEL HEIM, SECY. & TREAS. JOS. J. HEIM, VICE PRESP. HEIM'S BREWING COMPANY, EAST ST. LOUIS. ILL.

Michael Heim.

So closely interwoven is the history of Michael Heim with that of his elder brother, Ferdinand—whose biography appears on the opposite page—that it is difficult to write of them separately. He was born in Wolfert, Austria, February 12th, 1839, and came to America in 1854 to join his brother, which he did in St. Louis, Missouri, embarking in different enterprises with him. He was married to Anna Beil in October, 1862, by whom he has two children, Ferdinand and John George by name. His wife is a niece of the wife of his brother, so that the relationship between their children is a pleasant conundrum of his joking brother. He is a member of the order of I. O. O. F., also of the Knights of Honor. The firm of which he is a member have been successful in the prosecution of their business, and far-sighted in its management. It is one of the most popular in East St. Louis, as it deserves to be. Never discouraged, ever hopeful, they press on with energy to accomplish their ends. The destruction of their brewery by fire, a few years ago, daunted them not, but phœnix-like, it was caused to spring from the flames better and larger than before.

A

A MEMBER of the City Council of East St. Louis, was born in Staffordshire, England, October 22d, 1846. His father, who bore the same name, was a worker in iron. He made the first wrought iron twine for blasting purposes ever invented. He came to America in 1858, and at once made his way to East St. Louis via Springfield and Alton, Illinois. It was during the prevalence of high waters of that year. Several bridges had been washed away, so that passengers on the C. and A. railroad had to be transferred to waiting cars across streams which the subject of this sketch swam in making his way here. As a result the family lost all their baggage and found themselves on the dyke at East St. Louis quite destitute. They next went to Urbana or Freeburg, as it is now called, where they pursued the work of blacksmithing. Returning to East St. Louis they engaged their services to the rolling mills. At present Levi Baugh, Jr., is Superintendent of the East St. Louis Rendering Works, in which he is a stockholder, and which position he has held since 1873. Politically he is a conservative democrat. Is not active in politics, caring more for business. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias, of which order he is a charter member, and at present Master of Exchequer; also of the Knights of Honor. He was married to Margaret M. Mayerhofer, July 26, 1866, by whom he has had four children, three of whom are living. He is a man of excellent social qualities, fine business tact, and sound judgment.

THE present efficient Police Magistrate of the city of East St. Louis, was born in Madison county, Indiana, August 24th, 1836. His father, John Renshaw, was a farmer. His mother's maiden name was Malinda Cissna. They were married in Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1820. In the family were two sons and four daughters. When John was about eight years of age his parents moved to Belleville, this county. His earlier years were passed in discharging the duties of a farmer lad and attending school. At about the age of ten years his father took him in' company, on a trip to Nauvoo, which at the time was in the height of Mormon glory. The trip was made by ox-team. The stone oxen which supported an altar in the temple struck his boyish fancy, and left an impression upon his memory not to be effaced. At Belleville his school-fellows were Charles P. Johnson, Wesley Merritt, John B. Hay, James Hay and William Orr, several of whom have attained to considerable distinction in life. In 1856 the Captain left Belleville to make his home in Warrenton, Mississippi, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits, in partnership with a cousin. Here he remained until the breaking out of the war. Warrenton was in Jefferson Davis' precinct, and in 1860 the Captain served as a judge in the presidential election. Being a northern or union democrat, his first vote for President, which was cast at this election, was given for the "Little Giant," Stephen A. Douglas. When war-clouds grew threatening, and the call for troops in behalf of southern independence was sent forth in the spring of 1861, he quietly took his departure for his old home at Belleville, where he worked for a time at his trade, that of a plasterer. In 1864 he volunteered in the 149th Regiment Illinois Volunteers, and was at once elected Captaiu of Co. C. This regiment was marched through Georgia in the wake of Sherman's army, in their memorable march to the sea, engaged in garrisoning railroads. Halts were made at Atlanta, Chattanooga, Dalton and Cleveland, where supplies were to be guarded. After the war was practically ended, the Captain's company was detailed to aid in enforcing measures of reconstruction, in which service they continued until discharged, June 27th, 1866, at Alton.

He returned home to Belleville, but soon after concluded to locate in East St. Louis, which he did in 1868. Here he went into the coal business, iu which he was quite successful. In 1872 he was appointed Chief of Police, which position he has retained ever since. As Chief of Police he has had much to contend withhas witnessed threatened riots, which, but for his courage and promptitude, might have resulted in much bloodshed. His name is a terror to evil-doers. Perhaps no man deserves as much credit for breaking up prize-fighting in this vicinity as he. In the face of great opposition, and when begged by friends not to take the step, he swore out the first warrants against prize-fighters, boarded the boat Continental, on which the roughs were taking passage to the head of the island, and by the aid of a few friends checked the fray. The step was a bold one, and boldly was it executed. Prosecutions followed, which were successful. He was married to Caroline Trendley, daughter of Capt. John Trendley of the Wiggins' Ferry Company, May 13, 1873. By this marriage there have been born three children : Henry T., John W., and Eugene. Politically, the Captain is a democrat. Has held the position of school treasurer for a term of three years, during which service he had to give a bond for $100,000. So faithfully has he discharged his duties as Chief of Police; so unrelenting has been his warfare against crooks and evil-doers; so earnest his endeavors to maintain the peace, that he is continued in the position for which nature seems especially to have fitted him.

P. H. STACK.

EAST ST. LOUIS is eminently a cosmopolitan city. Here are gathered representatives of all nationalities. Unlike many cities of like size, no one nation is represented among her people in numerical strength sufficient to control her politics or local government. Among those hailing from the Emerald Isle no one deserves more prominent mention, or is held in higher esteem for his talents and worth as a citizen and man, than he whose name heads this article. A recognized leader among not only his people, but among the people generally, P. H. Stack is an honored name. He was born in Tullihinell, Barrylongford parish, Kerry county, Ireland, May 11, 1828. His father was a farmer of the better class, being a landed proprietor; but reverses came, as come they will, in this instance, growing out of the famine which visited his native island in 1849, by which he lost much property. Gathering together the fragments of his wealth, he determined on seeking a new home across the ocean, and accordingly landed in New York in February, 1849. He brought with him a large family,-eleven in all, to which one was added here, and one was left behind in Ireland, a daughter who had married there. Of this family, six were boys, and eight were girls. Garrett Stack, for that was his name, bought a farm of two hundred and forty acres in Canada. A few years after, he returned to the United States, and died in New York in 1857. P. H. Stack did not remain with his father, but struck out for himself, locating first in Cleveland, Ohio, where he laid the foundation for a liberal education with which he is blessed. From here he went to Nashville, Tennessee, where he became the student of Bishop Miles, then to Carondelet, where he studied with Bishop Kendrick. His wanderings were those of a student; his ambition was to prepare himself for the priesthood. During intermissions from study he engaged his services in several capacities to railroad companies at times, as foreman on works or as sub-contractor. He built three miles of the Chicago and Alton railroad. This business carried him from place to place; thus we find him at Chicago, Natchez, Memphis and at other places. At Chicago he was married to Margaret Sellis, on the 4th of November, 1855. By this marriage he has four children-Johanna, now the wife of Frank Healey, bridge collector; Garrett J., assistant cashier O. & M. R. R.; John J. student in Jones' commercial college, St. Louis, and Margaret F. The breaking out of the war found him located in Natchez, Mississipi, where he was foreman and paymaster on leveeing. From thence he came north, and was employed by the Missouri & Pacific railroad company, but bushwhackers along the route determined him on finding a safer place; hence he came to East St. Louis.

where he has since resided. Here he has kept a boarding-house, and attended to his growing real estate interests. He owns ten or twelve residences here and a fine farm of one hundred and forty acres near Carlyle, Clinton county, Illinois, together with much other property, the accumulation of a life of energy and pluck. He has held various positions to which his fellow citizens have chosen him, as justice of the peace, for a period of eight years; school director, one term; member of the board of health, one term. He was at one time a defeated candidate for the mayoralty; he is politically a democrat, opposed to monopolies and all grabbing schemes, and refuses to become the tool of corporations. He and his family are members of the Roman Catholic church.

HENRY D. O'BRIEN.

THE subject of this sketch was born in Calais, Maine, on the 21st day of January, 1843, and is the son of Wetmore O'Brien and Sarah M., nee Smith.

When seven years of age his parents moved to Detroit, Michigan, where he attended school. In 1855 they moved to Minneapolis, Minnesota. After remaining here a short time, he returned to Detroit, where he learned the watch-making and jeweler's trade. Thence he went to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to attend school, then to his home in Minneapolis.

. At the breaking out of the war he enlisted in the 1st regiment, Minnesota Volunteer Infantry. Was wounded at the battle of Gettysburg in the head, hand and side, and while carrying the regimental flag, the staff was shot from his hands, At the battle of Deep Bottom, or Strawberry plains, which was fought on Sunday, Angust 14th, 1864, he was, whilst making a charge, shot through the right shoulder and lung. After being absent a short time he returned to the regiment, and was present on the field when Lee surrendered. He passed through nearly all the battles in which the army of the Potomac was engaged, and served in every position from that of private to Lieut. Colonel. At the close of the war he was Major of the regiment, and Adjutant General of Morrow's Division, Army of the Tennessee.

Returning to Minnesota, he received the appointment as postmaster of East Minneapolis from President Johnson, and at the expiration of his commission was re-appointed by President Grant, and held the position for nearly seven years. Through the advice of physicians he came to St. Louis in 1873, for treatment of the wound in his shoulder, but notwithstanding the efforts of the best surgeons in the city, is still troubled with it. Mr. O Brien has been editor and publisher of the Gazette for the past four years, and previous to that served in a similar capacity on the Press. He is a republican in politics, a liberal in his religious views, a member of the Masonic order, and the Knights of Pythias, having been Past Chancellor in the latter order, and for several years has been a member of the G. A. R. He was married in 1867 to Miss Emma S. Sinclair. She died in February, 1873. He is still a widower.

FARM RESIDENCE OF CLEMENT BEVELDT, ESO. GENTREVILLE ROAD, EAST ST.LOUIS, ILL.

OLD HOME & PRESENT FARM RESIDENCE OF AMBROSE JONES, SR. (Sec. 17, T.2. N.R.9.W, EAST STLOUIS PR. ST CLAIR CO. ILL.

FRENCH VILLAGE PRECINCT.

IS precinct was settled by Cahokians about th<sup>e</sup> year 1800, and the first settlement was known as Little French Village. In 1837 it contained only fifteen or twenty families, but it now comprises at least one hundred and twenty families, nearly all of whom are of French descent. It lies in the north-western part of the county, and is bounded on the north by the precincts of East St. Louis and Caseyville; on the east by Caseyville and O'Fallon; on the south by Belleville and Cahokia; on the west by Cahokia and East St. Louis, and contains about 7,700 acres. It extends nearly a mile into the bluff, which comprises about one-fifth of the precinct. There are nearly seven hundred acres of the bottom land that are included in the ponds or lakes. In extreme dry seasons, a portion of this is susceptible of cultivation, and is the best land for corn that the Bottoms contain. These lakes are fed, during high water, from the Mississippi through the bayous, and are, therefore, well supplied with an abundance of the finny tribe, such as buffalo, cat, bass, etc. It is said that in an early day the wild swans, ducks, and geese were so numerous on these lakes, that it was almost impossible for the people living near them to sleep nights, on account of the quacking and confusion caused by the wild fowls. One old gentleman gives an account of killing twenty-two ducks at one shot. and that it was no uncommon occurrence for a good sportsman to kill and bring home in one day, a French cart-load of wild game.

Like the rest of the American Bottom, the most of the precinct has very meagre drainage. An attempt was made about ten years ago to drain it by means of a big ditch cut through from Spring Lake to Big Lake, and thence into Prairie du Pont creek. The ditch was dug, but it proved of little or no value on account of a lack of fall. Schoenberger creek heads in the bluff and winds around for several miles in the north-eastern part of the precinct, but the people here say that it is so contrary that it runs up stream instead of down.

The first farm was improved by Laurence Schoenberger, who had come to this country in the year 1789. He settled here about the year 1800, and entered his first land on section twenty-five in 1814. He became the largest land-owner in this part of the county; his possessions extended from section twenty-five east, to some distance into the bluff. Laurence Pensoneau settled here about the same time as the above, and located on section twenty-three. His wife's name was Odele Calliot. They brought up quite a family of children, one of whom. Stephen, is now living near the old homestead, and is one of the oldest citizens. He has been twice married. His first wife's name was Adeliue Belange, who died in 1848, leaving two children. Mr. Pensoneau afterwards married Miss Barbara Eckman, who is still living. There have been six children born from this union, the most of whom are of mature age. Among other old settlers are, August Trotier, settled on section twenty-six; Nicholas Tourjeant, located on the same section; Joseph Boneau, settled on the Surveys; Baptiste Chartrand, located on section twenty-six; Laurence Gunville, same section; Louis Roulard, Peter Garah, Baptiste Graundine, Baptiste Gainard and Jerry Sullivan, all located on section twenty-three; Joseph Lepage and Joseph Valentine, on the Surveys. The above persons settled in the precinct about the same time, to wit: 1800.

The first mill was built by John Derosch, about 1820, and was owned by Joseph Boneau. It was situated on the old Vincennes state road, now rock-road, and opposite Mrs. Amelia Boneau's present brick residence. It was a two-story frame building, with one run of stone, and was propelled by oxen on the old tread-wheel principle of action. The mill has long since disappeared, and a flourishing orchard is now growing on the old site. The first store was built in 1838, and was situated on what is now the rock-road, not far from the mill. It was a frame building, two stories, and owned and operated by Glode C. Belange.

Joseph Boneau established the first blacksmith shop in 1838. It was a log structure, 14x14, and situated on Mr. Boneau's land in the Surveys, on the Belleville rock-road. The first post-office was establi-hed in 1849, on the rock-road, and was called French Village. The first postmaster was John Penn. Glode C. Belange kept the first hotel, and run it in connection with his store.

For the benefit of future generations, we will state here that all there is, or ever has been, of what is known as French Village, (not referring to the precinct) is, in fact, no village at all, but a few houses scattered along for some distance on the Belleville rock-road, and has been, for euphony or convenience, called a village. The most of these are farm houses, interspersed with two or three small shops or country business houses.

The first church was built by the Catholic denomination in 1842, and situated on section twenty-six. It is a frame building, and was constructed under the supervision of Rev. Peter Deturlin, who was its first pastor. The cemetery is situated on the same lot, just east of the church. It is kept in excellent order, as everything in or about it show the marks of thoughtful and careful attention. The first school-house was built in 1829, and situated on the old Vincennes state road, in section twenty-five. John Robinson was the first teacher. A fine brick school-house was built in 1869, and situated in section twenty-six, near the Catholic church. The cost of construction was $2500, and it is so arranged that two teachers are employed, and is conveniently operated as a semi-graded school.

There are two coal mines in operation in the precinct at this writing. The first was owned and operated by Joseph Boneau, in an early day, and was situated about a half mile south of French Village. Mr. Boneau was also the first to introduce blooded stock into this part of the county, which was in 1832. Among the early justices of the peace, we find the names of Lambert Boneau, Amanial Trotier and Deno Pellitier. The former was probably the first justice in the precinct.

In early days the people underwent many privations and hardships, but were contented and happy; indeed, to converse with the old settlers, one would feel convinced that their pleasures of long ago, exceeded those of to-day. They manufactured everything they wore from cap to shoes. The women wore home-made dresses, colored with sumac bark, and the bonnet was simply a blue handkerchief wrapped carelessly around the head. Before the church was built in this precinct, the people attended church services in Cahokia. Their mode of conveyance was the French cart, usually drawn by oxen, but a few of the more aristocratic were supplied with horses. The cart would take the premium as a first-class curiosity, if placed on exhibition at the present time. It was wholly constructed of wood, the wheels not even being bound with a tire. The axle, where it entered the hub, was six inches in diameter, while the hub was about six feet in circumference. The body or bed was a frame resting on the axle and pole, with six standards placed upright in the frame, and interwoven, wicker fashion, with hazel brush or willows. The horses were harnessed to pull from the haunches instead of the shoulders; while the oxen were yoked at the head as we see in pictures of the olden times. The greasing process was as unique as the vehicle itself. This was done with a bountiful supply of soft-soap.

Land Entries.—The first land entered was by Furgeson & Trotier, September 27th, 1814, in section 26, south-east quarter, containing one hundred and sixty acres. Gabriel Marlot entered September 29th, 1814, all of section 24, being six hundred and forty acres. October 1st, 1814, John Hendricks entered one hundred and sixty acres of the north-east quarter of section 36. J. L. Schoneberger, December 23d, 1814, entered the north-west quarter in section 25, being one hundred and sixty acres. One hundred and fifty-five acres in the north-east quarter of section 21, was entered by Louis Jarvis the 24th of December, 1814. Transportation Facilities.—One of the best wagon roads in the state passes through this precinct, and is known as the rock road. It extends from Belleville to East St. Louis, and is in excellent condition, being macadamized with lime stone. The Illinois and St. Louis railroad cuts across the south-western part of the precinct, and takes a north-westerly direction, extending along near the line to East St. Louis. The South Eastern railway passes entirely through the precinct from the north-west to the south-east, entering on section 21, and passes out near the south-east corner of section 36.

Situated on the rock road, after leaving the bluff going west, for perhaps three-fourths of a mile, is what is called French Village proper, and has already been described. At this writing there are the following business houses scattered along the road: A frame two-story hotel, kept by John Borgmeyr; one general store, with H. Kaune as proprietor; two blacksmith shops, one of which carries on carriage making in connection with the shop, and is conducted by Louis Fetterer. The other is owned and operated by Augustus Kehr. George Hollinger keeps a boot and shoe shop, and there are also three saloons sprinkled along the line. About half a mile north of the rock road, and situated on what is known as the Bluff road, is quite an extensive malt house. It was erected in 1867, by Thomas Frick, who conducted it for about three years. when it passed into the hands of H. A. Steinnecke, the present proprietor. It is three stories, including basement, and is constructed of brick with stone foundation. Its size on the ground is 40x100 feet, and cost $8000. It is supplied with two tanks, the larger of which is capable of holding three hundred bushels of barley, and the smaller, one hundred and fifty bushels. Its capacity is 15,000 bushels of malt per annum, and gives employment to four hands. The annual value of manufactured material is $15,000. The business is under the immediate supervision of August Frank, foreman. An ice house belongs to the same firm, and is constructed in the bluff near the malt-building. It is about ten feet high by ten in width, and extends into the bluff upwards of twenty feet, and will store thirty tons of ice. A small saloon is situated a little north of the malt house. There is but one physician in the precinct, Dr. Chas. H. Christoffe. James Lepage and Nicholas Boul are the present justices of the peace.

The people of French Village are an industrious and hard-working class, and if they could succeed in obtaining adequate drainage to their farms, they have lands so fertile that they could challenge the world to compete with them in their productions.

CAHOKIA PRECINCT.

2.4

IS is indeed historic ground, its settlement beginning just about mid way between the land ing of Columbus upon American shores and the present time. It is situated in the western part of the county, and bounded on the north by the precincts of East St. Louis and French Village, on the east by French Village and Belleville, on the south by Centerville, and west by Prairie du Pont and Mississippi river, and contains upwards of 22,000 acres of rich alluvial soil of the American Bottom, except a portion of the south and south-east, which extends into the bluff for some distance. The drainage of the bottom land is necessarily poor, on account of being so nearly on a plane with the Mississippi. The few streams empty into the sloughs or Big Lake, and thence through a large artificial ditch to Prairie du Pont creek, and into the Mississippi. It is said, and is probably true, that the American Bottoms can never have an adequate system of drainage without lowering the bed of the Mississippi. The drainage question of the Bottoms has for many years been an unsolved problem, and will probably remain so until some freak of nature shall settle the vexed question.

The soil of the Bottoms is not surpassed in fertility anywhere on the globe. That it is inexhaustible has been proved by over a century and a half's tillage. This is largely due to the deposits of silt left after the overflowing of the Bottoms by the river. There have been several of these inundations within the last century, some of which have proved very disastrous to the villages and productions of the farmers. These occur usually in June, when the snow and ice of the mountain regions melt and flow back to the gulf. The first great rise in the river of which history gives any account, occurred in 1770; and in 1772 the whole bottom was under water. Again, in 1784, a deep inundation took place. Cahokia was several feet under water, and the inhabitants fled to the bluff south-east of the village for safety during the flood. A considerable inundation occurred in 1826, but no very great damage was done. The deepest and most destructive overflow was in 1844. Large steamers plied from bluff to bluff. Villages, orchards, fences and nearly every improvement made was swallowed up and swept away by this flood. The villages of Cahokia, Prairie du Pont and Illinoistown (now East St. Louis), were almost destroyed, from the effects of which the former two have never recovered. In 1851 and 1858 there were very destructive floods, doing much damage to real and personal property. The dikes at East St. Louis and the government dikes midway between the above city and East Carondelet have been auxiliary in preserving what is left of Cahokia village.

Many years ago, Cahokia creek emptied into the river just north of the village; its old bed is plainly visible to this day. Peck says, in his Gazetteer, that "Cahokia creek formerly passed the village of Cahokia and entered the Mississippi further down, but a mischievous Frenchman, having a pique against the village, cut a channel from the creek to the river, and formed its present outlet." But there is uo evidence to sustain the theory that the creek ever emptied into the river below the village. No sign of a channel or creek-bed can be discovered south of the village, and the oldest inhabitants informed us that there had been no history or tradition among them to sustain Mr. Peck's theory. It is true that a Frenchman turned the course of the stream at a point about midway between Cabokia and East St. Louis. This was done by cutting a ditch through a rise of ground that lay between the creek and a slough not far from the river. The stream wore its way through the high ground into the depression or slough, and thence into the river. This was its course until the construction of the Pittsburg dike at East St. Louis, when its course was diverted to its present mouth, just north of the dike.

Portions of the Bottom, especially along the creeks, Cahokia and Prairie du Pont, were formerly covered with heavy timber, such as black walnut, cottonwood, elm, oak and other varieties; but the most of it has been cleared away to give room to civilization. Many ancient mounds were, and a few may yet be seen near the borders of these creeks. In these as in all others, when excavated, are found human bones, shells and pottery that were deposited at some period by a pre-historic race.

Wheat is the chief product of the farmers, though much corn is cultivated, and with excellent success. There are many fine orchards, but mainly confined to apples. Cabbage and other vegetables are cultivated quite extensively and marketed at St. Louis.

The exact date of the first settlement at Cahokia seems to be an unsettled question among historians. According to Peck, the village of Cahokia was founded in 1683, by members of La [Salle's party who were left behind on his return to France. Reynolds says, "That in the year 1686, Tonti, then chief and captain-general, in conducting the war against the British and Iroquois, heard of his friend La Salle being in the West Indies, and descended to the month of the Mississippi in search of him, but returned without him. On the route he established the post of Arkansas, and I presume the settlements of Illinois, Peoria, Cahokia, and Kaskaskia may date their existence from the same period, 1686, or before." Another author says, "Cahokia, first called Notre Dame des Kahokias, from good authority appears to have been a trading post and mission station earlier than Kaskaskia, and that both were settled by missionaries as early and perhaps before 1690." He further says, "That it is stated on good authority that a missionary known as Father Pinnet, founded Cahokia, and was successful in converting many of the Indians to Christianity." Let it be as it may, not far from two centuries ago a few zealous French missionaries established themselves among the savage Kahokians for the pure purpose of teaching them the doctrines of Christianity. These formed the nucleus from which Cahokia grew and became the first settlement on the Mississippi.

The Indian traders soon followed the missionaries, and built stone houses, and commenced traffic with the natives. The emigration excitement grew in intensity, and in a few years Cahokia became a place of thrift and civilization by a white population mostly emigrants from Canada. Their style of living at that early period was but little better than that of the natives; but about 1700 they commenced to cultivate the rich bottom land around the village, and to erect buildings suitable for white habitation. A church was built by the missionaries, and located on the very spot where the church now stands; indeed, it is said that a part of the old structure composes a portion of the frame of the present house. They had no organized government until the establishment of the Company of the West. Reynolds in his pioneer history says "that the small number of inhabitants, and their destitution of wealth, made a government entirely useless. The leaders of the first French settlements of Illinois were men of talent, and for the most part of classic education, while the common classes were innocent. honest and kind, and obedient to their commanders or leaders. They had no itching for wealth, and if provided with a scanty supply of clothes, corn and deer's tallow, or meat to eat, they would sing and dance, and were in fact happy, whether they were in the snows of the Rocky Mountains or in the dancing saloons of Quebec.

"The community thus constituted needed little or no government: in fact they had none until the Company of the West was established in the country."

The early settlements of these people were usually in the form of small, compact, patriarchal villages, living as one great family assembled around their old men and patriarchs. The houses were plain and uniform in style. Usually each homestead was surrounded by its own separate inclosure of a rude picket fence. The lots of Cahokia were laid out uniform in size, being 300 feet square. For many years, on account of mutual protection from the Indians, the people did not live on the lands they cultivated, but had their abode in the village, and went forth from day to day to perform their farm labor. In order that the reader may more fully understand the customs and rights of the early settlers of Cahokia, we quote from Judge Breese's decision, found in the Report of 27 Illinois, which relates to the inhabitants of Cahokia and the Cahokia Commons:

"The villagers were granted two tracts of land at convenient distances, for 'common fields' and 'commons.' The former was a tract of laud containing several hundr ed acres, enclosed under one fence, each family possessing an individual interest in a portion of the field bounded from the rest. These lands were owned in fee simple, and could be conveyed like any other landed property. The 'commons' was situated outside and around the 'common fields.' It was a tract of land granted to the town for wood, pasturage, etc. In this each had a right in common, not an individual right." This tract sometimes embraced several thousand acres.

By an Act of Congress dated March 3d, 1791, a tract of land including the villages of Cahokia and Prairie du Pont, and used by the inhabitants as a common, was appropriated to their use as such, until otherwise disposed of by law. It will be seen from the above, that the limits of the commons were left undefined by the Act of Congress of 1791. This, and subsequent questions relating thereto, induced congress to appoint commissioners to inquire into and adjust the same. The following is a synopsis of their report, which was made Dec. 3, 1809:

On examination, they find that a tract of land four leagues square was granted to said villagers with title, etc., as above described; but as the limits of the commons were left undefined by the act of 1791, it became a subject of compromise between the villagers and the acting governor (St. Clair) of the territory, about 1797, and by their consent two tracts, in all 5,400 acres, were ordered to be laid off for this purpose. Accordingly, Gov. St. Clair appointed a surveyor, and the land was located.

On examination the commissioners discovered that the surveys were inaccurately made, that of Cahokia in particular. Instead of 4,000 acres, it ought to have contained 20,000 acres. An account of the situation and circumstances of the såid tracts not accommodating the inhabitants, the board thought it best to permit a new location to be made for commons for each of the said villages, on lands more conveniently situated for them. The action of the commissioners was acceptable both to the people and congress. Accordingly congress, on the 1st of March, 1810, passed an act confirming the decisions made by the board of commissioners. The lands included in the common fields retain their former boundaries, the board not having them under consideration. And thus stands the status of the commons at this time.

Prior to 1841 the commons of Cahokia were used by the inhabitants only for the common purpose of pasturage, fuel, etc. Here was a large and valuable tract of land, from which the villagers were reaping but a small advantage. Accordingly they appealed to the state to legalize by act of the legislature the leasing of the common, or so much as should be deemed expedient, the proceeds to be devoted to a common school fund for the use of the villagers.

An act was passed, in accordance with their expressed desire, dated Feb. 17th, 1841. This act empowers the supervisor elected by the inhabitants of the village, to cause lots to be surveyed out of the commons, and to lease the same for a term not to exceed one hundred years. From this fund school-houses have been built, teachers employed, and all other expenses defrayed appertaining to a free school system. They do not draw any of the state fund, nor do they need it, as the income from the commons is more than adequate to their wants.

Families moving from the village to the common fields, or elsewhere, forfeit their rights to this common fund. On the other hand, parties moving into the village, and becoming citizens, in accordance with the customs of the inhabitants, acquire an equal right to the benefits of said fund, the same as those who may have always been natives of the village.

The first house built in the precinct outside of Cahokia village was erected about 1834, by Louis Pensoneau. It was a small log structure, a story and a half in height, and situated near where the Illinois and St. Louis railroad crosses the highway leading to Papstown; and a mile and a half south-east of Jarrot's station. The old stone chimney still stands as a landmark to inform the passerby that this is the oldest relic of its kind belonging to the common fields of Cahokia.

From the date of the foregoing, and what has already been stated with regard to the customs of the first settlers, relative to their clustering together in villages for mutual protection, etc., it will readily be seen that this chapter's history is confined almost entirely to the ancient.

VILLAGE OF CAHOKIA.

That it is nearly two centuries old, and the first built on the banks of the Father of Waters, as well as the first in the Mississippi valley, has already been established. The village lies entirely within what is known as survey No. 759, which was originally a part of the commons. The plat is very nearly in the form of the outline of the boundaries of the State of New York. The larger portion of the site of the old village is now contained in the river slough, west of the present village. At the time of its settlement it was a perfect wilderness. Heavy timber of oak, elm, sycamore, and walnut covered the entire tract. New-comers were hailed with warmth, and the custom was to measure them off 300 feet square for a house. garden and stable-lot. This of course had to be cleared of the timber before it could be occupied. Parties were appointed by the citizens to perform the work of laying off the lots. The chain was constructed from strips of paw-paw bark, knotted together to the desired length. Early deeds were made by giving boundaries from point to point, naming the persons who lived adjacent to the property surveyed. In fact, lots were not numbered until about 1850, when the people of the village, for the convenience of making deeds and recording the same, employed the county surveyor to make a plat of the town and number the lots. No changes, however, were made in the former location and direction of the streets. The deeds all read : "Three hundred feet square, more or less." Prior to 1850, but few deeds were made, and then rarely ever put on record. The villagers frequently bought or traded property, but it was merely a verbal swap, after the manner of trading chattels. The custom was the same relative to exchanging, or selling arpents of land in the common fields. At that time there was no bickering, no feelings of distrust between neighbors, their word was equivalent to their bond. The same spirit prevailed toward one another in their farm labors. Their arpents or farms lay side by side, and any friendly assistance that was needed by a neighbor, was always cheerfully given. This spirit of unselfishness will be better understood when it is explained that these farms were, in the main, but eleven and sixty-seven hundredths rods wide, and from three to four miles in length. No division fence separated them, they lay side by side, enclosed by one fence, in one common field; and yet, for more than a hundred years, they cultivated their arpents in harmony, and without the aid of the courts to settle any difficulties. For several years, however, they have been pretty well Americanized, and suits at law are no rarity among the Cahokians.

In speaking of Cahokia as it was in 1765, Captain Pitman, who was officially employed by Great Britain to survey the forts and villages in the English territories, after it had passed from the French dominion, says: "It is long and straggling, being threefourths of a mile from one end to the other. It contains forty-five dwellings, and a church near its centre. The situation is not well chosen, as in the floods it is generally overflowed two or three feet. This was the first settlement on the Mississippi. The land was purchased of the savages by a few Canadians, some of whom married women, of the Kaoquias nation, and others brought wives from Canada, and then resided there, leaving their children to succeed them. The inhabitants of the place depend more on hunting and their Indian trade, than on agriculture. They have plenty of poultry and good stocks of horned cattle. What is called the fort is a small house standing in the centre of the village. It differs nothing from the other houses, except being one of the poorest. It was formerly closed with high palisades, but these were torn down and burnt."

The old fort has long since disappeared; no vestige of it can now be seen. The church still stands, and is probably the oldest house of worship west of the Alleghany mountains. The village, instead of being "near the side of the Mississippi," is nearly a mile to the east of it. This change was mainly wrought by the general flood of 1844.

Early Settlers.—From the fact of the antiquity of Cahokia, but few of the names of the earliest settlers have been preserved. From the early marriage records, we are able to glean a few names, but nothing relating to their character or calling; they could be of but little interest to the reader. We shall, therefore, only mention those who have figured more prominently in the history of the village.

Among the early immigrants was the famous Mrs. La Compt, who came to Cahokia about the year 1770. She was of French birth, the family name being La Flamme. She was born at St. Joseph, on Lake Michigan, in 1734. She was a widow when she married M. La Compt of Cahokia, from which marriage proceeded one of the largest French families in the state. She was a great favorite among the friendly Indians, and through their aid and information, she succeeded in saving the early settlers from many a bloody massacre at the hands of the hostile savages. After the death of her second husband, La Compt, she married the celebrated Thomas Brady, who was also a citizen of Cahokia. She outlived Brady, and died in Cahokia in 1843, at the advanced age of one hundred and nine years.

Thomas Brady, third husband of Mrs. La Compt, was a native of Pennsylvania, and came to Cahokia in a very early day. He was a brave and daring man, as many of his exploits in history attest. He was among the first to offer his services in the war of the Revolution. As early as 1777 he raised a small company of men from the villages of Cahokia and Prairie du Pont, marched through the wilderness to the fort at St. Joseph, Michigan, then called the Cow Pens, and captured the fort with the loss of but one man. After the organization of St. Clair county by Gov. St. Clair, in 1790, known as a part of the Northwest Territory, he was appointed the first sheriff of the county. He died in Cahokia several years afterward, lamented by many warm friends.

Another pioneer and patriot was Charles Gratiot, who established an Indian trading store in Cahokia as early as 1774. He carried on an extensive trade with the Indians, so that his business operations embraced several of the present western States, but his grand depot for supplies was located at Cahokia for many years. Although educated in England, at the commencement of the Revolution he embarked his all in the cause. He lived to see his country free, when he retired to private life. In 1781 he married a Miss Cheauteau, a sister of Pierre Cheauteau, of St. Louis. Members of this family were the founders of St. Louis, which occurred in 1764. Mr. Gratiot lived to a good old age, and died in St. Louis in 1817.

Capt. McCarty was one of the old pioneers of the village. He headed a company of the French in the Revolution, and did good service at the conquest of Fort Sackville and Vincennes, and performed his duty to the satisfaction of his commanders. History does not give any account of when he died.

One of the most prominent settlers of Cahokia was Nicholas Jarrot. He probably did more to build up and perpetuate the village than any of his day. He was a native of France, but the troubles of that country in 1790 induced him to emigrate to this country. He reached Cahokia in 1794, and prepared to make it his residence for life. His means were limited when he came to this country, but through his indomitable energy and perseverance he soon acquired a large fortune. At an early day he was elected major in a battalion of the St. Clair militia, and was known until his death as Major Jarrot. His first operations were as a partial Indian trader; he also kept a retail store of goods suitable to the market of the village. He afterwards became possessed of a large landed estate, wrought out by his own energy and foresight; also, at one time, owned the greater portion of the Wiggin's Ferry Landing, opposite St. Louis. His life was an eventful one, the history of which would fill a large volume. Major Jarrot brought up a large and respectable family, one of whom is still living in the village of Cahokia-Mrs. Ortance Brackett, at the advanced age of eightythree years. Mrs. Brackett is a native of the village, and the oldest person in Cahokia. She is very active, notwithstanding her extreme age. Two of her sons are living at the old homestead with her, Nicholas McCracken and James Brackett. Another son, George Brackett, attorney-at-law, resides in St. Louis, and a daughter, wife of Jno. O. Butler, lives in East St. Louis.

Major Jarrot died in Cahokia in 1823, lamented by a large circle of friends. His remains repose in the old cemetery, just under the shadow of the ancient church building.

Among other pioneers are Jean Francais Perry, who settled in the village in 1792; John de Moulin, in 1790; John Hays, in 1793; John Hay, same date; Julien Dubuque, founder of Dubuque, Iowa, in 1783; William Arundel, the same date; and William Morrison, in 1800. Isaac Darnielle was the first resident lawyer, and came to Cahokia in 1794. He was the second profess ed lawyer that emigrated to Illinois, John Rice Jones being the first. Jones also practiced law in Cahokia, hut resided at Kaskaskia.

Dr. Lyle was probably the first regular physician who practiced medicine in the village. He came to Cahokia in an early day, and was considered a very good physician, but was unpopular on account of his exceeding ill-nature.

Gov. Reynolds first tried the mettle of his legal how and spear in Cahokia in 1814. How well he succeeded every citizen of Illinois is abundantly able to answer.

In 1809 Samuel D. Davidson, a lawyer, and native of Kentucky, settled in the village. His talent did not run in the direction of the law, and he abandoned the practice and taught school. He was the first teacher, and taught in one of the rooms of Maj. Jarrot's house, and was paid $400 a year. This salary was paid from the private purse of Maj. Jarrot. Davidson entered the military service in 1812. Some time after the war he left the village, and drifted to parts unknown.

Among other historic events of this ancient village was the assassination of the Napoleonic Indian chief, Pontiac. He was stabbed by a Peoria Indian in the streets of Cahokia in the year 1765, and was buried within the limits of the village. The spot where tradition says he was buried is still pointed out by the oldest citizens. The place indicated is about sixty feet south-east of the lots owned and occupied by Dr. Illinski, upon which is situated the oldest house in the village. His body was subsequently buried in St. Louis by St. Auge, then commandant of that place, who had been a warm friend of the Indian chieftain.

The following inventory gives some interesting information relative to the articles in use among the early French at Cahokia and the prices which they commanded, It will be seen that they are possessed of many of the conveniences, and even the luxuries, of life; while the sums obtained for the goods, at a forced sale, show that there must have been considerable ready money in the community.

Inventory of the goods and chattels of J. J. R. Hanson, sold in pursuance of an order of the court of committees of Cahôs, made on the 20th of November, 1778, for the sum of 2,232 livres in silver, due to the minor children Panerasse, payable in May next, and to satisfy a judgment in favor of Jean B. De Corte, payable in March next. Sale took place at Cahôs, November 23, 1778, three days after the order was given:

A tract of land, 2 arpents front (this may have been

| A tract of land, 2 arpents front (this may have been                   |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 200 acres)                                                             |
| 1 plow with a plow share 41 " 8 20                                     |
| 1 oxcart101 " 20 20                                                    |
| 1 milch cow and calf                                                   |
| 1 cow and yearling calf                                                |
| 2 yearling calves                                                      |
| 9 tablecloths                                                          |
| 6 napkins                                                              |
| 1 pair of boots of Russia leather                                      |
| 1 feather bed                                                          |
| 8 carthen pots 1 60                                                    |
| 9 tin plates 5 40                                                      |
|                                                                        |
| I dozen nens and a cock                                                |
| 2 china dishes 1 80                                                    |
| 1 dozen small china plates 2 80                                        |
| 1 table deal 1 00                                                      |
| 5 cups 1 40                                                            |
| 2 copper chandeliers                                                   |
| 1 frying pan 1 20                                                      |
| 1 large iron kettle 5 20                                               |
| 1 small iron kettle 2 80                                               |
| 1 set of shovel, tongs and poker                                       |
| 2 old cauldrons 1 10                                                   |
| 1 old harness 16 20                                                    |
| 1 cupboard                                                             |
| 13 spoons and 2 ladles 1 85                                            |
| 13 forks                                                               |
| 6 knives 1 20                                                          |
| 1 couch, feather bed and 2 straw pillows 27 60                         |
| 3 bed sheets of Russia linen                                           |
| 1 bed spread, 5ft. wide, and 1, 2 <sup>1</sup> / <sub>2</sub> ft. wide |
| 1 coffee mill                                                          |
| 3 tubs                                                                 |
|                                                                        |
|                                                                        |
|                                                                        |
| 1 gun                                                                  |
| 1 silver mounted pistol                                                |
| 1 saddle 6 20                                                          |
| 65 empty bottles                                                       |
| 1 empty barrel                                                         |
| 2 cotton shirts 3 86                                                   |
| 1 pair cotton pants 1 50                                               |
| 1 pair of velveteen pants 5 15                                         |
| 1 red silk handkerchief                                                |
| 1 scarlet waistcoat                                                    |
| 1 cocked hat                                                           |
| Gunpowder, per lb 1 40                                                 |
| 1 yoke of steers, 3 years old                                          |
| 1 carrot of tobacco, 1 00                                              |
| 4 sailing crafts                                                       |
|                                                                        |

$928 40

The above is a translation of one of the 1,300 French salebills which were turned over to W. St. Clair, and are now on file in the court house. The Hanson sale was, however a forced one and may therefore, not be a proper criterion of prices. We shall quote now, prices obtained at an administrator's sale held in February, 1791.

Household and kitchen articles:—China plates, $6.40 per dozen; cream pots, 80c.; soap dish and cover, $7.20; 30 picture frames at 80c. each; coffee kettle, $2.20; common cupboard, (larder) $9.50; milk-board, $14.50; pewter plates, 80c. each; tin pans, 60c. each; silver candlesticks, $9.00 each; coffee mill, $4.40; sad irons, 90c. each; iron stove, $4.20; a fine mirror, $28.50; 1 clock, $55.00; 1 complete bed and bedstead, $76.00; 1 folding table, $4.00; chairs, common, $1.40; 1 candle mould, 50c.; 1 grand sideboard, $151.00.

CITY HALL & CENTRAL MARKET, EAST ST.LOUIS.

OLD COURT HOUSE, AT CAHOKIA ST. CLAIR CO.ILL.

MAYORS OFFICE & POLICE HEAD QUARTERS, EASTST. LOUIS - OFFICE OF DOCTOR O.C. BATES, O'FALLONST. CLAIRCO.ILL.

هپ ۲

Tools:—An axe, new, $2.95; old axe, used, 70c.; pickaxes, $1.90; hatchets, $2.10; iron to tonst bread on, $1.90; a scythe, $2.95; a saw, $1.90; 1 hammer, 85c.; 1 faucet, $1.40.

Farming articles and stock :—1 plow, complete, \$14,80; saddle and bidde, \$17.40; horse cart, \$10.00; ox cart, \$19.00; 1 chain and rigging, \$81.90; 1 set of harness, \$18.40; a  $1\frac{1}{2}$  bushel measure, iron hoops, \$1.60; 1 wheat fan, \$22.00; 17 large hogs, averaging \$10.10; 27 small hogs, averaging \$2.00 each; 30 head of cattle of various ages brought \$644,55; prices of cows (10 were sold) range between \$23.00 and \$38.00 each; bulls, and there were 18 of them, brought frcm \$6.60 to 26.00 each; steers broken to the yoke, were sold for \$79.00 per pair; there was only one horse sold, it brought \$54.00; chickens sold for \$5.00 and \$6.00 per dozen; corn brought 19c. per bushel; corn meal, \$c. per lb.; wheat brought 42c.; lard, of which 95 lbs. were sold, is quoted at 19c. per lb., an enormous price; 9 bushels of peas are sold at 98c. per bushel; and  $47\frac{1}{4}$  bushels of wheat, sown in antumn previous, bringing \$1.30 per bushel, or \$1.65 per acre.

Louison, Etienne and Louis Pensoneau, three brothers, emigrated from Canada, and settled in Cahokia in 1798. They all married in the village, and stood high in the estimation of their neighbors. Louis conducted the first ferry established between Cahokia and St. Louis. The landing was situated west of the village, and a little below where Cahokia creek formerly emptied into the river. It must be remembered that at that time, Cahokia was the metropolis and that St. Louis was but a young and sparsely settled village. The oldest person now living in Cahokia, Mrs. Brackett, informed us that she can remember well when the village of Cahokia contained twenty-four stores, and upwards of three thousand inhabitants, and that the people of St. Louis made it their principal trading place. Verily, time works wonders in this world of ours; only little more than half a century has passed, and St Louis is the sixth city in the United States, while Cahokia contains not more than three hundred inhabitants.

The first mill constructed in Cahokia was built by Nicholas Boismenue about 1771. It was a horse grist mill, of the primitive style, and located on the village lot now owned by Dr. Illinski, just south of his dwelling. Some years after the construction of the mill, a man by the name of Peyrot was engaged in building a fence close by the mill. In sinking a post hole he struck a bucket that had been buried there. On examining it, what was his surprise to find it contained $800 in Spanish gold sovereigns. There were none to claim it, neither could the oldest inhabitant throw any light upon the circumstance of the hidden treasure.

There are three houses yet standing in the village, that are built after the old, primitive French style: Dr. Illinski's dwelling, the church, and the old court-house. These are the oldest houses in the village, and probably the oldest in the west. They are constructed from cedar and walnut logs, placed upright with a space of a few inches between, which is filled in with a kind of cement or mortar. The inside is plastered with cement, and the outside is weather-boarded. The dwelling-houses are supplied with a verandah, extending around the entire building. It is said among the villagers that Dr. Illinski's house is the oldest, and was built about the year 1700. The church is not far from the above in antiquity. It has a small cupola and bell. The earthquake of 1811 so rocked the church that the bell gave forth several distinct taps.

The old court-house was built in 1795, or thereabouts in that year Randolph County was formed by taking off the sonthern portion of St. Clair, and at which time Cahokia became the county seat. In 1814, the county seat was removed to Belleville. Many years ago, the village extended more than half a mile west of the court-house; but at this time, the 'old court," as it is called, occupies the extreme north-western part of the village proper. For several years past, it has been utilized for a saloon. The first marriage on record in Cahokia, was performed by L. Gibault, missionary, on the 10th of June, 1790. The contracting parties were Jean Baptiste Chartran, and Marie Rocheleau, widow of Michael Girardin.

The first brick house built in the Mississippi Valley, except one at Kaskaskia, was constructed by Nicholas Jarrot, and situated in the eastern limits of Cahokia village. We are informed that it was commenced prior to 1800, and completed in 1805. It is a two-story building with attic, and 38 by 50 feet on the ground. It rests on timbers of black walnut with about two feet face, imbedded several feet under ground. These timbers rest on beds of charcoal, which are separated from the earth beneath by a layer of sand and gravel. The partition walls of the house are sixteen inches thick, and composed of solid brick masonry. The outer walls are eighteen inches in thickness, and are also solid brick. The hall of this mansion is sixteen feet in width, and all of the belongings are of the quaint. aristocratic style of long ago. It has withstood the elements of three-quarters of a century. The earthquake of 1811, only shook down two of the chimneys, and produced two small seams in the rear wall. In the flood of 1844, water stood ten feet in depth around the house; ingress to the building could only be effected through the upper portion of the high door by means of a canoe. It has withstood four other floods besides the one mentioned, but none were so disastrous to the country and village as this.

It may sound strange, but this house was completed sometime before a brick building was constructed in St. Louis. It is to-day a good house, and looks as though it might last for centuries:

The first school-house in the village was built in 1841, and was situated on the site of the present brick school-house, near the center of the village. It was destroyed by fire some years ago, and the present house erected in its place.

There are two schools in the village, the white and the colored. The former is a fine brick house, and cost about $5000. But one teacher is employed, and there is an attendance of from 25 to 30 pupils. The latter is a small frame, and cost $800. The average attendance is about 12 pupils.

Cemeteries.—Cahokia has two cemeteries, but only one of them is now used for burial purposes, as the old one has been full these many years. Indeed, it is said that the bodies were buried one above another, until the villagers were obliged to abandon it for lack of depth. With the exception of the one at Kaskaskia, it is the oldest in the West. It is situated around and in the rear of the old church, after the custom of the Catholics. The new cemetery is situated about half a mile east of the village, and contains nearly two acres; or, in French parlance, is one arpent wide, and two in length. It has been occupied about thirty-seven years.

The ground was donated to the Cahokians for burial purposes, by Colonel Vital Jarrot, son of Nicholas Jarrot. Mr. Nicholas Mc-Cracken has in his possession a head-stone that he ploughed to the surface, in his field a little south of the Jarrot homestead, that bore the date of 1770. It was cut from a soft lime-stone, and was in size about twenty inches in length, by eight in width, and two in thickness. The following is a fac-simile of the inscription:

329

42

It is said that the "Aut" is the French abbreviation for August. We present it, and will leave it for future generations to decipher.*

The present business of Cahokia is almost a dead letter. That which was once the metropolis of the West, now contains scarcely three hundred inhabit ints, about one-fourth of whom are negroes. Not even a post-office exists in the village. The following is the extent of the business :---

Groceries.—Peter Godin ; Mrs. Melina Ebermann.

Wagon-maker and Blacksmith.-Peter Nadeau.

Saloon.-Peter Godin.

Physicians.-A. X. Illinski; W. H. Renois.

Supervisor. - Clovis Saucey.

Trustees .- Christian Gerber ; W. H. Renois ; Louis Lobenhofer.

Land Entries.—The following is a list of the first land entered in the Precinct:—Adelaid Perry, March 22, 1815, entered 85.15 acres in sec. 19. Josiah Blakely entered April 26th 1815, the south half of sec. 3, containing 320 acres. On the 27th of April, 1815, Nicholas Jarrot entered 140.38 acres on sec. 3. The heirs of J. B-Jourdin and F. Langloise entered May 1st, 1815, 36.81 acres on sec. 18; December 23d, 1816, George Blair entered the north-east quarter of sec. 15, containing 160 acres. Philip Creamer, Nov. 15, 1817, entered 83.91 acres in sec. 24.

Cahokia Precinct is well supplied with railroads. Four roads

* Many other interesting facts, pertaining to the early history of Cahokia' may be found in the Pioneer and Civil chapters and history of the Catholic church in the former pages of this volume.

pass through a portion of its territory. The Illinois and St. Louis, and the Cairo Short Line on the north and east, and the East St. Louis and East Carondelet, and the Narrow Gauge on the west.

The Narrow Gauge runs for some distance beyond Cahokia with a third rail, ou the track of the East St. Louis and East Carondelet railway.

CENTERVILLE STATION.

This is a small way station, situated on the Cairo Short Line railroad, and about midway between the northern and southern boundaries of Cahokia Precinct. It contains but six houses, all farm houses except two, one of which is a small country store kept by Louis Plouder, who is also justice of the peace, and county commissioner. It has a post-office with Andrew Touchette as postmaster. The French Catholic church stands about a quarter of a mile north of the station. It was built in 1863, and cost about $4000. The first officiating priest was Father Douterligne.

PITTSBURG.

Pittsburg is situated on the bluff, in the extreme eastern portion of the precinct, in sec. 3. It was established in 1836, and at one time had a population of upwards of 200 inhabitants, mostly coal miners. Coal was obtained here by drifting into the bluff, where in places it cropped out to the surface. As many as seven drifts have been in operation at one time, and from twenty to thirty cars of coal mined in one day; but for several years the mines have been exhausted and abandoned. At this writing the place contains about seventy persons, all miners, who are now employed in adjacent mines.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

.

WAS born in St. Clair county, November 15th, 1843, near what was called Big Lake by Americans, the Grand Mare by the more poetic French, and which, since the introduction of railroads and drainage of many lakes, has taken the name of Centerville Station. His father, Andrew Touchette, was born in Cahokia in the year 1812. His mother, whose maiden name was Sophia Dashney, was born at Portage, Missouri. The father was in his time a great hunter and trapper, and also followed farming. Baptiste Touchette was married to Judith Besson, March 1st, 1861, by Squire Edward Ploudre. He followed shipping produce from East St. Louis to Chicago and New Orleans, during the years 1864, '65 and '66, then farmed until 1874, when he opened a stock of merchandize adapted to rural wants at Centerville Station, which business he followed for three years, whereupon he resumed farming, in which he is still engaged. In 1878 he was chosen a Justice of the Peace by his fellow-citizens, a position he yet holds. In politics he is a democrat, and cast his first vote for Gen. George B. McClellan for President. He is the father of five children: Ursula, Baptiste, Jr., Camille, Judith and Mary. In his father's family were five brothers, chiefly engaged in agricultural pursuits in the American Bottom. Squire Touchette is progressive in spirit, determined in the prosecution of his aims, and possessed of excellent qualities of head and heart. Was raised a Catholic in faith. He is devoted to his family, and labors faithfully in their interest. Few men are more respected in the community in which he lives, and the judgment of few is oftener appealed to by neighbors than that of Baptiste Touchette.

BAPTISTE TOUCHETTE

Ostance Truckett

PERHAPS there are no families having representatives yet living in Cahokia, deserving more honorable historical mention than the ancestors of the subject of this sketch. Among the early settlers they were foremost in every enterprise, and contributed no little to making the Cahokia of old a center of trade, a village of attraction. Robert McCracken, the father, came here from Kaskaskia, where he had been a distiller, in 1826 Here he followed the peaceful avocation of a farmer, and married Ortance Jarrot, who was born in Cahokia May 29th, 1799, and now at the age of more than fourscore years can read large print and sew without spectacles. Her portrait adorns the head of this page. Her family history is largely interwoven with that of the village in which she lives, and may be found in its appropriate place. Her mother, in turn, Julia Jarrot, wife of Nicholas Jarrot, a prominent character in early days, died in 1875, having attained the remarkable age of ninetyseven years. Nicholas McCracken, named for his grandfather, attended school in company with Judge William H. Snyder, in Belleville, during the years 1837 and 1838. Thence he sought employment in Edwardsville, Madison county, and found it at the hands of E. M. West, for whom he clerked in a store. In 1834 he changed his location by going to what was then known as Illinoistown, which was, at the time, the name of the post-office as well, (now East St. Louis,) where he engaged his services to Jarrot &

Carr, who kept a stock of merchandise near the landing of the Wiggins' ferry company. Changed places again shortly thereafter, entering the employ of David F. Brigham, with whom he remained until the year 1844, the year remarkable for the big flood, which completely destroyed the store by washing it away. He thereupon returned to his old home in Cahokia, where he followed farming until the breaking out of the gold fever in 1850, when, in company with seven others, he made his way to the western slopes, which they reached in ninety-four days' travel after leaving the Missouri river. After three years' life in the gold fields he returned via the Nicaragua route to New York city. What is remarkable, is the fact, that although there were eight hundred persons aboard the vessel which carried them, and absolutely hundreds were losing their lives by other vessels, not a life was lost en route Returning to Cahokia he followed farming until 1857, when he opened a mercantile establishment, which business he followed until 1876, when he retired from active pursuits, although his nature scarce permits him to live in idleness. He pays more or less attention to the lumber interests of the firm, McCracken & Butler. He has one full and two half sisters and three half brothers, his mother having married Mr. Brackett. Politically he affiliates with the democratic party. Is a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

WAS born February 3d, 1817, in Wollhynia, a part of Poland that was annexed to Russia during the tripartite theft made by Russia, Austria and Prussia, in 1833. He received a classical education in the Gymnasium at Krzensieniec, where he remained five years. At this institution the study of the Latin, Greek, French, Russian, German and Polish languages, mathematics, and the natural sciences were obligatory. The school was maintained on the high pressure principle-studies were crowded too rapidly one after the other-youths were expected to accomplish the work of adults. Those who possessed strong constitutions stood the ordeal, whilst others failed. The doctor stood well in his classes. Prompted by patriotism, at the age of fourteen he joined the insurgent army as a laneer. After the capture of Warsaw the command to which he was attached retreated to Galicia, a part of Austria, for refuge, where they remained about a year, when in 1834 a peremptory order was issued exiling all insurgents either to Russia or France. After a start was made, each one selecting one or the other of these countries to be his future abode-the order was changed, America being substituted for France. At the time of the issuance of the order the subject of this sketch was confined in a prison at Olmutz, where he lay for six weeks without knowing why or wherefore. He believes that a mistake had been made, the authorities intending the incarceration and punishment of an older brother Anthony Illinski, who was a leader amongst the insurgent soldiers, and as such was thought to merit greater punishment than simply to be exiled. Upon being liberated he chose America as his future home, and reached Castle Garden, New York city, March 28th, 1834. His brother, for whom he was made to suffer a brief imprisonment, made good his escape, and true to his military instincts joined the French in the Algerian war, then served as a Turk, joining the regular army of that people. The love of Poland, as a dear dream yet lingered with him, hence he obtained leave of absence from his command and joined Kossuth in his vain endeavor to redeem his fair land. He was every inch a soldier; and life presented no charm for him, so that no sooner were Kossuth's hopes crushed, and his armies disbanded, than he joined the Turks again, becoming a general in their armies. In the memorable charge of Balaklava he received a wound from which he soon after died in 1856. The doctor, once in America, cast about him for something to do, and after a year's wanderings brought up in Havana, the capital city of the Queen of the Antilles, where he obtained employment in the government hospital. This employment engendered in him a taste for the practice of medicine and surgery, and eagerly did he pursue its study. From Havana he came to St. Louis, Missouri, where he entered the newly opened medical school known as McDowell's College, and graduated in the first class sent forth from that famed institution. It is believed that but one other member of the class (Dr. Frazier) now survives. Immediately after graduation the doctor commenced the practice of his profession in the then thriving village of Cahokia, where he has since remained with the exception of a three years' sojourn in California, from 1849 to 1852. Here he combined with the practice of his profession merchan lizing and keeping a public house. At Cahokia his practice has always been extensive, reaching over a wide scope of country, embracing that part of St. Clair county known as the American Bottom. His professional skill has received full recognition, and his services have been much sought. He was married to Mrs. Jane Butler in August, 1843, by whom he had two children—daughters. She died in 1852 He was mar-ried to Virginia Black in August 19th, 1870, by whom he has three children living. Politically the doctor is a democrat. He voted for every democratic presidential candidate since the time of Harrison. He is much interested in bee culture, in which business he excels. Active, energetic, possessed of a strong constitution and great will power, he hesitates in no undertaking calculated to benefit himself or his fellows. Social, generous-hearted, scholarly in his attainments, his society is courted by men of letters, and enjoyed by all.

LOUIS PLOUDRE,

AT present a member of the board of county commissioners, was born in Cahokia, Sept. 22d, 1846. His ancestry are of Canadian French extraction, and were among the early settlers of St. Clair county. His father, Calvert Ploudre, was born in the St. Francis district of the Three Rivers, Canada, came to this county about 1840, where he died April 7th, 1880, at the age of sixty-seven years. His father's brothers, Edward and Peter, both came with him here. One of them is now living in St. Paul, Minn., whilst the other is among the dead. His mother, whose maiden name was Catharine Paridy, was a daughter of Julia Paridy, nee Lepance, who was born in Cahokia in 1783, and died there Sept. 25th, 1869, at the age of cighty-six years. When her people came to Cahokia we have no means of knowing. The Paridys, of whom there are numerous representatives in this county, came about the year 1812, just preceding the breaking out of the war. They too were Canadians. His parents were married during the year 1839. His mother died, October 11th, 1866. He received a common school education, such as was afforded thirty years ago in the rural districts. Although meagre he has made the best possible use of it, having read liberally and built well upon the foundation laid in the old school-room. On the twenty-fifth of April, 1865, he was united in the bonds of wedlock, to Elmira Geurard, the Rev. Father Azbell officiating. By this union there have been six children born, five of whom are living. His wife was born in St Joseph, Mo. Her parents were likewise Canadian French, her father having lived in Montreal, where he followed carpentering and building for a livelihood. Their children are named respectively, Mary Elmira, Clementine Josephine, Louis Theodore, Esther Elizabeth, Lovina Curtis and Emily Lothe. Louis Ploudre followed farming, but his talents have led his fellow-citizens to repeatedly place him in office. Was chosen road supervisor in 1868-9 and 70; constable in 1869, which office he held but eight months, upon being elected as Justice of the Peace. which position he has held continuously since. He has been chosen as deputy Assessor for nine years in succession. Was elected in 1879 as County Commissioner. Owing to some irregularities in the count his competitor was at first declared elected by a majority of fourteen, and served for several months until a recount established Louis' rights to the position by a majority of forty votes, this too when his politics were at variance to those of a majority throughout the county. He has served his neighbors, too, as township Trustee for a period of six years. In each and every office he has held, he has spared no pains to do the work set before him to the best of his ability. His efforts in behalf of a thorough drainage of the American Bottom which he believes ought, and will be, the garden spot of the great city of St. Louis, have been cordially seconded, and he entertains strong hopes of accomplishing, by the co-operation of enterprising men, his aim in this direction. As a commissioner he has proved himself, prudent, painstaking and competent. Politically he is an active republican, and has served as a member of the republican central county committee for a period of eight years. His first presidential vote was cast for the soldier General, U. S. Grant. As a business man he has been active and persevering. He engaged in merchandizing in 1879, followed it for a year, and sold out to re-engage in the same calling again in 1878. At present he is the proprietor of the store and gardens at Centerville station. He adheres to the Catholic faith. Esteemed of all his neighbors, thoroughly alive to the best interests of his county, his is a future bright with promise.

LEBANON PRECINT.

─────────∲ ∲+-∲ -{S==----

indicated on the map, the main body of the precinct of Lebanon is nearly square, being five miles wide and six miles long, with a strip one and onehalf miles in width, from the east line, west to Silver creek, and contains in all about thirty-four sections. It occupies portions of four congressional townships, the greater part lying in Town 2 N., Ranges 6 and 7 W. It is situated in the north-castern part of the county; to the north Madison county, to the east Sunmerfield precinct, to the south Mascoutah and Shiloh. and to the west O'Fallon. Silver creek enters near the northeastern corner of the precinct, and meandering in a southerly direction it passes through the whole territory. This stream and its tributaries drain the lands and furnish an abundant supply of water for other purposes. The general surface is a rolling prairie. The bottom lands along Silver creek, in many places, are very low, and in the rainy seasons it overflows and thus prevents the cultivation of this rich soil. In the bottoms and along the various water courses there are narrow belts of timber, embracing the varieties that grow in this latitude. The soil compares well with the richest and most productive of the uplands in this county, and is particularly adapted to the growing of wheat, vegetables, and truits of all kinds, which yield abundantly. The cultivation of fruits and vegetables is being rapidly introduced, and its proximity to St. Louis markets, renders this a very desirable location for those wishing to engage in this delightful pursuit.

EARLY SETTLERS.

There will always attach an interest to the history of the pioneer families of the west, which can never properly belong to others who came at a later date, as they have laid the foundation of our social and material status, and coming generations can only modify and develop that which was by their bravery, energy and perseverance at first established. By their strong arms the forests were felled, the tangled undergrowth cleared away, the stubborn glebe broken, and the primitive cabin, school-house and church erected. To this class of pioneers the Bradsby family belonged, and to them is properly due the honor of making the first settlement in what is now Lebanon precinct. Early in the spring of 1804, William H. Bradsby, the oldest son, and two other young men came from Kentucky, and located on Silver creek, about three miles north of the present site of Lebanon, where they made an improvement and raised a crop. In the fall of the same year the elder Bradsby brought the balauce of the family from Kentucky and located them on the farm, where he continued to reside. This settlement was seven or eight miles in advance of the other inhabitants. Reynolds, in his Pioneer history, says: "The Bradsby family were brave and energetic pioneers. They possessed good talents, and were fearless and intrepid. They were firm and decisive when they took a stand; and were also moral and correct, and made good citizens. The old sire taught school in various neighborhoods. He had a school, in the year 1806, in the American Bottom, almost west of the present Collinsville, and the year after he taught another in the Turkey Hill settlement" His sons, William H., and James, were in the ranging service and made good soldiers. Wm. H. Bradsby became a physician, and practiced in this locality for some time. In 1814, he was elected from St. Clair county, a member of the territorial legislature. He subsequently became a resident of Washington county, Illinois, and first resided at Old Covington. Here he held a number of offices, in the early history of the county, and when the county seat was moved to Nashville, he changed his residence to that place, where he soon afterwards died. Some of the descendants of this family are still living in St. Clair county.

Thomas Higgins was a native of Barren county, Ky. He was a relative of the Bradsbys, and came to Illinois in 1807, and settled near them in this precinct. Higgins was of a muscular and compact build, medium in height, strong and active. He possessed a quick and discerning judgment, and was without fear. In 1814 he was one of the party of eleven men, under the command of Lieutenant John Journey, stationed at Hill's Fort, about eight miles south-west of the present Greenville. Early on the morning of the 21st of August, signs of Indians were discovered near the fort, and the company started on the trail. They had proceeded but a short distance when they were in an ambuscade of a large party. At the first fire their commander, Journey, and three men fell, and the remainder, all but Higgins, retreated to the fort. He stopped as he said, "to have another pull at the red skins,' and, taking deliberate aim, he brought one of their number to the ground, and wheeled his horse to leave the scene, when the familiar voice of Burgess hailed him, "Tom, don't leave me." He halted, dismounted and attempted to raise him on his horse, when the animal took fright and ran away. Higgins then directed Burgess to limp off as best he could, and by crawling through the grass he reached the fort in safety, while the former loaded his gun and remained behind to protect him against the pursuing Indians. When Burgess had crawled beyond the reach of the enemy, Higgins took another route, which led by a clump of timber. At this point he was confronted by three savages, when he changed his course in the direction of a small ravine, for shelter, and in the effort discovered, for the first time, that he was wounded in the leg. The largest and most powerful of the Indians pursued him closely, and lodged a ball in his thigh. He fell, but as quickly arose, only to draw the fire of the other two, and again fell wounded. The sayages now advanced upon him with upraised tomahawks and scalping knives, but as he presented his gun first at one, then at another, from his place in the ravine, each wavered in his purpose. Finally, supposing that Higgins' guu was empty, neither party having had time to reload, they rushed forward with a yell, and one of their number was shot down. At this the others raised a war-whoop and rushed upon the wounded Higgins, and a hand to hand conflict ensued. Darting at him with their knives time and again they inflicted many ghastly flesh wounds, which bled profusely. One of the savages threw his tomahawk with such precision as to scver his ear and lay bare his skull, knocking him down. They now rushed upon him, but he kicked them off, and grasping one of their spears thrust at him, was raised up by it, and quickly seizing his gun, by a powerful blow crushed the skull of one, but broke his rifle. His remaining antagonist still kept up the fight, making thrusts with his knife at the bleeding and exhausted Higgins, which he warded off with his broken gun. This desperate engagement was in plain view of the fort, and the cowardly rangers refrained from giving him aid, until a Mrs. Pursely, residing at the fort, no longer able to see so brave a man contend unaided for his life, seized a gun, and mounting a brave horse, started to his rescue. At this the men took courage and hastened along. The Indian observing them, fled. Higgins, being nearly hacked to pieces, fainted from loss of blood, and was carried to the fort, where his comrades cut two balls from his flesh; others remaining. For weeks his life was despaired of, but by tender nursing he recovered, badly crippled. This was undoubtedly the most desperate singlehanded combat with Indians ever fought on the soil of Illinois. Mr. Higgins received a full pension, and pursued farming in Fayette county, whence he moved, and at one time was door-keeper of one of the houses of the General Assembly at Vandalia. He raised a large family, and died in 1829.*

It is said by the oldest residents that the Journeys lived in this vicinity at an early date. They were genuine, resolute pioneers. They were active men in the ranging service and great Indian fighters. Among this class also belongs the Sheltons,—Thomas and Josiah Shelton. They were brothers, and lived here prior to 1810. Julius and Pleasant Nichols, brothers, from Kentucky, settled one and a half miles south-east of the present Lebanon, as early as 1807. They had large families. Samuel and George M'Donald, settled just south of Lebanon about the same date. It was not far from this date that Wiley Lovings, David, Ezekiel, Isaac and William Smith, brothers; the Downings and Dunnavans located along Silver creek, near the Bradsby settlement.

Austin Lyons, John Titus and John Shaves, negro slaves, who had been brought here and freed by Governor Edwards, settled and made improvements in the same neighborhood. Robert McMahon located about two miles north-east of the present site of Lebanon, probably as early as 1810, where he cultivated a large plantation, and subsequently moved near Troy in Madison county, where he resided until his death. He emigrated from Kentucky and settled at New Design the spring of 1795. In December of the same year, his family was attacked by four Indians, in the day time, and his wife and four children were killed, and he and his two small daughters taken prisoners. The weather was cold and severe, and the prisoners being on foot, suffered much from cold.

* This story is told by Reynolds, in his Pioneer History, p. 321.

The second night the party encamped above the present site of Lebanon, on a small branch of Silver creek. McMahon was tied down on his back, and most of his clothing taken off and placed under the Indians to prevent him from escaping. That night it snowed and was very cold, but McMahon had resolved to escape, rather than be carried to the Indian town and, perhaps, burned at the stake. In the night when all were asleep, he quietly loosened the cords that bound his hands and feet. As he was about to rise, one of the large Indians raised his head and looked around, but not noticing him, again laid down, when McMahon arose and walked quietly from the camp. Without shoes and scarcely any clothing, he traveled through the snow, in the direction of New Design. He reached there after the settlers had buried his wife and children, and while they were assembled at the fort of James Lemen, sen., holding a religious meeting. All were surprised at the return of McMahon, and as he sat by the fireside and related the story of the murder, to which he was an eye-witness, and his escape, the scene was at once affecting and sorrowful. His friends informed him that all his family that were killed, had been buried in one grave, to which he answered-" They were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not separated." His daughters were afterwards ransomed, and McMahon was again married, and lived a long and eventful life.

There were no doubt several other families within the limits now embracing Lebanon precinct, prior to 1812, but at this late period we are unable to give their names. All of their number have gone to the narrow house appointed for all the living, and the tomb which received their worn frames, received also the host of recollections, anecdotes, and reminiscences which was of almost priceless value. Hence we can give only a few of the more prominent settlers of that early day.

Just after the war of 1812, Simon Lindley settled on the west side of Silver creek, near the Madison county line. He was a native of North Carolina, and emigrated from Kentucky to this state, and first settled in what is now Bond county. He had a family of three sons and four daughters, viz., John, Joseph, Simon, Mary, Sarah, Anna, and Elizabeth. Mr. Lindley and his wife were nearly fifty years old when they located here, and their children were well grown. He was a well-educated man, and a pioneer Baptist preacher, and surveyor. About 1820 he moved north and settled in what is now Sangamon county, where he resided until his death. His son John was a ranger in the war of 1812. The Lindleys of this family were also early residents of Madison county, where they left a large posterity.

In the fall of 1814, Edmond and Whitfield Townsend, natives of North Carolina, came from Tennessee, and located in the northern part of the precinct. Edmond reared three children—Thomas, John and Nancy, but they have left no descendants. Whitfield had eight children born to him, seven of whom grew up, viz., Alfred, Adeline, Elizabeth, Edmond, Nancy, Whitfield, and William. Elizabeth, Edmond, Whitfield and William are living.

Here it is proper to mention the names of those who entered land within the boundaries of this precinct in 1814, as taken from the county records. This may also show the names of some who were early settlers here In town, 2 N., R. 6 W., we find the following: Jesse B. Thomas, N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  sec. 6, 320 acres, Dec. 26; William Brazel, S. E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  sec. 6, 160 acres, Sept. 10; William H. Bradsby, N. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$ sec. 7, 192 acres, Dec. 7; Jacob Tetrick, S. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$  sec. 7, 190 acres, Sept. 9; Abraham Baker, S. E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  and S. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$  sec. 19, 350 acres, Sept. 15; Henry White, S. E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  sec. 19, 160 acres, Sept. 24; Joseph Penn, N. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$  sec. 20, 160 acres, Sept. 22; Richard Vanosdall, N. E. 4 sec. 29, 160 acres, Oct. 1; Gillis Maddeaux, 689 <sup>61</sup> acres, sec. 30, Sept. 30; William Biggs, S. W. 4 sec. 31, 184 acres, Dec. 24; Heirs of J. Lunceford, S. E. 1 sec. 31, 160 acres, Dec. 24; Charles Wakefield, S. W. 1 sec. 32, 160 acres, Sept. 15. Town 2 N. R. 7 W., Zachariah Hays, S. W. 4 sec. 23, 160 acres, Sept. 17; Abraham Baker, S. E. 1/2 sec. 24, 160 acres, Sept. 15; Leaven Maddeaux, N. E. & sec. 25, 160 acres, Sept. 10; Wingate Maddeaux, S. E. 1 sec. 25, 160 acres, Sept. 10; David S. White, S. W. 1 sec. 11, 160 acres, Sept. 8; Robert Moore, S. E. 1 sec. 5, 160 acres, Sept. 10, and Miles Abernathy, N. E. 4 sec 7, 160 acres, Sept. 10, are in that part of T. 1 N, R. 6 W, that belongs to Lebanon. The above lands were all entered in 1814, as stated, and in the list are recognized the names of parties who settled here prior to that date, and no doubt but that many of them lived at the time, on the land they entered, while others perhaps, never resided in the precinct. John Thomas, a Virginian, emigrated here with his family, April 9, 1817, and settled on sec. 35, T. 2 N., R. 7 W. He had a family of nine children, as follows: Mary, John, James, Catherine, Jacob, Elizabeth, Abraham, Calvin W., and Emeline. They all married and had families and resided for a time in this county. Col. John Thomas, has held several offices, and is now a representative from this county in the State Legislature. James Thomas is living at a good old age in Lebanon. These two are the only members of this family now living in St. Clair. There was also another family of Thomases who settled in the same neighborhood-Robert, James D., John D., Anthony and David all brothers.

In December of the same year, 1817, Nicholas Horner, a native of Maryland, came with his family and settled one and a half miles north of Lebanon. He had two daughters and three sons— Rachel, the wife of Thomas Ray: Sarah, who married Rev. David Chamberlain; and Nathan, John and Charles. Daniel Murry, from Boston, with a large family and his son in-law, Thomas Ray, came with him to this country, and settled in this vicinity. Mr. Horner was a wealthy and enterprising gentleman, and resided here until his death. All his children left descendants. Nathan Horner became an early resident of Lebanon. He was an active, energetic man, an early merchant, and did much to build up and advance the interests of the young place. He died in Lebanon, in 1869.

John M Peck, D. D., the distinguished Baptist divine, pioneer and historian of Illinois, was born in Litchfield, Conn., Oct. 31st. 1789, and emigrated to this country, as a missionary, in November, 1817. Until 1822 he resided in St. Louis and St. Charles, Mo., from whence he traveled as a minister of the gospel, and established many churches in both Missouri and Illinois. In the spring of that year, 1822, he settled at his celebrated site, Rock Spring, on section 27, T. 2 N., R. 7, W., in this precinct. The name was suggested from the fact of a stream of pure water gushing from the rocks near where he erected his first double log-house, in the same year In February, 1825, he went east and arranged for establishing a Baptist Seminary in Illinois, and this site was selected for the location of the school. A two-story frame building, with two wings, was completed in 1827, and the "Rock Spring Theological Seminary and High School" was opened. Rev. Joshua Bradly was principal, Rev. John M. Peck Professor of Theology, and Rev. John Messinger Professor of Mathematics. It opened with one hundred students. This was the first literary institution in the state higher than a common or primary school. In 1831 it was transferred to Alton, and became the foundation for Shurtleff Col. lege.

In the winter of 1828-9, the Rev. Peck established a printing office and paper called The Pioneer. It was a religious paper. A post office was also established at this place in 1829, and Rev. Peck was post-master. He was a prolific writer. Among his works we mention, without order, "The Emigrant's Guide," "Illinois Gazetteer, maps, etc," "Life of Rev. John Clark, the Indian Captive," "Life of Rev. John Tanner," "Moral Progress of the Mississippi Valley," "Life of Rev. Jeremiah Vardeman," "The Memoirs of Rev. John M. Peck," compiled by Rufus Babcock, "The Annals of the West," etc.

Before his death John Reynolds wrote of him: "Nature has endowed Mr. Peck with her choicest gifts, and he himself has been indefatigable and energetic in his scientific and literary labors. He possesses a strong, vigorous and discriminating intellect. He is also blessed with an activity and energy that shrinks from no labor and research that is within the compass of his power. With his efficiency and energy of character he has accomplished much in the west. Education has been a favorite pursuit with him during his whole life in the western country."

He died at his Rock Spring residence, March 14th, 1857, and his remains repose in the Bellefontaine cemetery, at St. Louis, where a fine monument is ere ted to his memory.

Rev. Peck raised a family of seven children, viz.—Hannah F., the widow of Ashford Smith, resides in Iowa; Harvey J., died in Iowa; Mary A., the wife of Samuel G. Smith, resides on the old homestead; William S., in Iowa; John Q. A., deceased; James A. and Henry M. both reside in California.

William Nichols was born in Kentucky, and came to this county and located a short distance south-east of Lebanon, in 1825. He raised a large family, and several of his descendants are living here.

Rev. William L. Deneen was a native of Penn. Born in 1798, and settled in this county, about midway between Lebanon and Belleville, in 1828, and subsequently became a resident of Lebanon. He had but three children,—Sarah, the wife of A. W. Metcalf, a prominent lawyer of Edwardsville, Ill.; Risdon, who died in 1864, and Samuel H., a professor in McKendree College. Rev. Deneen was a Methodist minister, and surveyor. He was a man of considerable talent, and as a civil engineer and mathematician he ranked among the best He died, after a long and valuable life, at Lebanon, in July, 1879.

Thus we have sketched some of the earliest and most prominent settlers in Lebanon precinct. We have not mentioned all of them, and if it were possible, it would not be necessary, nor perhaps interesting. From the time the fear of Indian depredations ceased, the settlements and population gradually increased. Schools and churches were early established, and have been liberally maintained. Fine steam flouring mills replace the rude ox and horse-mills of pioneer days. Seventy years ago, this was comparatively an uninhabited waste; only here and there stood the lone cabin, as an evidence of the more advanced pioneer of civilization; while to-day its broad acres are subdued and made to yield, and on every hand may be seen well-made farms and houses teeming with life and activity. The population of the precinct, including the city of Lebanon, was 3,674, as taken from the census report of 1880.

We append the names of a few of the oldest citizens now residing in this precinct, who have not already been mentioned: H. H. Horner was born in Lebanon in 1821; Joseph Hypes, a native of Botetourt county, Virginia, came here in 1821; Dr. R. F. Cunningham, born in Maryland, located here in 1834; J. L. Sargent, nativity New York, settled in 1821; Thomas Moore, a native of St. Clair county, born in 1825; W. E. Willoughby, of Kent county, Delaware, settled here in 1835; Isaac Nichols, born in the county, in 1816; A. G. Moore, who was born in the county in the same year; N. Perrin, nativity France, located here in 1834; H. P. Münie, also a native of France, came in 1831; Wm. A. Darrow, a native of St. Clair, born in 1837; Jeremiah Bennett, a North Carolinian, came in 1835; and Edward Luckner, a native of Germany, located here in 1838.

The reader is referred to the pioneer and ecclesiastical chapters for further information on the early history of this locality.

In section 27, T. 2 N, R. 7 W. is located the nursery of George Crosby. It contains thirty acres of fruit, shade, ornamental trees, evergreens, berries, etc. They furnish stock in this neighborhood and adjoining counties. The business was established by his father, Thomas Crosby, deceased, about thirty years ago, and has been very successfully managed.

Bennett's Coal Mine is also located in this precinct, two miles west of Lebanon, on the O. and M. Railroad. The shaft was sunk in 1873 by Jeremiah Bennett, and a five and one-half feet vein was reached at a depth of 180 feet. It is now leased and operated by Donnawold & Herring, who employ about thirty men.

The Lebanon Distillery was erected in 1856 by Gen. J. B. Osterhaus, at a cost of about forty thousand dollars. It passed through several hands, and was purchased in 1873 by C. Pfeffer, who enlarged and remodeled the building and apparatus. The capacity is one thousand bushels per day, twenty four hours' run. High Wines, Bourbon, French and Cologne Spirits, Whiskey, etc., are principally made. The distillery is finely located on the banks of Silver creek, near the O. and M. railroad, about one mile from Lebanon. There are seventy-five acres of land in connection with the property.

CITY OF LEBANON.

This beautiful and thriving little city is located on the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, twenty-two miles east of St. Louis, and about eleven miles north-east from Belleville, the county-seat. It is eligibly situated, on a gracefully sloping hill, and commands a fine view of the surrounding country. The city is nicely laid out, and contains many elegant residences. The streets are broad, with good side-walks, and well shaded. The south-east quarter of section nineteen, upon which the original town was laid out, was entered by Henry White, September 24, 1814. The first house was erected by Gillis Maddeaux. It was constructed of logs, and was situated in the south-eastern part of the town, but has long since disappeared. The next was erected by Joseph Akin, and stood just south-east of the present public square, on the lot now owned by Mrs. Flint. Joseph Hathaway built a two-story log cabin on west Main street where Neuman's saloon now stands. Thomas Ray, the proprietor of the west end of the town, built the next, a little west on the same block. Another log house was built just opposite these, on the same street by Nathan Horner. Adam Vinyard also built a house in the east part of town. The first store was established as early as 1818, by Gov. Kinney, and kept by his nephew, Abraham Kinney. Thomas Ray, Nathan Horner, Mulligan & Sublett, Samuel and Andrew Christy and James Riggin opened stores soon afterwards. These and perhaps a few more log buildings were erected on the present site of Lebanon prior to 1820. In that year Gov. Kinney erected the hotel "Veranda," which is still standing and forms a part of the Bishop House. It is brick, and in those days it was considered a very handsome building. This, then, became a stage stand, being located on the line of the Vincennes and St. Louis stage route. A post-office was established and mails were received by stage twice a day. About this time Gov. Kinney built an oxmill for grinding flour. In 1821 Col. E. B. Clempson erected the first frame house. This now forms a part of H. H. Horner's residence. Dr. Addison Filleo erected a building in connection with a Mr. Morse, and kept the first drug store.

The town was laid out by Gov. William Kinney and Thomas Ray. It was surveyed and platted by Aaron Reed, Jr., and filed in the office of county Recorder July 27, 1825. Since then there have been twenty one additions made to the original plat. In 1828 there were not more than thirty cabins and houses in the place. There were two stores, one kept by Nathan Horner and the other by James Riggin, a grocery, or saloon, kept by Josiah Crocker, and a log school-house with oiled paper for windows, where school and religious meetings were held. The Lebanon Seminary (McKendree College) was also partially completed and the school established. In the fall of 1832 a large store-house was erected and a complete stock of general goods was opened by Horner and Hypes. Benjamin Hypes, of this firm, was born in Virginia in 1810, and came here from Ohio, and was an early and prominent business man from 1828 to 1863, and is still living here much esteemed by the community. Joseph Hypes, his brother, was also born in Virginia, in 1798. He came here as early as 1821, and engaged in the milling business, and subsequently in the manufacture of carriages and wagons. He is yet living, hale and hearty, at his residence in this city. James Riggin, a Tennesseean, was an early and enterprising merchant, and died here in 1858. His excellent wife survived him until a few years ago. Esquire Thomas Williams built a tannery establishment here in 1829, and operated it successfully and profitably for many years. He died about 1865, and left a handsome estate. Lyman Adams, an old sea captain, built a hotel here in 1830, known as the "Mermaid House." He was also an early merchant, and an active business-man He died here in the decade of 1850. The hotel "Veranda," mentioned above, was first occupied by Jeremiah Johnson, a noted hotel-keeper. He was for many years proprietor of the old Missouri Hotel in St. Louis, and opened the "Veranda" in 1820, which he occupied until his death, about 1836. Theodore W. Gray, a native of Maryland, located in Lebanon in 1824 and engaged in the tailoring business, at which he acquired a competency, and is now enjoying a retired life, much respected by the citizens. These are a few of the very earliest and most successful business-men of the place.

The first steam flouring mill was erected in the north-east corner of the place, in 1832, by Capt. Elbridge Potter & Sons. There was also a distillery built in connection with the mill.

From the Illinois Gazeteer, published by Rev. John M. Peck in 1837, we copy the following: "Lebanon has a steam-mill for manufacturing grain, and an ox-mill for flouring, on an inclined plane; a post-office, two public houses, seven stores, one grocery; three physicians; mechanics' shops of various kinds, and about sixty families. The Methodist college is located in the immediate vicinity." From this the town has grown, and now contains a population of about two thousand, with fine residences, handsome business blocks, good schools, churches, and various manufacturing institutions.

Incorporation.—Lebanon was incorporated as a town, under special charter, in May, 1857. The first officers were: Joseph Hypes, president; Charles Blanck, register; Samuel Hypes, Treasurer; H. H. Horner, assessor; Adam H. Wise, constable; J. L. Sargent, street inspector. Town Trustees were: Hugo Wangelin, R. F. Cunningham, James Radon and Thomas Jordan.

It was organized as a city, under the general law, August 18, 1874, and the following were elected the first officers: H. H. Horner, Mayor; Louis Zerweck, clerk; D. R. Lasley, treasurer; J. F. Webb, attorney; A. Pyle, street commissioner and city marshal. The council is composed of nine aldermen, three elected in each of the three city wards.

The present city officers are : J. Rankin, mayor ; Louis Zerweck, clerk; C. H. Sager, treasurer; J. Eckert, attorney; Peter Bruecher, city marshal; George Riddle commissioner of streets.

Schools.-The first school was taught in a log cabin about 18x20 feet, that was erected just south-east of the square as early as 1818. In this building Rev. John M. Peck organized the first Sundayschool, in the summer of 1821. School was held in this cabin for a period of three or four years, when a small frame school-house was erected by the public, which was also used for religious meetings by all denominations. The public schools were mostly held in churches and halls, rented for that purpose, until 1866, when a fine brick school-house was erected, that cost upwards of $40,000. It stood on the same lot occupied by the present beautiful structure. February 28, 1873, this building was burned, and in the same year the new one was completed, at about the same cost. It is constructed of brick, three stories high, and contains ten rooms, all furnished with the latest improved school furniture. The school is graded and employs eight teachers.

McKendree College was founded as an institution of learning February 20, 1828. It received its first charter from the state in 1834. and a new charter was granted June 26, 1839. It is a Methodist institution, and has always been largely patronized by the Missouri and Illinois Conferences. On the roll of Alumni there are the names of nearly four hundred persons, many of whom are in high offices of trust both in church and state.*

Illinois Literary and Commercial Institute and School of Art was founded September 20, 1880, by Prof. J. W. Whittlesev. This is a new school, and judging from the patronage it has received, it will be a successful one. Prof. Whittlesey is an energetic, enterprising gentleman, and has an able faculty associated with him.

Churches.-There are eight churches in the city, all neat and comfortable buildings .-- Presbyterian, Methodist Episcopal, Free Methodist, German Methodist, and Colored Methodist, German Lutheran, Baptist and Roman Catholic, Manufacturing Industries-The Veranda Flouring Mill was erected in 1856. It is built of brick, 50x60 feet, and four stories high. It contains six run of burrs, with a capacity of 200 barrels per day, and is now owned by Joseph Mueller & Co. It manufactures several brands of excellent flour, most of which is shipped to eastern markets. The mill is valued at $50,000, and employs thirteen men.

The St. Clair Flouring Mill was built by W. V. Keese & Son, in 1880, at a cost of about $10,000. It is a frame building, three stories high, and contains three run of burrs, with a capacity of 50 barrels per day. The Star Fancy brand of flour of their manufacture is equal to that made by any of the larger mills, and finds ready market at home and in St. Louis.

Hoyt's Steam Saw and Grist mill, has one set of burrs and a circular saw.

The Carriage, Wagou and Agricultural Implement Manufactory of J. H. Lehman's, was established in 1861. He has large and commodious buildings, steam power, and all the modern improved machinery for making the best class of work. Employs about ten men

The Lebanon Brewery was purchased by J. Hammel, in 1860, who remodeled the building, and enlarged the capacity. This brewery has all the most modern improvements for brewing, and manufactures about six thousand barrels a year. It is sold at home and in all the neighboring towns. Hammel's bottle beer is a good article, and is gaining reputation. Mr. Hammel has a vineyard of several acres, and manufactures considerable wine. He is also engaged in the ice business.

* Amore extended history may be seen in the chapter on Schools.

Lebanon Soda and Mineral Water Factory was erected by Charles J. Reuter, in 1868. It is a frame building; steam power. Soda and all the various kinds of mineral waters are made and sold at home and in all the adjacent towns. Mr. Reuter has been very successful in this enterprise.

The Great American Cigar Manufactory was established by Julius Hoffmann in 1866. He employs about fifteen men in the manufacture of cigars. They are fine brands, and he has a large trade.

There are also two brick-yards-the Sager Brothers,-is located in the east side of the city, and that of William Boyce's in the northern part, both of which burn a good quality of brick.

Concord Park-is situated in the southern suburbs, and is the property of F. Keitel. It contains several acres, with nicely arranged walks, well shaded with forest and ornamental trees. There are music and speakers' stands, dancing hall and bar, on the grounds. This is quite a popular resort for summer excursions from St. Louis.

The Lebanon Journal is a weekly newspaper edited and published by Jones & Metzgar, and is the only one in the city.

Bank.-The Banking House of Baker & Schaefer was commenced in 1873, by Seiter & Ramsay. In 1876 it was changed to H. Seiter & Co., and September 1st, 1880, to the present firm name. The capital is upwards of $200,000, and it is considered a safe and reliable institution.

Lodges.—The secret societies are as follows :

Adelphic Lodge, No. 1509, Knights of Honor; Lebanon Lodge, No. 108, I. O. M. A.; Lebanon Lodge, No. 127, A. O. U. W. Lebanon Lodge, No. 110, A. F. and A. M.; Lebanon Chapter, No. 62, R. A. M.; St. Clair, No. 119, I. O. O. F.; Lebanon Division of the Sons of Temperance, No. 262.

BUSINESS HOUSES, TRADE OF 1881.

General Stores.-Atwood & Chamberlain, Louis Niemeyer. Dry Goods and Groceries -H. J. Blanck, H. W. Blanck, L. Gerne, John W. Weigle, Mrs. Krause.

Groceries.-John Meinhardt.

Hardware, Stoves and Agricultural Implements.-C. H. Sager. Henry Baum.

Drugs.-Lindley & Bridges, C. Fehringer, J. B. Benson.

Clothing and Tailoring.--Charles Reinhardt, Thomas Wolf, Jacob Schaefer, Jacob Buhr.

Jewelry.-F. Pesold, Gus. Hoffmann.

Confectionery and Bakery .- August Deitz, August Kassebaum, F. Campe.

Shoe Stores and Shops .-- C. Haenel, George Breiding, Paul Derleth, J. Hausmann.

Furniture.-Henry Bachmann, Louis Reichenbecher, Jr.

Books and News.-Miss Frank Risley. Harness Store.-J. W. Hypes, William Scheibe.

Segar Stores .- J. Hoffmann, Adam Traband.

Millinery and Dress Making.-E. Haase aud M. Zerweck, Miss Lizzie Parker.

Hotels-Bishop House, Edward Ganunn, proprietor; Lebanon House, Henry Heuer, proprietor; City Hotel, Mrs. T. Williams, proprietress; St. James House, Mrs. Smith, proprietress.

Livery Stables -S. R. Morris, John Wallace.

Blacksmith and Wagon Shops.-Adam Blume, Robert Blume, Martin Baum, F. Thome.

Barber Shops .-- C. Graul, A. Doll, E. Graul & Son, Noblitt & Coffee.

Lumber Yard .-- Gustave Weisberger.

Marble Works .- August Kassebaum.

Physicians.-F. A. Hamilton, R. F. Cuuningham, F. W. Lytle, A. Berger, C. N. Andrews, A. S. Griffith. Dentists. - R. H. Mace, L. Ottofey.

Insurance Agents .-- W. H. Hypes, Lewis Zerweck, A. Sanspeur, J. N. Lindley, D. Hightower.

Photographer --- John Lupton.

Real Estate Agent.-M. A. Shepard.

Saloons and Billiard Halls .-- John Rahner, Charles Neuman, Gus. Hoffmann, Cyrus Culver, Jule Gorla, Thomas Wakemann, E. Krause, John Meinhardt, John Michel.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

WHO is now one of the oldest members of the St. Clair county bar, is a native of the county, and was born at Lebanon on the 22d of February, 1821. His great-grandfather emigrated from England, and settled near Baltimore. His grandfather, Nicholas Horner, in the year 1812 removed from the neighborhood of Baltimore to the State of Ohio, and, after living five years near Cincinnati, he came to Illinois, and settled two miles north of Lebanon, where he made a purchase of five hundred acres of land. For the improved part he paid ten dollars an acre, a price which was made high by the cost of labor and material. On this farm Nicholas Horner lived till his death.

Nathau Horner, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Maryland in the year 1790 He was united in marriage in Ohio to Nancy Hypes, who was born near the James river, in Bottetourt county, Virginia, within seven miles of Fincastle, the county seat. Her father was Henry Hypes. She was a woman of much intelligence and remarkable energy. After coming to Illinois Nathan Horner engaged in farming, and in 1818 or 1819 undertook the mercantile business, and opened the first store in the town of Lebanon He carried on the mercantile business for many years, till prevented from following it by the infirmities of old age. For a long time he was in partnership with Benjamin Hypes. He died in 1867. He had enjoyed only ordinary advantages for obtaining an education, but was fond of reading, and by this means acquired much valuable information. He was a warm friend of education, and was one of those interested in establishing the seminary which was the foundation of the present McKendree college. At a time when this institution was involved in serious difficulties he expended considerable means in assisting to place the college on a sound financial basis. He was one of the leading members and supporters of the Methodist church. His views coincided with those of the Whig party, and he was especially a warm admirer of Henry Clay, but he took no active or conspicuous part in politics. The subject of this sketch was the oldest son and second child. He was brought up in his native town of Lebanon, and obtained his education in McKendree college, from which he graduated in 1841. Having designed to enter the legal profession, he studied law in the office of Judge William H. Underwood at Belleville, and was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of Illinois in 1847. He began practice at Belleville, but, after residing a short time in that place, returned, on account of his private interests, to Lebanon, where he has since been occupied in the active practice of his profession. Few members of the legal profession have been longer connected with the St. Clair county bar, and he has lived in the county longer than any other lawyer. Mr. Horner succeeded ex-governor A. C. French in 1865 as dean of the law department of McKendree college, which position he now holds. He was married on the 19th of November, 1857, to Helen M. Danforth, who was born at St. Albans, Vermont. By this marriage he has had six children, of whom four are now living. Of these the oldest, Henry Roland Horner, now resides in Colorado. Wilbur N. is fitting himself for the legal profession. The two daughters are named Hattie H. and Bertha A. Horner. In his political views he was in early life connected with the democratic party. Like many in that organization, he was, however, opposed to slavery; and, when the question of the extension of slavery into the territories came to be conspicuously agitated, in common with the free-soil democrats, he assisted to form the republican party, cast his vote for president for Fremont in 1856, and has been a republican from that date to the present. His time has been devoted to his profession and the management of his private business affairs. He was the first mayor of Lebanon, on its organization under a city charter, and held that office two terms. His portrait appears at the head of this sketch.

HERMANN J. BLANCK.

THIS gentleman was born at Malehow, Mecklenburg Schwerin, Germany, November 24th, 1835. The names of his parents were Henry and Elizabeth Blanck. He was the second of a family of six children, of whom four are now living. His father was a wcaver and manufacturer of cloths. In 1847 the family emigrated to America, and after stopping a few weeks came to Lebanon late in the fall of that year. His father purchased the woolen mill at Lebanon, which had been standing idle for some time, and which he ran successfully for twelve or thirteen years. He died at Lebanon in 1876. Hermann J Blanck, when about twenty, became clerk in his brother's store. On the 17th of April, 1861, he enlisted for service in the war of the rebellion, in Co. B, of the Ninth Illinois regiment. During the greater part of his three months' service he was stationed at Cairo, and from there his regiment made some excursions into Missouri. He was mustered out July 25th, 1861. Shortly after his return he embarked in business on his own account. He now has the largest store in Lebanon, and carries on a general merchandizing business. He was married on the 23d of November, 1865, to Mary E. Rankin. He has one child, Katie H Blanck. In his political opinions he is a democrat, and has always voted that ticket, except in 1864, during the war of the rebellion, when he supported Lincoln for the presidency. His time has been closely devoted to his business, and he has filled no public position with the exception of acting as alderman. He is a member of Lebanon Masonic Lodge, No. 110, and of St. Clair Lodge of Odd Fellows, No. 119.

BENJAMIN HYPES.

Among those who have been intimately and honorably connected with the history of Lebanon is Benjamin Hypes, who was born near Fincastle, Bottetourt county, Virginia, February 10, 1805. His grandfather, Nicholas Hypes, emigrated from Germany, lived for a time in Philadelphia, and from there moved to Winchester, in the valley of Virginia, where he purchased seven or eight hundred acres of land, on which the town of Winchester is built. His land was lost to the heirs of the family by reason of the failure to make the final payment of a few pounds. He then engaged in the management of a large iron works in Virginia, and afterward purchased a tract of a couple of thousand acres of land in Bottetourt county. Henry Hypes, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Bottetout county, and married Patience, daughter of John Reynolds. In 1811 he removed from Virginia to Xenia, Greene county, Ohio. Part of his farm is now covered by the town of Xenia. He came to Illinois in 1818, with a view of securing a location for settlement in this state, but concluded to remain in Ohio. His first wife died in that state in 1823. He died in Ohio in 1851.

Benjamin Hypes was nearly six years old when the family made their home in Ohio. School advantages were scarce in those days. His mother was his only instructor till he was seventeen, when a school was established at Xenia, which he attended nine months previous to his reaching the age of twenty-one. In 1828 he became a resident of Lebanon. For two years he carried on an ox-mill, which was then the only means at Lebanon for grinding grain. This mill had two run of burrs, and was considered a superior mill, and manufactured considerable quantities of flour. In the fall of 1831 he became a partuer in the mercantile business with Nathan Horner, with whom he was associated till 1840; from 1835 to 1837 H. K. Ashley also being a member of the firm, After farming three years, in 1843 he opened a store of his own, which be carried on till 1863. Soon after the inauguration of President Lincoln he was appointed post-master at Lebanon, and retained that office during Lincoln's administration. He was married in November, 1834, to Caroline, daughter of Daniel Murray. She was born in Baltimore in 1814. Her father was one of the early settlers of the county, becoming a resident of Belleville in 1812. His children are, Cornelia Maria; Adelaide Victoria, wife of Thomas Essex, of Little Rock, Arkansas; William Henry; Mary Julia, wife of A. S. Maguire, a lawyer, of Chicago; Benjamin Murray, now practicing medicine in St. Louis, and Caroline Virginia, who married the Rev. William F. Swahlen, Professor in McKendree college,

He formerly was a whig in politics, and cast his first vote for president for Henry Clay. He has acted with the republican party since its organization. Since 1831 he has been a member of the Lebanon Methodist Episcopal church. He has been one of the pillars of that denomination at Lebanon, and has contributed freely to the support both of the church and the McKendree college. His house has always been the home for the ministers, and nowhere have they met with a heartier welcome or a more generous hospitality. He was a class-leader in the church from 1834 to 1879. He was a member in the first lay conference held at Cairo in 1871, and a delegate to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church held at Brooklyn in 1872. He is the only one of the charter trustees of McKendree college now living. He was auditor of the college in 1835 and 1836, treasurer from 1836 to 1873; for two years he was president of the joint board of trustees and visitors, and has always been among its warmest friends and wisest supporters.

11 Pm Nichols

WILLIAM NICHOLS, one of the old residents of St. Clair county, was born in Hardin county, Kentucky, on the 27th of August 1805. His father, George Nichols, came to Kentucky from Georgia. He married Mary Beard, whose birth-place was on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. The subject of this sketch was the next to the oldest of a family of seven children. He was raised in Kentucky. When he was six months old his father moved from Hardin to Christian county, and there Mr. Nichols spent the early years of his life. He had only ordinary advantages for obtaining an education, going to school in the winter season and on rainy days, when it was impossible to do any labor on the farm. At the age of  $tw_n ty$ -one he came to this state, and settled in the neighborhood of Lebanon. For several years after coming to St. Clair county he employed part of his time in making rails, and made as many as a hundred thousand at the customary price of fifty cents a hundred. St. Louis was then a place of small size and importance; and where now is built a portion of East St. Louis, Mr. Nichols when a young man split rails and made hay. By means like these he secured chough money to enter eighty acres of land south-cast of Lebanon, on which he lived till he removed to that town. He built on this farm a brick house of small dimensions, which at the time of its erection, was considered one of the handsomest residences in that part of the county. His father had previously given him a quarter section of land, unimproved and covered with brush, which was of no benefit to him for many years. This land is still in his possession. He paid taxes on it for fifty years before it brought him any return.

In the spring of 1831 he volunteered his services, and was engaged in the Black Hawk war. He enlisted in a company commanded by Capt. William Moore. He went through the campaign without taking part in any engagement with the Indians. He was mariled on the 25th of March, 1833, to Delilah Moore, daughter of Robert Moore, who was born in St. Clair county, at the old settlement known as Union Grove, three miles south of Lebanon. Her father resided in the county during the war of 1812-14, when many of the inhabitants were obliged to live in forts for protection against the Indians. His first wife died on the 5th of February, 1849. His second marriage occurred October 1st, 1854, to Caroline Virginia Lingenfelter, who was born at Winchester, Clark county, Kentucky, in 1822. Her father was David Lingenfelter, a Pennsylvania. Her mother was Rebecca Hutchinson. In the year 1852 he became a resident of Lebanon, and for some years was employed in the mercantile business. After quitting the store he was engaged for a time in land speculations which he made profitable to himself. Various business enterprises at different times occupied his attention. Till within a recent period he has always been engaged, more or less, in handling stock. In 1859 he purchased a saw mill on a tract of land west of the town of Lebanon, and was in the lumber business until the close of the war. Io 1861 he ran a grist mill at Lebanon. He owned at one time about twenty-two hundred acres of land, a considerable part of which he has given to his children. He had seven children by his first marriage, of whom three are now living : Mary J., now the wife of Thomas Moore, of Lebanon ; Mrs. Nancy C. Hendricksou; and William Lee Nichols, of Leba-non. Of the four children by his second marriage, three are now living: Orrin Nichols, Julia Belle Nichols, and Louis H. Nichols.

In early life he was a member of the whig party. His first vote for president was cast for Henry Clay, for whom he voted every subsequent time he was a candidate as he did also for Harrison and the other whig nominees. He was an early member of the republican organization, and has been one of its warmest and strongest supporters. He came to this county without any means, and by his activity and industry, became one of the wealthiest men in the vicinity of Lebanon. He was of an energetic and active temperament; in the early part of his life he worked hard; and was always a successful business man. His wealth has been secured by economy and wise accumulation, and is not the result of any sudden, successful stroke of speculation. He has always been straightforward and honorable in his business dealings. He has filled no political office with the exception of eight years as constable, at a time when he was the only constable in the county east of Silver Creek, and was also in 1849 elected justice of the peace.

MICHAEL SEITER, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Baden, Germany, September 17th, 1809. In 1817 the family emigrated to America, and on the passage across the ocean both his father and mother died, leaving him an orphan at the age of eight years. This voyage was made in a sailing vessel, and occupied three months' time. The masters of the ship were hardhearted men, and furnished the passengers with insufficient food, so that some of them landed in an almost famished condition. On reaching Pennsylvania, Mr. Seiter went to live with a farmer in Lancaster county, and was raised by him. Though he had an opportunity to go to school to some extent, it was not nearly as much as had been promised. He would be sent to school one day, and the next two or three kept at home to do some work on the farm. After reaching the age of twenty one, he had better educational advantages, working on a farm during the summer months, and in the winter attending school. He was naturally ready with tools, and learned the carpenter's trade with a man by whom he was employed in Pennsylvania.

Thinking he could get better wages in the west, he came to Illinois in the year 1839. At Lebanon he found work with John Stewart, and helped build a house in that town. In the year 1841 he returned to Pennsylvania, and married Elizabeth Knott, daughter of William Knott. She was born on the 22d of September, 1804. In 1846 he purchased eighty acres of land north-east of Lebanon, on which he lived till he removed to the farm on which he died. He was a man of energy and industry, and his industrious and economical habits brought him success and enabled him to accumulate a competence. At the time of his death he was the owner of a large body of land, and was one of the wealthiest men in the north-eastern part of the county. His farm, which was one of the most beautiful locations in the state, consisted of three hundred and fifty-three acres, and he owned beside in the county six hundred acres. He was a democrat in politics. He was a man of temperate habits, and in the whole course of his life was never known to be under the iofluence of intoxicating liquors. He possessed a candid mind, and never hesitated to speak his opinion. His wealth was the result of honest labor, in which he was assisted by a persevering and sympathetic wife. The suspicion of dishonesty never rested on his business transactions. but he was in all things an upright and honorable man and a good citizen. He had originally a good constitution, but through life performed much hard labor and underwent much exposure. After a week's illness, he died of pneumonia on the 8th of March, 1879. His remains now repose in the College Hill cemetery at Lebanon. His two children were both sons. The oldest, Hervey Seiter, was born Jan. 30, 1843, and died on the 10th of August, 1845.

Henry Seiter was born in the town of Lebauon, Sept. 22d, 1845. After attending the district school in the neighborhood of his father's farm, at the age of twenty-one he entered McKendree College, from which he graduated in 1870. He also attended a commercial college in Chicago. In March of the same year in which he graduated at McKendree, he also graduated at the law school connected with the University of Michigan, the sessions of which he had attended. In September, 1871, in partnership with Rufus Ramsay, he engaged in the banking business at Carlyle. In August, 1873, under the firm name of Seiter & Ramsay, he entered also into the banking business at Lebanon. This bank was the first ever started in that town. After dissolving his partnership with Mr. Ramsay in 1877, he carried on the banking business at Lebanon till 1880, when he disposed of the bank to the present firm of Baker, Schaeffer & Co. In his politics Mr. Seiter is a warm and active supporter of the principles of the democratic party. He was elected a representative in the state legislature from St. Clair county in 1878, and was one of that body serving on several important committees. In 1873 he married Alice Radefelt of Lebanon, who died May 9th, 1877. He had two children by this marriage, of whom one, Victor M. Seiter, is living at the age of five. His present wife, whom he married Nov. 22d, 1879, was Mamie Badley of Alton. Her father, William Badley, was a native of Dudley, England. He has one child, Orval Roc Seiter, by this marriage. A view of Mr. Seiter's residence, Emerald Mound, appears among our illustrations. His name is worthy of a place in this work, as one of the representative me of the county.

PROF. SAMUEL H. DENEEN.

SAMUEL H. DENEEN, Professor of Latin and History in McKendree College, is a native of this county, and was born near Belleville, December 20th, 1835. His father, the Rev. William L. Deneen, was born near Bedford, Bedford county, Pennsylvania, on the 30th of October, 1798. One of his ancestors was captain of a ship which traded from a French port. The family name is of French origin, and was originally spelled Denesne. When he was two years and a half old the parents of the Rev. William L. Deneen moved to Liberty township, Trumbull county, Ohio. Here he grew to manhood. His opportunities for obtaining an education were limited, but being gifted with a rare natural aptitude for mathematical studies he mastered all branches of the science of mathematics from arithmetic to calculus, with but little help from others. At the age of twenty he went to Vevny, Indiana, where he learned the hatting business, at which he worked for the four following years. Subsequently he taught school. In 1827 he was converted under the ministry of the Rev. George Locke, and in October, 1828, he was admitted to the Illinois conference. His first appointment was Shoal Creek circuit which included the counties of St. Clair, Monroe, Clinton, Marion, Madison, Bond, Jersey, Fayette and Green. His other appointments were Salt Creek circuit, Lebanon circuit, Kaskaskia circuit, Brownsville mission, Waterloo circuit, Edwardsville, Belleville, Upper Alton, Alton, again at Belleville, Waterloo, and Lebanon.

For nineteen years his cares and labors were those of an itinerant minister of the M. E. Church. He had well nigh rounded out his half century of years, when, in 1847, a severe and prolonged attack upon his lungs compelled him to abandon public speaking and to take a superannuated relation as a minister. As soon as his health permitted he engaged in the business of surveying lands, into which he was led by his strong predilection for the science of mathematics, which had grown with his advancing years. He was county surveyor of St. Clair county from 1849 to 1851, and again from 1853 to 1855. His unusual proficiency in mathematics and the remarkable accuracy of his work as a surveyor received the highest testimonials from those most conversant with the business in which he was employed. In repeated instances the decisions of the courts were determined by the weight of his testimony and the reputation of his work. His services were constantly in demand until he had completed his four score years. He died in Lebanon, Illinois, July 11th, 1879. Mr. Deneen was an able preacher, a profound theologian, a true Christian. As a minister and as a surveyor he was strictly conscientious in all his labors. His long life was characterized by active service, eminent usefulness, and spotless integrity. He was married in 1831 to Verlinder B. Moore, daughter of Risdon Moore. She was born on the 30th of June, 1802, and died June 30th, 1855. Her father came to Illinois from Georgia. Reference to his history is made elsewhere*. The children of this marriage were Risdon Moore Deneen, born July 25th, 1833; and died December 25th, 1864; Samuel H. Deneen, and Sarah A, the wife of the Hon. A. W. Metcalf, of Edwardsville.

The birthplace of Samuel H. Deneen was six miles east of Belleville. He entered McKendree College in 1850, and graduated in 1854. The following year he was engaged in teaching school and in prosecuting the study of the ancient languages. In 1855 he was elected tutor in the classics in McKendree College, and in 1858 was made Adjunct Professor of Ancient Languages. His studies now took a wide range over the field of ancient, and more especially, of Roman literature and he read carefully and critically the entire remaining works of the principal Latin authors. In 1862 he was elected Professor of the Latin language and literature. In the summer of 1862 he enlisted in the Union army and was commissioned adjutant of the 117th regiment, Illinois volunteers. When his regiment entered the field he was appointed Acting Assistant Adjutant-General of the third brigade, third division, sixteenth army corps. This portion of the Union army saw service in the States of Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Alabama. He participated in the marches, skirmishes, and battles of his brigade until the latter part of November, 1864, when he received an honorable discharge from the service on account of sickness.

* See the sketch of Risdon A. Moore.

In 1865 he resumed his labors in the college as Professor of Latin, the duties of which position had been divided among other teachers during his absence in the war. He engaged in his tasks with new vigor. Through his agency another year of Latin was added to the studies required in the classical course. He had sought in every way to render this department of collegiate instruction as ample and thorough as that found in the best American colleges. He has shared in the interest awakened among scholars in the department of comparative philology and has made a study of the modern tongues yet derived from the Latin, viz : the French, Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese. In recognition of his scholarly attainments the degree of Doctor of Philosophy was conferred upon him in 1876 by the Indiana Asbury University.

He was married in 1859 to Mary F. Ashley, daughter of Hiram K. Ashley, who was born in Tennessee, April 12th, 1802, and died at Lebanon, April 20th, 1865. Her mother, whose maiden name was Sarah A. Horner, was born at Lebanon, May 17th, 1819, and died September 5th, 1846, and was the daughter of Nathan Horner,† one of the early settlers of Lebanon. Mrs. Deneen was educated at the Illinois Female College, Jacksonville, Illinois, and the Wesleyan Female College, Cincinnati, Ohio, and is a graduate of the latter institution. The children of Prof. and Mrs. Deneen now living are Edward Ashley, Charles Samuel, Sarah Alice, and Florence.

CAPT. LYMAN ADAMS, (DECEASED.)

FORMERLY a resident of Lebanon, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, in February, 1779 He was connected with the celebrated Adams family of New England. His father was a Presbyterian minister. At the age of eleven Capt. Adams left home and went on board a ship and became a sailor. He followed a sea-faring life for many years, and became captain of a vessel. He was employed in the merchant trade. After quitting the sea he settled in Baltimore, and, for a number of years, was recorder in the police court of that city. During the war of 1812–14, he commanded a company of militia, raised for the defence of Baltimore, and was present at the battle of Bladensburg. From Baltimore he went to Louisville, Kentucky, and was there employed in the merchandizing and rectifying business.

He left Louisville in the year 1829, came to Illinois, and settled in Lebanon. He opened a dry goods store, and also a hotel. He carried on this hotel, which was called the "Mermaid," for some years. The travel at that time through Lebanon was quite heavy, the town being situated on the main stage line between Cincinnati and St. Louis. His house was well known from Vincennes to St. Louis, and many eminent men were entertained within its walls. At the time Charles Dickens made his journey from St. Louis to the Looking Glass prairie, he stopped over night at this hotel. Benton, and many other public men, were frequent guests. With many of the prominent state politicians of that day, especially those of the democratic school, Capt. Adams was well acquainted. He was himself an active politician, and a strong supporter of the democratic faith. He served as post-master at Lebanon for many years, was, for a long time, justice of the peace, and also acted as Notary Public. He was a man of good business babits, was popular in the community, and well known throughout the county. He died on the second of July, 1851.

† See sketch of Henry H. Horner.

His last wife, whom he married in Louisville, Kentucky, was Matilda Glover. She was a native of Kentucky. Her mother, Mrs. Prudence Glover, who formerly resided in Lebanon, is now living in Cincinnati, and was one hundred and one years old on the twenty-first of June, 1881. Capt. Adams had eleven children, all by his last marriage. Of these three are now living. The oldest, Cecelia, is the wife of Dr. Adolph Berger, of Lebanon. The two sons, Albert and Chester Adams, live at Moberly, Missouri, the former a farmer and the latter a physician and druggist.

CHARLES H. SAGER.

CHARLES H. SAGER, dealer in hardware and agricultural implements at Lebanon, is a native of Lancaster county, Ohio, and was born on the 5th of November, 1838. His father, Col. Charles Sager, was born in Hamburg, then belonging to Denmark, on the 10th of June, 1800. At the age of ten he left home, for six years was in the West Indies, and when sixteen came to America. From New York he went to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and was there employed as clerk in a store, working in the day, and at night attending school. He thus secured a good education, and subsequently tanght school. From Pittsburg he went to Mount Vernon, Ohio, and at that place, on the 23d of September, 1823, married Jane H. Smith. He afterwards lived in Lancaster, Ohio, where he kept a hotel; then moved to a little town named Oakland, twelve miles from Lancaster. In 1854 went to Washington, Ohio, and in the fall of 1858 came to Leba non, to which place he brought his family the next year. He established the business at Lebanon, which is still carried on by his son, C. H. Sager. He died at Lebanon on the 2d of July, 1877. While a resident of Monnt Vernon, Ohio, he commanded a regiment of home guards, and thus acquired the title of Colonel, which he carried through life. As a business man he was exact, accommodating, honest and reliable, and had the entire confidence of the community. He was first a member of the Lutheran Church, but assisted in the organization of the first Presbyterian Church of Lebanon, in which he was made a ruling elder, and of which he was a strong supporter. He was active in Sunday-school work.

C. H. Sager, the fifth of seven children, of whom four, two brothers and two sisters, are now living, resided in Ohio till twenty years of age. He then came to Lebanon with his father, with whom he engaged in business. After his father's death he continued to carry on the store, and is known as an enterprising and successful business man. He carries a full stock of hardware, and deals largely in the latest and most improved kinds of agricultural machinery. He was married in March, 1859, to Amelia Starkel, daughter of Charles Starkel. His children by this marriage are— Emile, C. M Ŝager, Francis, who died at the age of one year, Edgar Grant, James Richard and Jesse Blanche. He has been a republican in politics. He served one term as treasurer of the City of Lebanon. He is connected with the Odd Fellows and order of United Workmen, and is now a member of the School Board.

SAMUEL G. SMITH

WAS born at Wilmington, Delaware, August 30th, 1809. His father, John Smith, was born in Western Pennsylvania, learned the trade of a tanner and currier, and at Wilmington married Gertrude Gilpin, daughter of Abigail and Vincent Gilpin. The Gilpin family were Quakers, and lived in Wilmington during the Revolutiouary war. Mr. Smith's mother was accustomed to relate how at the approach of the British the Quaker families of Wilmington buried their silver. After the battle of the Brandywine several wounded British officers were brought to their house for treatment. Mr. Smith's father had a large tannery in Wilmington, and built the first steamboat (called the Ætna) which ran on the Delaware as a packet between Wilmington and Philadelphia. He also operated a large rolling mill, five miles from Wilmington. Having lost a considerable part of his means by speculation in hides during the war of 1812-14, he removed to the West in 1819, reaching Carlyle in Clinton county July 5th. He built two large hewn log houses on the old Vincennes and St. Louis road, two miles east of Shoal creek, and there kept a hotel for a number of years. In 1831, he settled in this county, near where the Pittsburg railroad descends the bluff, opened two coal pits, and hauled the coal to St. Louis. He subsequently moved to a farm in the Looking Glass prairie, and afterward to Lebanon, where he died.

Samuel G. Smith was married in January, 1835, to Orinda Bankson. Her father, Col. Andrew Bankson, was in the ranging service during the war of 1812-14. He was an old settler of St. Clair county, and afterward removed to Clinton county, where he died. Mr. Smith after his marriage was farming in Clinton county till 1846, and then moved to Iowa and settled on the Mississippi, fifteen miles below Dubuque. He there operated a ferry across the river for about twelve years. His first wife died in 1848. On the 2d of May, 1849, he married Mary Ann Peck, the fifth child of Rev. John M. Peck, whose history is referred to elsewhere. In 1858, Mr. Smith purchased the old place, known as Rock Spring, on which Mr. Peck settled in coming to St. Clair county, and has resided there since. Three or four remarkably fine springs on the farm gave the place its name. Mr. Peck's house is still used by Mr. Smith as a residence, and a building is also still standing, in which was published the Western Pioneer, the first religious newspaper in the West. This was one of the first printing offices in Illinois. Mr. Smith has eight children living : Mary, wife of Benjamin Moore, now living in Kansas; John F., who died at the age of twenty-five; Gertrude G., wife of Thomas Oliver of Chicago; Andrew Clark Smith, who died at the age of thirty-eight; George W. Smith of Chicago; William, James O., De Witt Clinton, and Chester P. Smith, who live in this county; Sarah Ann, the next to the youngest child, died at the age of eleven. Mr. Smith was first a Whig in politics, voted for Clay in 1832, became a republican when the party was first organized, and has belonged to that party ever since.

OLIVER V. JONES.

THIS gentleman, editor and proprietor of the Lebanon Journal, is a native of Kentucky, and was born in Caldwell county, in that state, on the 28th of December, 1824. Both his paternal and maternal ancestors were from England. His grandfather, William Jones, was a resident of North Carolina, and a soldier in the war of the Revolution. His father, Fountain W. Jones, was born in Sumner county, Tennessee, and at an early age accompanied his father to Kentucky, and was raised in the latter state. He was married at Dover, Tennessee, to Mary Ann Vanlandingham, who was a native of Kentucky. Fountain W. Jones removed from Kentucky to Illinois in 1830, and settled in Gallatin county, near Shawneetown. He volunteered under Gen. Posey in the Black Hawk war, and served in the campaign of 1832. His company was commanded by Capt. Harrison Wilson, father of Gen. James H. Wilson.

The subject of this biographical sketch was the oldest of a family of nine children. He was six years old at the time of the removal of the family to this state. He was raised in Gallatin county, attending the ordinary common schools, and having such opportunities for instruction as were common at that day. He had determined, however, to secure a good education, and by making rails obtained sufficient means to enable him to enter McKendree College in the spring of 1847. His studies were interrupted by his being obliged to teach school to secure the necessary means to allow him to prosecute his studies, but he completed the course, and graduated in 1853. After his graduation he was made tutor in mathematics, and was subsequently elected adjunct professor of mathematics and English literature. Afterward, in 1866, he was made professor of mathematics and astronomy. At the time of his resignation, in 1879, he had been connected with the college twenty-six years. During part of the year 1880 he was engaged as a Methodist minister on the Wisetown circuit, in Clinton and Bond counties. For some months subsequently he was a teacher in the Illinois Literary and Commercial Institute, at Lebanon.

On the 18th of February, 1881, he issued the first number of the Lebanon Journal, which he is now publishing. A newspaper of this name had previously been published in Lebanon. He was married in 1858 to Miss Mary E. Crocker, a native of Lee, Massachusetts. By this marriage he had two children living, one son and one daughter. Since 1846 he has been a member of the Methodist church, and since 1867 has been an ordained minister of that denomination. He was first a democrat in politics, though in common with a great portion of that party he entertained free-soil sentiments, and on the organization of the republican party he became a republican.

REV. WILLIAM FLETCHER SWAHLEN, PH. D.

PROF. WILLIAM F. SWAHLEN, PH. D. who occupies the chair of the Greek and German Languages and Literature in McKendree College, Lebanon, Illinois, was born at Wheeling, West Virginia, on the 19th of April, 1839. His father, the Rev. John Swahlen, was a pioneer minister of the German Methodist Church, and was born in Canton Berne, Switzerland, December 25th, 1808. The family name is spelled in Switzerland, Zwahlen. John Swahlen came to America in 1832, and the succeeding year made his home in Cincinnati, where he was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was the first member of the German Methodist Episcopal Society of Cincinnati-the first organization of the kind in the world. In 1838 he was sent to Wheeling, West Virginia, as a missionary among the Germans, and established the first German Methodist Episcopal Society in Wheeling. In 1839 he built a substantial brick church for his congregation, which was the first German Methodist Episcopal Church edifice ever erected in the world.

From that time the active years of his life were devoted to missionary efforts among the German population. He founded many churches, and was the means of doing much good. He was subsequently stationed at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; was at Warrenton, Missouri, in 1842-43; Lawrenceburg, Indiana, 1843-44; 44

Sidney, Ohio, 1844-6; Baltimore, Maryland, 1846-8; Newark, New Jersey, 1848-9; New York city, 1849-51; Buffalo, New York, 1861-3; Albany, New York, 1853-4; Baltimore, 1854-6; Brooklyn, 1855-7; Poughkeepsie, New York, 1857-8; Troy, New York, 1858-60; Philadelphia, 1860-2; Elizabeth, New Jersey, 1862-4; Poughkeepsie, New York, 1864-66; was presiding elder of the Philadelphia district, 1866-70, and was stationed in Baltimore in 1870-2. He has since occupied a superannuated relation, except in the year 1876, when he was pastor of a church in Philadelphia. He is now living at Evansville, Indiana. His efforts were of great service to the cause of German Methodism. 'A correct estimate of his character and labors can, perhaps, be formed from a remark of Bishop Simpson, in his Encyclopedia of Methodism, that "long before the organization of the Church Extension Society, John Swahlen was virtually such an organization in himself."

He was married in the year 1838 to Ann Taylor Gibbons, a native of Chester county, Pennsylvania, who was descended from one of the early Quaker families, which made their home in Pennsylvania shortly after the first settlement of the colony by Penn. Her father was named John Gibbons. Her mother belonged to the Cope family, also connected with the early Quaker settlement of Pennsylvania.

William Fletcher Swahlen was the oldest of two children. He has a sister who resides at Evansville, Indiana. During his early life his changes of residence were frequent on account of the itinerant labors of his father, but in several eastern cities he had most excellent educational advantages. At Buffalo his instructor was N. P. Stanton, Jr., afterward Secretary of the State of New York. At Albany he attended the Albany Academy, under the principalship of George H. Cook and David Murray. At Baltimore he was a student at the Light Street Institute, where he had the benefit of two years' thorough instruction by Asbury J. Morgan. In 1856 and 1857, his teacher was Prof. Charles Anthon, of the Columbia College Grammar School. In the fall of 1858 he entered the Freshman class of the Troy University, of which the Rev. John McClintock, D.D., was then president. In 1860 he became a member of the Sophomore class of the University of Pennsylvania, where he pursued the regular classical course, graduating in July, 1863.

Immediately after his graduation he was elected Adjunct Professor of Greek and German in McKendree College, and took his place among the regular corps of instructors, in October, 1863. From that date to the present time, he has been uninterruptedly connected with the college faculty. In 1867 he was elected to a full professorship. He was married on the 29th of June, 1873, to Miss Carrie V. Hypes, daughter of Benjamin Hypes, one of the oldest residents of the town of Lebanon. There have been four children by this marriage; Ella Blanche, Walter Gibbons, (now deceased); Percy Hypes, and Arthur Essex. Prof. Swahlen, with one exception, is now the oldest member of the college faculty, and has assisted in giving McKendree its reputation for thoroughness of instruction. In 1870, at the annual session of the Southern Illinois Conference held at Lebanon, he was ordained a deacon in the Methodist Episcopal ministry, by Bishop Simpson, and in 1877 was ordained elder by Bishop Thomas Bowman. In 1866 he received the degree of A. M., both from the McKendree College and the University of Pennsylvania, his alma mater; and in 1877, the degree of Ph. D., from the Iowa Wesleyan University.

CHARLES BLANCK, (DECEASED).

Among the former prominent business men of Lebanon the name of Charles Blanck deserves to be perpetuated in the history of St. Clair county. He was born at Malchow, in Mecklenburg Schwerin, on the 14th of December, 1833. The family had lived in the town of Malchow for several generations, and there was born Henry Blanck, the father of the subject of this sketch. He carried on the business of a cloth manufacturer. The first thirteen years of Mr. Blanck's life were spent in Germany. At the age of six he began attending a school connected with the Lutheran church, the studies in which he completed before leaving the old country. In 1846 the family emigrated from Germany to America, landing at New Orleans on the 13th of October, 1846. From that place they came immediately to St. Louis, and after living two months in that city, became residents of Lebanon. Here, in the spring of 1847, Henry Blanck established a wool-carding machine, which he carried on for a number of years. He died on the 8th of April, 1876. His widow, whose name before marriage was Elizabeth Pröfke, is still living at Lebanon, and was seventy years of age in April, 1881.

Soon after coming to Lehanon, Mr. Blanck went to live with James M. Whittaker, with the object of learning the English language. He made rapid progress, and in after life spoke the English with so much correctness, and freedom from foreign accent, that it could not be told that he was not a native of this country. After remaining a few months at Judge Whittaker's he entered the store of Col. Hugo Wangelin, then in the mercantile business at Lebanon, and was employed by him two years. When sixteen he went to St. Louis with a view of obtaining a situation in that city. He was without friends, and remained at the hotel four weeks, sometimes lonesome and despondent, before he was able to secure anything to do. He was then given employment in a dry goods store, and remained four years in the same establishment. He was active and industrious, and pleased his employers so well that they regretted to dispense with his services, and offered him an increase of salary if he would remain. He had made up his mind, however, to go into business for himself, and in the spring of 1854 came to Lebanon, and purchased, partly on time, a small stock of goods from the firm of Sargeant & Wangelin, and embarked in business on his own account. His only capital at that time was some money which he had saved while in St. Louis. He kept this store in a frame building at the corner of St. Louis and Mill streets, and was afterward in business uninterruptedly at this location up to the time of his death.

He went into business at the time of the building of the Ohio and Mississippi railroad through St. Clair county. When he came to Lebanon from St. Louis he was a passenger on the locomotive which made the first trip over the road from East St. Louis to Lebanon, then the eastern terminus. The building of the railroad. and other circumstances, made business active in Lebanon, and Mr. Blanck prospered from the start. He made the best of his opportunities, and rapidly accumulated money. In 1858 the old frame structure in which he made his first attempt at a business career. was supplanted by a substantial brick building, which is still standing, though it was partly destroyed by fire after Mr. Blanck's death, and has since been rebuilt. He was married at Lebanon on the 1st day of January, 1855, to Miss Jennie Cape, who was born in Washington county, Missouri. Her father, William B. Cape, was a native of Virginia, and died in Washington county, Missouri. Her mother, Amy Carty, was born in Kentucky, and is still living at Carrollton, in this state. The death of Mr. Blanck occurred on the 15th of April, 1878. He was then in the forty-fifth year of his age, in the prime of life, and in the midst of a business career which up to that time had been more than usually successful.

He was well known as an enterprising and active business man. Though, with the exception of attending night-school in St. Louis. he had no advantages for instruction in this country, yet he had acquired by wide reading, a valuable stock of information, and was a good English scholar. While living in St. Louis he had acquired a thorough knowledge of the French language. He possessed refined tastes, and was a lover of music and works of art. He was identified in some capacity with the government of Lebanon for many years; first as city register, then as treasurer, and afterwards as member of the board of aldermen, in which he served as chairman of the finance committee. He was especially interested in the public schools, and was regarded as one of the most active members of the board of education. He was an honest, upright, and useful citizen, and a man who attached to himself many warm personal friends. His death was a loss not only to his immediate family, but to the community at large. He was generous in his disposition, charitable to the poor, and will long he remembered for his many good deeds. His grave in the cemetery at Lebanon is marked by a handsome monument, erected to his memory by Mrs. Blanck. He was a democrat, but took no active or conspicuous part in politics. He had been brought up a member of the Lutheran church, but in Lebanon attended, with his family, the Methodist church, from which he was buried. His oldest child, Ida Belle, is now the wife of James D. Baker, who is engaged in the banking business at Lebanon. The youngest, Amy Elizabeth, married Charles W. Harrison, of Belleville.

SUMMERFIELD PRECINCT.

IIS precinct lies in the extreme north-east corner of the county, the greater part being in T. 2 N., R. 6 W., with a strip one and a half miles wide and four long, from the north of T. 1 N., R. 6 W. It is bounded on the north by Madison county, east by Clinton county, south by Mascoutah, and west by Lebanon precints. The surface is a pleasantly undulating prairie, containing numerous high and beautiful building sites. The soil is rich and productive, and many fine, highly-improved farms may be seen within its borders. Several small streams, tributaries of Silver Creek, flow westwardly through the precinct, and furnish drainage to the lands and a supply of water for other purposes. There are several small patches of timber scattered over the territory, which supply the demand for fencing, etc. The Ohio and Mississippi railroad runs from east to west through the precinct, entering it on section 24 and leaving on section 28.

The first settlements in this precinct were made prior to 1810, one mile south of the present site of Summerfield, in what is known as the Union Grove settlement. The earliest settler was Nathan Chambers, who located on section 33, near a small branch of Silver Creek, as early as 1806. Chambers was a man of some talent, and well adapted for the hardships incident to a frontier life. In 1811-12 he built a fort on his place, which was known as "Chambers' Fort," where the neighboring families gathered for protection against Indian depredations. Mr. Chambers held several minor county offices in early times. We will mention the names of some of the earliest settlers in this vicinity :- Robert and James Moore. John Broom, William Padfield, Robert Farar, Samuel and Alfred Ryle, Henry Hutton, John Dew, a Methodist minister; Thornton Peeples, also a Methodist minister; Dr. Anthony W. Casad, Edmond Randle, Malcom Johnson, Peter Wright, Wm. Lunceford and Samuel H. Thompson-a noted Methodist minister. William Padfield was a native of Kentucky, and settled here in 1815. He had quite a large family, most of whom married and left descendants. The sons were-Thomas, William R. (who lived in a fine residence in the suburbs of Summerfield); Henry, James R., a farmer, residing on section 34; Joseph, Hiram, and several daughters. Wm R. and James R. are the only sons now living. Mr. Padfield was a zealous member of the M. E. Church, and for a number of years had a camp-meeting ground on his farm. Joshua Barnes was an early settler, and also an early Methodist preacher and school teacher. Among the earliest settlers north of Union Grove may be mentioned W. W. Roman, Wm. Frazier, Michael Keith, J. McKeg, John Lord, Mr. Anderson, Joseph Schrougham, John Marney, Capt. Morris, Preston Utley, James Paydon, and others. The following are the land entries in this precinct in 1814, as taken from the county records: Daniel Simons, S. W. 1 sec. 33, 160 acres, Sept. 26; George Nichols, N. E. 4 sec. 34, 160 acres, Sept. 15; Pleasant Nichols, N. W. 1 sec. 34, 160 acres, Sept. 15; Nathan Chambers, S. W. 1 sec. 34, 160 acres, Sept. 15; Francis Swan, S. E. <sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> sec. 34, 160 acres, Sept. 16. The above are in T. 2 N. R. 6 W. Francis Swan, N. E. <sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> sec. 3, 153 <sup>43</sup>/<sub>100</sub> acres, Sept. 16; Nathan Chambers, N. W. 1 sec. 3, 154 acres, Sept. 15; Robert Frazier, N. E. 1/2 sec. 9, 160 acres, Sept. 10; John Brown, N. W. 1/2 sec. 10. 160 acres, Nov. 24; John Nichols, N. E. 4 sec. 4, 154 100 acres, Sept. 26; Henry Hutton, S. W. 4 sec. 4, 160 acres, Sept. 10, are in T. 1 N. R. 6 W. John Wordsworth, who resides on section 16, is a native of Clinton county, Illinois, and settled in St. Clair in 1830. G H. Appel, a farmer on section 35, was born in Germany, and came to this county in 1834. John H. Calbreath, who resides on section 11, is a son of William Calbreath, who settled in this county about 1804-5. He was born here in 1825. Judge James Whittaker, an honorable citizen who resides in the northern part of this precinct, was an early associate judge, and has held other minor offices.

The first school-house was erected of logs in Union Grove at a very early date, and schools were held there for some time before other school-houses were built in this precinct. A church was also built in this settlement by the Methodist denomination about 1820; but soon after it was completed it was set on fire by some evil-disposed parties, and completely destroyed. It was soon replaced by another, even larger and better than the one before. The first mill was built by William Padfield in section 2 of T. 1 N., R. 6 W., about 1826. It was an ox mill, and the largest of the kind at that time in this part of the country. The building was about  $60 \ge 80$ feet, and five stories high. It was a grist and saw mill, propelled by ten oxen. Padfield's mill was known and patronized by the settlers for thirty miles around. Mr. Padfield also had a blacksmith's shop and store at this point, and at that early day there was considerable trading done here. The store was kept by Thomas Padfield, and was opened as early as 1818.

Frederick Hecker arrived in the United States in autumn, 1848, a voluntary exile. Hecker was born in Eichtersheim, Baden, September 28th, 1811, had received a splendid education, became a most distinguished jurisprudent and ardent politician. Hecker was the acknowledged leader of republicanism in south Germany, organized as such, an insurrection against the existing monarchy, in the spring of 1848, was defeated at Kandern, and fled into Switzerland. After a brief stay, he emigrated t > America. Another revolutionary attempt, promising a better success, re-called Hecker to Europe, where he arrived in July, 1849, just in time to learn that his most cherished dreams of freedom and popular sovereignty would have to remain dreams for ages yet. Hecker returned the same year and settled in this township, near Summerfield. His home was known as the most hospitable one far or near, and of the thousands that came in the course of years to pay their respects to the revolutionist and philosopher, not one departed but was most favorably impressed with the amiability of host and hostess. Hecker died on the 24th of March, 1881, and was buried on the 28th. His funeral was the largest ever witnessed in St. Clair county. A dozen states sent delegations, and the friends that participated in the solemnizing of the day, are to be numbered by thousands.

VILLAGE OF SUMMERFIELD.

This place, like many others in the west, sprang into existence with the building of the railroad through this part of the county. It was laid out in the spring of 1854, by Thomas Casad and B. T. Kavanaugh. At the time it was laid out, the site was covered with a gr wth of small timber and underbrush; not a house was within its limits. The first building was erected by Samuel S. Casad, soon after the survey was made, in the spring of 1854. It was a small one-story frame dwelling, situated on block eight, lot four, and is still standing, and forms a part of Peter Kullmann's store-house. In one room of this building, Mr. Casad kept a small stock of general store goods, and it was only a few months until a post-office was established, and Mr. Casad was appointed post-master.

Samuel S. Casad was not only the first resident of the village, but also the first merchant, and did much toward building up the place. He soon erected a second house, on the lot just north of the first, and the following fall, John Wakefield, Rev. Thornton Peeples and Dr. Walker, each erected dwellings about the same time. Dr. Walker was the first resident physician. The present large steam flouring mill was being built in 1854, and a blacksmith shop was also opened in the same year. In the spring of 1855, Andrew Hall and Thomas Casad erected several tenement houses, and this year the population was considerably increased. A twostory frame building was erected by H. Beetle, who opened a hotel, the first in the place. Mr. Casad continued the only merchant until the completion of a store-house by Rev. Thornton Peeples, in the summer of 1856, when Bradford & Brother, of St Louis, laid in a stock of clothing. The next store-house was built by John Wakefield, early in 1857, and that spring Wakefield & Phillips opened a general stock of goods. In the same year Rev. Thornton Peeples erected another store, and a general stock of goods was opened in it by the firm, Peeples & Dew.' This year a broom factory was erected by a stock company, composed of enterprising men, and operated successfully by Haven & White for several years. In a severe storm the building was blown down, and was never rebuilt. There were several stores and minor enterprises establi hed in 1857 and '58, and since then the village has grown gradually, and like all places, there have been numerous changes in the business circle. S. P. Dew, Joseph R. Padfield, John M. Casad, Charles Wakefield, Henry Ruth, George Bumb, John Schupp, Dr. A. W. Casad. Garret and Jacob Vogt, Charles L. Dew, Julius Winkler, Joseph Trenz, George Peters and Jacob Schuster, were among the early residents, and business men not above mentioned.

The first school was a private one, taught in the rear of Rev. Peeples' store-house, in the summer of 1856, by Miss Lucy E Dew. It was a three-months' subscription school. The first public school building was erected in 1860. It is still standing near the new one, and is now being used by the German parochial school. It is a brick, one story high, 36x40 feet, with two rooms, and cost, when built, \$4,000. The present fine brick structure was erected in 1874, at a cost of \$10,500, including furniture. It is  $40 \times 60$  feet, and two stories high. The entrance projects from the main building and runs above the roof, forming a tower, in which swings a bell. It has four school-rooms and employs four teachers.

The Methodist denomination built the first church, which was completed in 1857. It was constructed of brick, in size about 40x60 feet, with basement, where the public schools were first held. This building was torn down in 1874, and their present fine brick church was built on the same spot.

The Mennonite church is a one-story brick structure, about 30x45 feet, and was erected in 1858.

The German Methodist church was erected in 1864. It is a brick building, about 24x36 feet. The Evangelical Lutherans have a brick church about 30x40 feet, which was erected in 1865.

Summerfield was incorporated under the general law as a village in 1866.

A coal-shaft was sunk at this point several years ago, but was never successfully worked. Coal was discovered at a depth of three hundred and eighty feet; the vein, however, was but three and a half feet in thickness, which was too small to be profitably worked. Summerfield, situated as it is in the heart of a rich and populous farming district, makes it a good point for shipping and general mercantile business. The precinct and village together have a population of 1,676, both well supplied with churches and schools, which are liberally maintained. Summerfield has two secret societies; the Summerfield Lodge, No. 342, A. F. & A. M., was chartered in 1860, and has a membership of twenty-four. The Summerfield Lodge, No. 163, A. O. W. M., was chartered March 12, 1880, and has twenty-eight members. Both societies are in good working order.

The Summerfield Mills as stated above, was built in 1854, by Casad, Wakefield & Co. In 1859 it was purchased by C. Eisenmayer, the present owner, who enlarged the building and capacity. It is an excellent mill, and contains seven run of burrs and six pairs of rolls, with a capacity of manufacturing two hundred and fifty barrels of flour per day. Several fine brands of flour are manufactured, most of which is shipped to the eastern states and to various parts of Europe. The building is about half brick and half frame, five stories high. Everything is well arranged, and it is among the best mills in the county. A large cooper shop is carried on in connection with the business. Employs in all about thirty-five men

In 1880 Ruth & Whitaker erected an elevator on the railroad, just east of the depot. It is constructed for handling all kinds of grain, and has a capacity of 5,000 bushels storage.

PRESENT BUSINESS FIRMS-TRADE OF 1881:

General Stores-J. Wiukler, S. R. Whitaker, E. Pausch & Bro., J. E. Kreihbiel and P. Kullman.

Drug Store-W. B. Taggert.

Physicians-J. H. Hewitt, J. A. Close.

Bakery-William Bloch.

Hardware and Stoves-Jacob Braundel.

Hotels-Sewell House; Prairie House, Joseph Trenz, proprietor; Tremont House, John Miller, proprietor.

Shoe Shops-Louis Tecklenburg, Jacob Seitz, Charles Antoine.

Blacksmith Shops - George Bumb, Frank Grimm, Sen., Frank Grimm, Jr.

Wagon Shops-Phillip Bauhenz, Louis Landwehr.

Barber Shop-Jacob Schuster, Jr.

Harness Shop-Christian Trost.

Saloons-A. Lerch, A. Seger, John Appel, T. McDonald, Phillip Fischer.

RESIDENCE OF WM.R. PADFIELD, 4 OF A MILE WEST OF SUMMERFIELD, ILL.

.

.

• *

.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

MRS. W. R. PADFIELD,

ONE of the oldest residents of St. Clair county, was born two miles and a half south of Summerfield, on the 30th of September, 1821. His ancestors formerly lived in Maryland, and from there moved to Kentucky. His great grandfather emigrated from England and settled in Maryland. His grandfather, whose name was Wm. Padfield, was born in Maryland, and during the Revolutionary war served in the American army as the driver of a provision wagon. His father, Thomas Padfield, was born in Maryland, in the year 1792. In 1793, when he was not yet a year old, the family moved to Kentucky, and settled in Christian county, near Hopkinsville. They were among the early residents of that part of the state. Thos. Padfield was one of the Kentucky soldiers under Gen. Hopkins, in the war of 1812-14. He took part in Harrison's campaign against the Indians, and was present at the battle of Tippecanoe. He came through Illinois as early as 1811, and that year also visited St. Louis.

In 1815 Mr. Padfield's grandfather moved with the family from Kentucky to Illinois, and settled about three miles south of the present town of Summerfield, on the place which was afterwards the residence of Col. Fred. Hecker. Mr. Padfield's grandfath  $\epsilon r$ made the first improvements on the Hecker farm. He died at this place at the age of seventy-five. The settlement in this neighborhood, called Union Grove, was one of the earliest in that part of the county. Mr. Padfield's father was twenty-three years old when the family made their home in Illinois. Soon after his arrival he opened a store at Carlyle-the first one ever in existence in that town. After carrying on this store for three or four years, the goods were moved to Union Grove, where Mr. Padfield's father continued the business. Thomas Padfield was married at Carlyle to Temperance Hill, daughter of Major Isaac Hill. She was born in Georgia. Her father, Major Hill, was in the war of 1812, and during that campaign commanded a fort near Greenville, in Bond county.

This is the fort near which Tom. Higgins had his celebrated fight with the Indians, and Mr. Padfield's mother was in the fort at the time of the encounter, which was in plain view of the garrison. Major Hill also served in the Black Hawk war.

After his marriage, Thomas Padfield settled two miles and a half south of Summerfield, on a farm now owned by W. R. Padfield. He moved to Summerfield in 1869, and died in November, 1873. His wife had died previously in 1863. He was a man of industrious habits, and his time was constantly spent in some useful employment. He was first a member of the Whig party and afterwards a Republican.

W. R. Padfield was raised in the country, and attended the oldfashioned subscription schools, held in log school-houses with puncheon floors and slab benches. He went to school as much as he had opportunity, but most of his education was obtained at home, nights, without instruction, by the light of a brushwood fire He was married in June, 1853, to Miss Caroline Alexander, daughter of John Alexander. The Alexander family came to Illinois from Pennsylvania, and settled near Shiloh. She died of consumption within a few months after her marriage. Mr. Padfield engaged in farming on his father's old farm, two miles and a half south of Summerfield, and lived there till he moved to his present residence just west of Summerfield in 1880. A view of this place appears on another page. He owns three hundred and fifty acres of land south of Summerfield. Beside his residence adjoining Summerfield, he is the owner of considerable property in that town. His second marriage took place in the spring of 1863, to Anna Klein, a native of Manheim, Germany. She died in the spring of 1874. His present wife. to whom he was married in the spring of 1875, was Elizabeth Klein, a sister of his second wife. She was born on the ocean while her parents were coming to this country. Her father is Powell Klein, of Mascoutah. He has two children by his last marriage, whose names are Damon and Sideros, the former now five and the latter less than a year old. Mr. Padfield has been a member of the Republican party ever since it first started, and voted for Fremont in 1856, the first Republican presidential candidate. He is a member of the Masonic lodge at Summerfield. He was elected Justice of the Peace in 1874, and has filled that position with satisfaction to the people. One of the characteristics of his administration of this office has been his desire to have parties to a suit settle their disputes without litigation, and in this he has been generally successful.

DR. EDWARD PARKS BLAND

Is a resident of Summerfield precinct, and was born in Amelia county of the Old Dominion, on the 13th of December, 1813. The family to which he belongs was of English origin, and occupied a good position in that part of Virginia The subject of this sketch was raised in Virginia. He acquired a liberal education, and for a time was a student in William and Mary College. Soon after leaving college he came west, and reaching the neighborhood of St. Louis, took charge of a school at Bridgeton, St Louis county, Missouri. He was only temporarily engaged in this occupation. Having made up his mind to enter the medical profession, he entered the old McDowell College in St. Louis, and attended lectures during the winter of 1846-7. He began practice in St. Louis county, Missouri, but in 1848 became a resident of St. Clair county, and undertook the practice of his profession at Fayetteville. He was a resident of that place for seven years, and then in the year 1855. removed to Mascoutah, where he was engaged in the practice of medicine till 1861.

While living at Mascoutah he married (on the 9th of April, 1856,) Julia Ann Padfield, daughter of Thomas Padfield. The Padfield family was one of the earliest to settle in the north-eastern part of St. Clair county. Mrs. Padfield's great-grandfather was born in England, and on coming to America settled in Maryland. In 1793 her grandfather, whose name was William Padfield, moved from Maryland and settled in Christian county, Kentucky. Her father was born in Maryland, and was not a year old when the family moved to Kentucky. He was in the war of 1812–14, served in General Harrison's campaign against the Indians, and was present at the battle of Tippecance. He is said to have opened the first store that was ever in the town of Carlyle. He married Temperance Hill, daughter of Major Isaac Hill, who was one of the first settlers of Carlyle, and a soldier both in the war of 1812–14 and the Black Hawk war.

Dr. Bland, in 1861, became a resident of the town of Summerfield, where he engaged in the practice of his profession. In 1870 he moved to his present residence in section 35, T. 2 N., R. 6 W.

He has since retired from the practice of his profession, and has been engaged in farming. Dr. Bland has taken an active interest in politics. He was warmly attached to the democratic party. His views have been thoroughly honest and sincere, and of that advanced and positive type which characterized all his mental convictions. During his active life he was a man of much mental activity, and formed his views regardless of the opinions of others. He possessed a mind of great candor, and was free, outspoken and fearless in the expression of his sentiments. He cared little for popular favor. As a physician, he had a good reputation, and was regarded as a man of broad and liberal education.

His two children are—Edward Parks Bland, Jr., and Richard Lee Bland, who are now living at home and employed in the management of the farm. The former received his early education from his father, was for a time a student in McKendree College, and graduated from a commercial institute in St. Louis.

JAMES M. WHITTAKER

WHO has been a resident of St. Clair county since 1838, is a native of Delaware, and was born November 20, 1816. The family is of English descent. His great-grandfather, Henry Whittaker, emigrated from England to Delaware in 1640. His grandfather, James Whittaker, and his father, Henry Whittaker, were born and raised in Kent county, Delaware, near Dover. The subject of this sketch was the second of a family of six children. His mother, whose maiden name was Sallie Miller, was a daughter of Conrad Miller, and belonged to a German family which had lived in Delaware for several generations. Judge Whittaker was raised in Deleware. For a short time he attended school at Dover, the capital of the state. In 1838, then in his twenty-second year, he came West. In the winter of 1838-9 he taught school on Ridge Prairie. In March, 1839, he married Mary Penn, daughter of William and Rhuma Penn. He soon afterward went to farming on Ridge prairie and in 1844 moved north-east of Lebanon. Since 1853 he has resided on his present farm in section two of township two north, range six west. He is the owner of about a thousand acres of land, part of which lies in Madison county. He has eight children, six sons and two daughters. He has always been a democrat in politics. In 1858, under the old system of county judges, he was elected associate judge, and filled that office four years. He was elected as representative from St. Clair county in the Thirtieth General Assembly in 1876, and served during the session of the legislature in the winter of 1876-7.

JOSEPH R PADFIELD.

ONE of the old citizens of the north-eastern part of the county, is Joseph R. Padfield, who was born in St. Clair county, Illinois, four miles and a half south of Summerfield, on the 24th of September, 1820. The Padfield family is of English descent, and at an early date emigrated from England and settled in Maryland. Particulars of the early family history may be found elsewhere in the biographical sketch of W. R. Padfield. In 1793 Mr. Padfield's grandfather moved from Maryland to Kentucky. William Padfield. the father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Kentucky in the year 1796, was raised in that state, and obtained an ordinary education in the common schools. In 1815 the family moved to Illinois and settled at Union Grove, four miles and a half south of Summerfield. William Padfield in 1818 married Mahala Barnes, who was born in Christian county, Kentucky, whose family came to Illinois at about the same time as the Padfields. He lived on a farm south of Summerfield till his death in 1849, at the age of fifty-three. He had ten children, of whom only three are now living. Of those living, Joseph R. Padfield is the oldest. James R. Padfield, another son, resides in Mascoutah, and John B. Padfield still lives on the old homestead farm. Joseph R. Padfield, whose name appears at the head of this sketch, was raised in the same part of the county in which he was born, and obtained his education in the early schools of the neighborhood, which, like all the country schools in the county at that time, offered inferior educational advantages.

He was married on the 23d of April, 1844, to Susan Tipton, who was born in Carter county, East Tennessee, and was the daughter of James I. Tipton. After his marriage Mr. Padfield went to farming for himself three miles north-east of Mascoutah, and then moved to a farm two miles and a half south of Summerfield. From 1857 to 1864 he lived in the town of Summerfield, and while living there filled the office of constable. In 1864 he moved to his present farm, a mile south of Summerfield. He is the owner of two hundred and sixty acres of land. He has four children, whose names are as follows : Martha, now the wife of Joseph Utly; Matilda, who married Nathan Fyke, and two sons, Crittenden and Lee, who reside at home. He was first a whig in politics, but after the breaking up of the whig party voted for Douglas for president in 1860, and has been a member of the democratic party ever since. He is connected with the Masonic fraternity, and is a member of Summerfield lodge, No. 342. He is now one of the oldest residents of the county, and has always sustained the reputation of a peaceable and law-abiding citizen, and a useful member of the community. His name appropriately finds a place in this book as one of the old settlers of the county.

MASCOUTAH PRECINCT.

HS precinct is situated on the east side of the county, and contains nearly seventy sections, mostly fine agricultural lands, originally about one third timber, but at present not over one fifth of the area is timber. The land lays rolling, and is considered the best of wheat land, and that staple is the principal product. The precinct is made out of part of four congressional townships as follows : Town one south six west, one south seven west, one north six west, and one north seven west, and is bounded on the north by Summerfield, Lebanon, and Shiloh, on the west by Shiloh, Belleville, and Fayetteville, on the south by Fayetteville and St. Clair precincts, and on the east by Clinton county. Silver Creek passes through the western part, from north to south. The Kaskaskia river touches four sections, in the south east part. Jackson and Rayhill Sloughs drain the east part of the precinct and empty into the Kaskaskia. Loup creek is in the west part of the precinct, and empties into Silver Creek. The first settlements here were made along the timber edges near Silver Creek, by settlers from Kentucky, North Carolina, and Virginia, as early as 1810. It is said several of the first families came here on horseback, and brought what little furniture and household goods they possessed on pack horses, a few used the wagon of that day, a description of which can be found in another part of this work. On the east bank of Silver Creek, in the north-east quarter of section 24 stood Fort Petersburg. It was here near the site of this old Fort, where James Anderson, Sr., built his first cabin upon coming to the territory of Illinois in 1810. Two years later he removed upon the section east, being nineteen, where he lived a number of years; his death occurred about forty-five years ago. He left three sons : James, Martin, and Abraham ; the latter lived the life James and Martin improved farms in this vicinity. of a bachelor. James Anderson, Jr., was quite a prominent citizen in the county for a number of years, filling the office of County Commissioner, and for some time was a captain in the Black Hawk war. He removed to Bates county, Missouri, a number of years ago, where he died. Robert Abernathy settled in the north part of the precinct on section nine, about 1810. Sept. 10, 1814, he entered 320 acres of land in this section. Miles Abernathy, son of Robert, settled in the south-east part of section seven, one mile east of his fathers in 1815. He put up a cotton gin here the following year, the first in this part of the county, and the settlers for many miles around came here to get their cottons ginned. It is said that some of the larger farmers here raised as much as four and five acres of cotton every year. Job Vanwinkle settled in this neighborhood about 1810 or 12. He entered the south-east quarter of section eight, September 10, 1814. Jas. Bankson and Thomas Crocker settled here about the same time. They entered one hundred and sixty acres each, September 10, 1814. Bankson's was the southeast quarter of section twelve, and his cabin stood near the bank of Silver creek. Crocker entered the south-east quarter of section eighteen. Thomas Kinghtòn was one of the early settlers on Silver Creek, he entered the north-east quarter of section twenty-five, September 29th, 1814.

Jonathan Gaskill settled one-half mile east of Kinghton's, and December 24, 1814, entered the north-east quarter of section thirty. James Gilbreath settled one-half mile south of Kinghton's. on Silver Creek, and December 29, 1814, he entered the north-east quarter of section thirty-six. William Rittenhouse settled on the west bank of Silver Creek, as early as 1810; he settled on section twelve, in the south-western part of this precinct, September 12, 1814, and entered the south-west quarter in the above section. Rittenhouse improved a farm here, where he resided until his death. His son, Darby Rittenhouse, well known to the old settlers of this county, resided on this tract until about 1852, when he died. Isaac Quick entered the north-west quarter of section seven, January 2, 1815, one-half mile north-east of where Rittenhouse settled. As early as 1825 Moses Hering bought this tract of land, where he lived until about 1837. He then joined the Mormons, and went to Missouri. He afterwards returned to this precinct, where he died. Paul Zugweiler bought out Hering about 1837, and settled on the place. Joshua Clark entered eighty acres on the east side of Silver creek, section twenty-four, extreme south-western part of the precinct, September 17, 1814, where he improved a farm. John Steel started an improvement near where Joshua Clark settled, about the same time. Brice Virgin, a native of Kentucky, settled on section six, a short distance south-west of the present town of Mascoutah, in 1810. He resided here until his death. His sons, William, Hiram and Brice, settled in the same vicinity, and raised families. William Virgin served in the war of 1812, and was in the government employ as a ranger until 1815, and was also in the Black Hawk war. He died on the same section where his father first settled, in 1855. He left his family in very good circumstances. Green Baker settled on section nine, west side of the Jackson Slough, prior to 1824, where he resided until his death. William McNail settled on the west side of Loup Creek, section thirty-five, as early as 1818. He was a ranger here in the war of 1812. He lived here until after 1847, and then moved to Washington county, Illinois. His son, Washington McNail, settled on section eight, south of Mascoutah, about 1832; he left the county the same year his father did. James Reed and John Ward settled on the north side of Hazel Creek, section two, as early as 1818. Lemuel Dupuy located on section twelve, south-east part of the precinct in 1817 or '18. He here improved a good farm, and was one of the prominent farmers in this part of the county in the early times. He was a zealous member of the M. E. Church, and the itinerant preachers of that denomination held meetings at his house. Before 1820 he fitted up a camp-ground here, and for many years there were regular meetings held near his residence every year. He was an honest and very conscientious man. It is said of him that, in the early settlement of Illinois, the corn crop in the northern part of the state was an entire failure; and the settlers for seventy and a hundred miles north came down into "Egypt" to buy corn for seed, and while old man Dupuy could have received 40 and 50 cents per bushel for his corn on hand, he would not take more than 25 cents per bushel, and would not sell to one man more than four or or five bushels. Speculators could not buy corn of him at any price. He died on the place he improved, and left many friends and no enemies. Three sons of his, George, William and Lemuel, improved farms in the same neighborhood as early as 1825. Simeon Wakefield settled where F. Perring now lives, near Strassburg, as early as 1810. He moved to Iowa about twenty-five years ago.

John Jackson, a native of St. Clair county, settled on section seventeen, south of Mascoutah, about 1828, where he lived until 1835; he then moved to Missouri.

Major H. G. Brown, Jarvis Jackson, and George Rayhill were the only settlers on the Shawneetown road between Middleton's ferry on the Kaskaskia and Silver Creek in 1830. Major Brown served in the Black Hawk war.

Joseph Land settled on section 18, south-west of Mascoutah, as early as 1825. He improved a farm here and afterwards moved to Mascoutah, where he died. His father, Moses Land, was a Revolutionary soldier, and pensioned; and for a number of years he made a trip to Kentucky once a year to draw his pension. He always made this trip in a one-horse wagon.

William Padfield, jun., settled on section 9, in the north part of the precinct where John B. Padfield now lives. In 1812 he came from Kentucky with his father, who settled two miles south of Summerfield. William Padfield resided on this place until his death, which occurred August, 1849. He left a family of twelve children to mourn his loss, seven sons and five daughters. Only three of the children still survive, and they are residents of the county.

Henry Hutton settled on the same section, just north of Padfields, about 1810, and died on the old place. None of his descendants now reside in the county.

There were no settlements made in the north-east part of Mascoutah Precinct until after 1830. It is a fine rolling prairie, and in the early times (so say the old settlers) could be seen deer, fifty and seventy-five in a drove.

George Swaggard, a native of St. Clair county, was born at East St. Louis in 1821. Has lived in this precinct since 1833, and followed farming for the past twenty years. He has lived in the village of Mascoutah.

Elisha Bagby came to Mascoutah precinct in 1831 with his widowed mother, Nancy Bagby, who bought one hundred and sixty acres of one Samuel Crane, situated three miles west of Mascoutah. This tract of land is now owned by Henry Staub.

Among the first Germans that came to this precinct was John Knobeloch now living on section 27, in the west part of the precinct. He came here in 1831, returned to Germany the same year, and the year following came out with his father and father's family, and settled on the above section. Balthasar Knobeloch, a brother to John, lives in the same section. Thomas, another brother, who came out in 1832, lives two miles west of the old homestead in Belleville precinct.

Peter Fries, now keeping a hotel in Mascoutah, has lived in the county since 1833, and was a great hunter in the early settlement of this county, and now in the bar of his hotel can be seen nailed to the wall, many deer heads that Peter, in his young days, laid low. He is jovial and talkative, and loves to relate his experience of the early times in this county, and of the exciting deer and wolf chases.

John Barth, jun., came from Germany to this county in 1835. He was accompanied by his wife and family of five children. He settled two and a half miles south-west of the present town of Mascoutah. His son, John Barth, jun., now owns the old homestead.

ROMAN CATHOLIG CHURCH OF THE HOLY CHILDHOOD OF JESUS MASCOUTAH. ILL.

In 1837, Philip H. Eisenmayer came to Mechanicsburg, and in 1839 he returned to Germany, and in the same year returned with his two brothers, Conrad and George C. Fritz Hilgard, Chris. Heinberger Conradi, and the three Eisenmayer brothers were the first Germans to settle in the village of Mascoutah. George C. Eisenmayer, in 1839, bought sixty acres of land what now constitutes his additions to Mascoutah, at six dollars per acre, and is now the part of town that lies between the depot and the business part of the place. The Eisenmayers have contributed their share toward making Mascoutah what it is to-day, and are prominent in the community. Philip H. is the present Mayor of the town.

MASCOUTAH.

The town was laid out by T. J. Krafft and John Flanagan on the 6th of April, 1837, and under the name of Mechanicsburg. It contained then two blocks of six lots each, and three blocks of twelve lots each, and one block not laid out in lots. It was called then the mill lot. Samuel Dixon lived directly south of Postel's mills, and built the first house or hut in the present limits of Mascoutah. Dixon was a hunter.

After the town was laid out, Samuel Mitchell built the first house a log cahin, and erected a saw mill here. F. Hilgard, T. J. Krafft, and Benjamin J. West laid out an addition to Mascoutah containing seventy-two lots March 29, 1839; here the name of Mascoutah is made a matter of record, and is perhaps the date the name of the town was changed. Other additions to the village are too numerous to mention. West Mascoutah was laid out by H. F. Teichman, 36 lots January 28th, 1857. Dr. Brewington was first trader or merchant at Mascoutah; remained but a few months. Lewis Hauk, a son of Hauk of the Belleville Zeitung, was the first child born in Mascoutah. Hauk published a work on chancery and dedicated it to Judge Sidney Breeze, at present a member of the bar at Cape Girardeau, Missouri.

Dr. Smith, son-in-law of Major Brown, was the first practicing physician in the precinct. First school-house and church was erected at the site of the present town-hall, north of Postels mills. Nathan Fike was the first postmaster: Brewington's store was purchased by Fike & Crownover. E. Bagby took charge of said store in 1842, and succeeded N. Fike as postmaster. Bagby was an appointce of President Harrison, and this accounts for the fact that he remained in office but a few months. Hilgard, Couradi & Heim berger bought the old Mitchell mill about the year 1835; they added a flour bolt that was run by hand power and ground wheat on the same stone they ground corn meal. They built a second store building corner of Main and Jefferson streets, some few years afterwards. Conrad and Philip Eisenmayer purchased the mill property in 1839. They soon afterwards took in as partner, Philip H. Postel, and enlarged the mill to a great extent and became exporters of flour; this mill stood about two hundred and fifty fect south-east of where the Postel mills now stand. The old mill in about 1850 was moved to Clinton county. The second mill erected near the old site now known as the Postel mills was built by Andrew Eisenmayer and Philip H Postel, in 1848 and 49; since then at different times it has been added to and improved until now it is one of the largest mills in this section of country, with a capacity of three hundred 45 and fifty barrels per day, now owned and run by Philip H. Postel. There are two other large mills in Mascoutah with a capacity of two hundred and two hundred and fifty barrels per day ; one run by Sehlinger & Schubkegel, and the other by Kleekamp & Hussman. August George has a small custom mill here, and Philip J. Postel has a corn mill with a capacity of one hundred and fifty barrels per day, he makes corn meal exclusively of an extra quality. The shipments of flour from Mascoutah amount to fifty car loads per week, a greater part of this flour is exported to Europe, different parts of England, Germany and France. The growth of Mascoutali was slow until the German emigrants began to come in after 1840, from that time until 1860 its growth was steady; the town is substantially built, mostly of brick, the principal business being on one long street; it is the third town in size in the county, now having a population of 2,576, with several first-class stores, a German weekly paper, hotels, livery, with every convenience of a first-class trading point, good schools, and six churches, some of which would be a credit to a much larger place; the denominations are as follows, that have buildings: German Catholic, German Methodist, German Lutheran, German Evangelical, Christian and Methodist.

The Masonic Douglas Lodge, No. 361, received its charter October 1st, 1861, and has a membership of fifty-five.

Humboldt Lodge, No. 286, The Independent order of Odd Fellows, received their charter October 11th, 1860, membership seventy.

Mascoutah Encampment, No. 90, received their charter October 13th, 1868, membership thirty-six.

Knights of Honor, Mascoutah Lodge, No. 1927, received its charter August 25th, 1880, and has a membership of forty-two. The four lodges meet in one hall, a large, well arranged and well ventilated, and nicely furnished room, 45x50 feet. Mascoutah has one railroad, the Louisville and Nashville, this road passes through the center of the precinct, from east to west, and Mascoutah is situated in the exact center of the precinct, surrounded by a fine agricultural country, and may be put down as one of the enterprising towns of St. Clair county.

STRASSBURG

Was laid out by Joseph Moll and others, March 19th, 1857, and contains ten lots; it is situated two and a half miles north of Mascoutah, on sections eighteen and nineteen, on a small tributary of the Silver Creek; its location was too near Mascoutah to ever grow to much of a village without any railroad facilities.

PENSONEAU is a flag station on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, four miles south-east of Mascoutah.

HIGH BANK was a paper town, laid off, by Edward Pensoneau, June 3d, 1857, and embraces the south-west quarter of section twenty-two, town one south, range six west; it was beautifully situated on the north bank of the Kaskaskia river, and it is said by some eastern capitalist to have looked well on paper, as Pensoneau had a fine plat drawn off with steamboats plying on the river, and the town shown up as one of much business and commercial importance; with this plat and good talk it is said that Narcisse Pensoneau and George W. Pulliam, of this county, effected the sale of many lots in the east. The purchasers have never realized much on their investment.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

Is a lineal descendant of a long line of German farmers, who for several generations lived in the village of Hassloch, Rhein Pfaltz where he was born July 11, 1818, and which ground is distinguished as having been the scene of many battles waged between the French and German people, dating as far back as 1460. On the old home place his father, Jacob Postel, killed a wolf in the harvest field, with a grubbing hoe-a singular fact treasured with other scraps of family recollections. His father, George Postel, died June 10, 1836, so that much of the care of the family devolved npon Philip H. In 1841 he determined on a visit to his relatives, the Eisenmayers, who had several years before located in Mascoutah, St. Clair county, Ill He landed in New York in the latter part of June of that year, and made his way to Philadelphia, thence to Pittsburg, by canal and railroad, which place he reached in Jnly. Whilst on the way, a dam in the canal broke, and 354

thus a holiday was given the passengers. Mr. Postel availed himself of an opportunity offered of cutting clover, which he did on the 4th of July, receiving as pay the sum of twenty-five cents. From Pittsburg he went to St. Louis, by boat, thence to the home of his relatives. For a time he gave himself up to the enjoyment of friendship, and on November 20, 1841, in connection with the Eisenmayers, he bought a saw-mill on Richland creek, two and a half miles north-east of Red Bud. At the time the Eisenmayers were owners of a saw-mill in Mascontah. In the division of lahor which followed Mr. Postel was to take charge of the new acquisition, whilst the three parties, Conrad and Philip Eisenmayer and himself, were to jointly own both mills This mill was patronized by people from a distance of seventy-five miles. This arrangement was soon changed by Conrad Eisenmayer taking full ownership of the Richland creek property, whilst Philip Eisenmayer and Postel took hold of the Mascoutah mills, with Postel in charge of the corn-mill. He has ever since been engaged in the milling business, sometimes alone, at others, with different parties. From 1846 to 1850 he was in partnership with Philip and Andrew Eisenmaver. as equal partners, under the firm name of Postel & Eisenmayer. The corn-cracker was unequal to the demand made by an increasing population; so in 1850 this firm concluded to erect a more commodious and better mill, and at once set about the enterprise by opening a brick-yard on the site of the present home of Mr. Postel. The mill was built during this and the following year. A year after, the firm dissolved partnership, Philip Eisenmayer retiring from the same. In 1856 the owners sold out to Fike, Land & Co., because of the illness of Conrad Eisenmayer. Mr. Postel had acquired a great taste for the business of milling, besides having been in its pursuit quite successful; hence in 1857 he built another mill in the western part of the town, which was at the time of its completion justly styled the "Pride of Southern Illinois." Unluckily for him, it was destroyed by fire, consequent upon an explosion of the middlings, August 21, 1862 In October following he formed a co-partnership with Mr. Tiedemann at O'Fallon, in the ownership of the O'Fallon mills, under the firm name of Tiedemann & Co., and which arrangement existed to the entire satisfaction of all concerned for a period of thirteen years. In 1867 Mr. Postel bought the Mascoutah Star mills in connection with his brother-in-law, Jacob Eisenmayer, who died August 19, 1873, thus leaving the property to him. Since then he has, by aid of his sons, managed these mammoth mills successfully. Thus, step by step, from humble beginnings he has gained a firm financial footing and amassed a reasonable share of property. Much of his success in life, after his parents, he attributes to the salutary influence of a teacher, Jacob Reither, whose school he attended in early youth. Reither was quite distinguished in his profession, and by the force of a strong moral character, left his impress for good on many who attended his instruction. His memory is revered by many who owe him much for the measure of success which has attended them through life. Mr. Postel's marriage to Miss Mary Eisenmayer, which took place September 4, 1842, was not without its attendant romance. He and his intended bride rode horseback from Mascoutah to the Richland Creek mills, where the bride's brother lived, a distance of thirty miles, to be united in the bonds of wedlock. In preparing himself for the wedding, he took temporary possession of a black broadcloth cap of George Grasser's and a pair of boots of Andrew Eisenmayer's. His intended bride wore a fifty cent hickory bonnet, the nicest he had ever seen. Thus attired, they crossed the intervening valleys and prairies to her brother's, where the wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Done. On their return, Mrs. Postel fell from her horse, greatly alarming her; but fortunately she was not injured. Thus, their journey through life together was commenced in a primitive way. In 1848, Mr. Postel, attended by his wife, returned on a visit to Germany. They left home February 4, 1848, attended by a brother-in-law, Lorenz Leibroch, by wagon from St. Louis, thence by river to New Orleans, thence by a cotton ship, leaving New Orleans on St. Patrick's day, for Germany. They reached their home, on the 14th of May, quite unexpectedly to their parents, who hailed them gladly. Mrs. Postel was looked upon as the first woman to re-cross the ocean from among all those who had come to this country from the Rhein Pfaltz. They returned here the same year, coming up the Mississippi by the last boat to make the trip before the close of navigation for the winter, December 16th. Fortunately, too, they left New Orleans. just in time to escape the cholera which visited its ravages upon that city. The year following Mascoutah was visited by the terrible scourge of cholera, and amidst it all Mr. Postel kept on at his work, only leaving it to attend to the wants of the dead and dying. Of his relatives six succumbed to the fell destroyer, and were borne to their last resting-place. He was taken down himself at last: but, thanks to a strong constitution, and, he thinks, to an exchange of remedial agents largely employed at the time, he survived. These were trying times in the vicinity of Mascoutah. There were six funerals the first day of the scourge. The next year emigration set in afresh, new industries were opened and a brighter future opened her generous doors. Mr. Postel took out his naturalization papers in Belleville in 1846, when Theodore Engelmann was clerk. He says he enjoyed the blessing of an American passport to the fullest extent upon the occasion of his European visit during which time the revolution was threatening trouble in Germany. As he passed certain police officers, he simply showed them a note-book in which were American entries, and on the last page of which was the signature of an American consul. His thought was "How good it is to be an American citizen." Politically, Mr. Postel is an ardent and representative republican; he has affiliated with the party constantly since its organization, with Gen. John C. Fremont as its standard bearer, in 1856. In 1880 he was elected by a handsome vote as a representative in the 32d General Assembly, from the 49th or St. Clair county District. As a representative he has proved himself worthy the votes given him, and thoroughly competent to discharge the duties devolving upon the position. He is an active and faithful member of the German Methodist church. The credit of erecting the first altar in the state of Illinois for that faith belongs to the Eisenmayer family with himself. A kind and indulgent father, a man of generous impulses, he has the respect of all. Of his family seven children are living-Elizabeth, Mary, Philip H., Jr., George, Anna, Louisa and Julius. Philip H., the first, as he is called for distinction, and Andrew, are numbered among the dead. Andrew died of smallpox at the age of three years.

VIEW OF THE MASCOUTAH STAR FLOURING MILLS AND OTHER PROPEN

OPERTY BELONGING TO PHILIP H POSTEL, MASCOUTAH, ILLINOIS.

Having now passed the age of sixty-three, he has no desire for public emoluments, and although surrounded by many of the luxuries of life, he looks back on the years that were full of struggles and hardships as the happiest in his life. The same cheerfulness of disposition, which he possesses in an eminent degree, has always sustained him, and he says he felt quite as contented when riding a mule up the streets of Mascoutah, years ago, which had just been attached by a creditor, (a wealthy citizen of Belleville) as he does now when driving a fine carriage. A man of great integrity of character, of marked executive ability, of generous impulses, Mr. Postel has contributed much to the upbuilding of Mascoutah.

ABOUT a mile east of Mascoutah, in the enjoyment of a most elegant country home, lives one whose life's labors have been crowned with a success deserving more than a mere mention. One who illustrates, in an eminent degree, what can be accomplished by perseverance and an aim in life. James H. Richardson was born in Staffordshire, in sunny England, on the 25th of June, 1825. When about one year old, he was brought by a widowed mother to America, who located in the city of Philadelphia, where she married and remained until James was about six years of age, when she removed to Westchester, a village in Chester county, Pa. Here it was that he gained a rudimentary education in a private school, such as abounded in those days. His stepfather, a teacher and surveyor by profession, after locating here became a merchant in china and glassware. At the age of twelve he engaged his services to a farmer relative, who lived near the village. This opened to his young mind a new field of usefulness, and determined him to become an agriculturist. He labored faithfully, attended school during the winter, and spent his summers in the usual labor of a farmer boy. He did not see that it would be possible to ever own a farm if its purchase depended upon such labor, hence he determined on learning a trade, and apprenticed himself at eighteen years of age to a carriage maker at Marshallton, some four miles distant, where he remained four years. After which he obtained cmployment in the machine shops of Pennock Brothers, Kennett Square, where he aided in the construction of the first graindrill ever made in America. From here he went to Bridesburg, to work in the machine shops, devoted chiefly to the manufacture of cotton and woolen mill machinery. Was attracted thither by an increase of wages offered. The work too required greater skill than that in ordinary machine shops, and to it Mr. Richardson proved himself fully equal. He remained here one year, and returned again to his former place in the shops at Kennett square, at the earnest solicitation of the proprietors. Having laid by some money, and thinking to secure a farm, he made his way west in 1848, where he purchased a beautiful tract of land about three miles cast of Mascoutah, which he yet owns. Nature has done much for the place, and in its selection Mr. Richardson's love of the beautiful is strikingly displayed. In 1849 golden visions came from the Pacific slope, the hegira had set in, and Mr. Richardson, in company with a party of about eighty persons, started on the overlaud route to the fields of gold. The trip was replete with interesting incidents. After keeping together for some time, twenty of the number, more pushing than the rest, Richardson among them,) left the larger party behind, and reached California a full month in advance of their more plodding friends. They called their little company "Ben," and the subject of this sketch was Captain of "the Bens;" in this capacity it was his place to ride ahead and make selection of suitable camping grounds. Once, when thus in advance of his companions, he came to Scott's bluffs, great massive walls of rock, with a passage between, so narrow as to prevent a horse, once started through, from turning around to retrace his steps. Prompted by curiosity he determined to see what was beyond, and rode through to an opening he could see ahead of him. Here he found an encapment of Pawnee Indians. Some of their number, who were guarding their horses, scowled upon him. With great presence of mind he boldly rode by them to the tent of the chief, bade him "good cheer," but the chief deigned no reply to the salutation. He dismounted, and passed into the tent where the chief's daughter was engaged upon some bead-work She at once took an interest in him, and motioned to him to follow, while she showed him trinkets of various kinds. On the fire was a kettle, in which a dog was being prepared for dinner. Richardson thought that should the chief conclude to treat him as a friend he would ask him to dinner, and the prospect of having to eat dog was no ways pleasing. The invitation was extended, and Richardson bethought himself of some crackers he had with him, which he shared with the daughter, and motioned his company was waiting for him, and left, greatly relieved. The long, tedious trip ended, the party reached the El Dorado, and commenced mining operations. Here his skill as a mechanic was illustrated in the mines by his making the first cradle for the washing of gold ever invented. This expedited the business of goldwashing, enabling one man to do the work of ten as done by the process then in vogue in the mines. The subject of this sketch did well, but after getting cleverly started he concluded to return to Illinois on a visit, fully determined that it should be only a visit. At San Francisco, the company with which he started found passage by steamer risky, owing to the prevalence of cholera on board, hence they took passage on a sail vessel, the "Powhatan." The vessel was without sufficient ballast, and when a few days out was at the mercy of trade winds, which drove her to sea a distance of a thousand miles. Provisions grew scarce. The daily allowance was made a biscuit and a pint of water. These failed, and the passengers, in their extremity, determined on casting lots the following day as to which should become a sacrifice to satisfy the hunger of the others, but before the plan was carried into execution land was espied. Once landed, they constructed rude carts, on which to transport their effects across Central America, which they accomplished after four weeks of suffering, reaching Graytown, where they took ship for Panama, thence across the gulf to New Orleans. He reached St. Clair county in mid-winter, 1850. Not wanting a repetition of his late experience, he engaged his services to Jacob Rentchler, who was making drills, having bought the right for the State of Illinois for the manufacture of the "Pennock drill." On the 14th of February, 1851, he was married to Miss Maria Rentchler, daughter of his employer Jacob and wife, Elizabeth Rentchler. By this union there have been eleven children, seven of whom are living. In the spring after marriage he moved to the farm, where he yet resides, and commenced those improvements which have made it one of the best in St. Clair county. His family are interesting and accomplished. All the advantages of school, music, etc., have been bestowed upon them. In politics Mr. Richardson has always been an uncompromising democrat. He makes no profession of religion, but in his daily walk strives to live up to the golden rule of doing unto others as he would be done by. His home, a view of which is elsewhere given, is one of the most elegant in the county, and is a full realization of his fond dreams of boyhood days, when he determined on the life of an agriculturist. He is fond of agricultural literature, and avails himself of every means for enhancing farming interests. A kind and indulgent father, a loving husband, his home is one filled with evidences of happiness.

VIEW OF THE FARM RESIDENCE OF JAMES H. RICHARDSON, ONE MILE EAST OF MASCOUTAH, ST. CEAIR CO., ILL.

CHARLES KARCH.

LIVING about five miles south of Mascoutah, in the centre of an elegant and highly improved farm of two hundred acres, is Charles Karch. He was born about two miles west of Mascoutah, June 2d, 1843. His parents, Ernst and Catharine Karch nee Catharine Seip, came to America from Germany in 1833, among the early emigrants who have done so much in behalf of the development of St. Clair county's resources. They located on Dutch Hill; thence to what is now Shiloh precinct, where Charles was born: thence to the place where he now lives in 1850. His education was acquired chiefly in private schools, having attended the public schools in his neighborhood but six months. He was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mary Heberer, October 17th, 1867, by Squire Lischer. By this union there have been three children. H. Gustave, born Sept. 24th, 1868; Mary Laura C., born Aug. 6th, 1871; and Charles Adam, born March 17th, 1875. Mr. Karch has always followed his avocation of farming, in which he has met with deserved success. His fellow-citizens have repeatedly made him school director, a just recognition of his services in behalf of the cause of popular education. He has also been elected township treasurer, a position he now holds. Politically, he has always heen an ardent, uncompromising republican, having cast his first presidential ballot for the martyred Lincoln, and his last for Gen. James A. Garfield. Whatever Mr. Karch takes hold of, he prosecutes with all his might. This earnestness and perseverance compels success. A model farmer, he is surrounding himself with all the comforts of rural life. A live, wide awake citizen, he is respected of all, and deserving of all the honors they may confer upon him.

J. J. RAYHILL.

IN 1818 George Rayhill and wife Sarah, Virginians, the one a native of Botetourt and the other of Hampshire county, Va., located about two and a half miles of east Mascoutah, on an eminence overlooking an extensive and beautiful prairie. Here it was that J. J. Rayhill, who yet lives within a mile of the old homestead, was born March 4, 1824. He had witnessed the tranformation of a wild prairie into cultivated farming lands; the influx of people, until neighbors, once at great distances, are on every hand. The departure of the Indians, the disappearance of deer and other game are things within his recollection. His earlier education was limited, as was the opportunity for acquiring an education. William B. Davis was his first teacher. In 1850 his farm life was broken up by his determination to try that of a miner in California. He left home in company with about thirty others, April 9, 1850, and by ox teams they made their way across the plains and Rocky Mountains to the land of gold, consuming six months in making the trip; here he remained for nearly four years. He returned home, by the Nicaragua route taking passage on the steamer Pacific at San Francisco and the Northern Light, after crossing the isthmus for New York, thence to the old homestead, when he purchased, partly with his earnings while absent, the farm which is now his home. He was married to Adeline Pitts, May 7th, 1856, hy Rev. Wm. W. Mitchell. By this union there have been four childen born, as follows: Charles Edward, April 18, 1857; Virginia M , Jan. 5, 1859; George, Aug., 9, 1861; Sarah Adeline, Nov. 21st, 1864, Of these two are living and two are dead. George, a young man of much promise was accidentally killed by the discharge of his gun while crossing a fence when out hunting, March 19, 1880; Sarah A. died Nov. 6, 1866. Mrs. Rayhill died Nov. 29, 1865.

Mr. Rayhill is a thrifty, industrious farmer, who has, by economical habit and energy, amassed considerable property. Politically he is a republican. Although active in politics he uniformly refuses to hold office, and beyond having been trustee for his home school district, has held none. He has so arranged his affairs that be can now spend the evening of his life in ease and comfort.

AMONG the representative men of Mascoutah is Frederick Dilg, who was the fourth of a family of eight children, born to John Nicolaus Dilg and wife, whose maiden name was Katharine Hauenstein. His parents lived in Bolanden, Germany, where his mother was born, June 24, 1806. In 1845 they moved to America, reaching St. Louis the same year. His father selected a farm a mile and a half south of Mascoutah, on which he lived until 1852, when he moved to Mascoutah. Here Frederick Dilg attended school until 1857, when he went to clerk in a drug-store in Belleville, where he remained until 1859. In January, 1860, he entered the office of the "News Letter," a paper established in Mascoutah, which in 1861 was consolidated with the "Belleville Advocate." Here he remained until the breaking out of the war, whereupon he enlisted with the three months' men, as a private in company D, 9th Illinois regiment. Before the expiration of his term of service he reenlisted in June at Cairo for three years or during the war. Was made corporal, soon after 4th sergeant. He verteranized at Decatur, Alabama, in March, 1864. In front of Atlanta he was promoted for bravery to the 1st lieutenancy of his company. In 1865 he marched through South Carolina towards Richmond in command of the company, the captain having been killed in February of that year. Was commissioned captain the same year. Upon the close of the war, the high esteem of his company for him was manifested in the presentation of an elegant sword at Lonisville, Ky. On the 16th of June, 1868, he was married to Miss Sophia Hauser. By this marriage there have been five children born, four of whom are living. They are Eugene H. Dilg, born July 10th, 1871; Lillie L., March 19th, 1873; Alfred, December 8th, 1877, died July 23d, 1878; Theodore, born January 16th, 1879, and Irwin F., March 24th, 1880. Captain Dilg was appointed postmaster at Mascoutah, April 10th, 1869, which position he has held continuously since. At the time of this appointment he was a dealer in books and stationery, to which business he added a job printing office in 1870. In 1875 he commenced the publication of the "Anzeiger," which he still continues. His father was born in Gellenheim, Germany, October 8th, 1807, and now resides in New York.

. • , •

•

FARM RESIDENCE OF JOSEPH GRIFFEN, ESO, SEC. 23,T.I.R.T. W(MASCOUTAH PRECINCT ST.CLAIR CO.ILL.

JOSEPH GRIFFEN.

Among the residents of Shiloh valley is Joseph Griffin, a view of whose farm and residence appears on another page. He is a native of the county, and was born in township one north, range seven west, within a short distance of where he now resides, on the 17th of February, 1832. His father was Joseph Griffen, and his mother's name before marriage was Mary Foulks. A biographical sketch of his father, Joseph Griffen, may be found elsewhere. His father settled in that part of the county in 1828, was an industrious man and a good citizen, filled for a time the office of Justice of the Peace, and died in October, 1873. The subject of the sketch was raised in the same locality where he was born. When he was five years old he went to New York to live with his uncle, Isaac Griffen, who resided at Greeneville, in Greene county, of that state. The principal reason of his going to New York was the state of his health, which in his boyhood was very delicate. It was hoped the change of air and climate would strengthen his constitution. Returning to St. Clair county at the age of hine. He attended the common schools, in which he secured the elementary part of his education, and when nineteen years old entered McKendree College, at Lebanon, in which institution he was a student about a year.

After leaving college he had his home with his father, and was employed on the farm until his marriage, which took place on the 3d of August, 1860, to Margaret M. Shaw, who was born at Castleton, Vermont, and was a resident of Lebanon at the time of her marriage. After his marriage he engaged in farming for himself on section twenty-three of township one north, range seven west. The death of his first wife took place on the 5th of August, 1861, one year and two days after their marriage. She left one child, Margaret Rebecca, which died at the age of five weeks. His second marriage took place on the 27th of February, 1866, to Belle Murdaugh, who was born in St. Clair county, in the neighborhood of Ogle's station, five miles west of Belleville. Since 1860 Mr. Griffin has been living on his present farm, engaged in the honorable pursuit of agriculture. He has six children by his second marriage. Their names in the order of their ages are Mary Alice, Clara Addie, Henry Boon, Madgie Belle, Walter Joseph, and Charles Hamilton.

In his political sympathies he was in early life, like his father, a member of the Whig party, but the agitation of the slavery question made him a Republican, to which organization he has belonged from a time previous to the war of the rebellion. He has taken no active part in politics, nor has he ever been a candidate for any public office, being content to live the life of a quiet and peaceful private citizen. As a representative of the old American population of the Shiloh valley, one of the fairest portions of St. Clair county, which has now well-nigh been crowded out by the incoming of later settlers, his name deserves a place in this book.

JOHN BARTH.

In the year 1834 there came to this country, from Nassau, Germany, John Barth, Sr., the father of the subject of this sketch. He had fought under the elder Napoleon for eleven years, stood before Moscow when that city was in flames, gathered from the ruins all the molten gold he could carry, but reached his home with none of the spoils. In reaching it he encountered great difficulty, his horse having to swim the Lorne in advance of pursuing Cossacks. He was a man of remarkable strength, and great determination. After coming to this country he was noted as being a useful member of society, aiding and encouraging public improvements. To him belongs the credit of the first donation of land for a church and school in Mascoutah. A man of fine character, his death, which occurred May 8th, 1877, was regretted by all. John Barth the second, as he is called by way of distinction, received a common school education. He was married to Catharine Koob June 7th 1849, by whom he had thirteen children, nine of whom are living She died Dec. 13th, 1874. He was afterwards married to Catharine Lines, June 23d, 1875. Her maiden name was M. K. Beither. Mr. Barth has been eminently successful in his vocation of farming, and has by his energy added farm to farm until now he has twelve farms, all within a radius of twelve miles, and readily accessible from his home place. He is a member of the Evangelical church, also of the order of Odd Fellows, holding his membership with Humboldt Lodge, No. 282, and of the Encampment. Politically he is a democrat. Office he does not desire, preferring the quiet enjoyment of farm life. He takes rank as one of the leading agriculturists of St. Clair county.

PETER SEIBERT

WAS born April 24th, 1844, in the Grand Duchy of Hesse Darmstadt, Germany. His parents, Balthaser and Catharine Seibert, came to America in 1852, and made their way directly to St. Clair county, where in 1853, they bought land three miles east of Belleville. Peter, who was then but eight years old, remembers distinctly a battle during the revolution in Germany, occuring four or five years before. He was sent to the common school in the home district, and afterwards to Belleville, where he acquired sufficient education to successfully prosecute his chosen business that of farming. He was married to Catharine Eidmann, Sept. 6th, 1868, by whom he had five children. Five years ago he bought the farm about four miles south of Mascoutah, where he now lives, and which he has brought to a high state of cultivation. Politically he is an ardent republican. It is his boast that every president, for whom he has cast a ballot, has been elected. His first presidential ballot was cast for General Grant. Although active in political affairs, he prefers a quiet life to office. He has been (and now is) a school director for the past four years. In agriculture he takes great pride, and has done much for the promotion of agricultural industries, especially in the way of improved horses for all purposes. In all home affairs he takes great interest, and is always to the front in all matters calculated to benefit the public. Energetic and pushing, he is meeting a full share of success. Mr. Seibert is yet in the prime of life, he has made his influence felt for good in his neighborhood, and with his practical views of life and determination, he is destined yet to accomplish greater results.

ANTON SEHLINGER.

Among the leading industries of Mascoutah are the Emerald Isle Mills, elsewhere shown in this work, and of which the subject of this sketch and Philip Schubkegel are proprietors. Anton Sehlinger was born in Baden, Germany, Feb. 13th, 1837. He was brought to America by an uncle, Joseph Schindler, in 1852, with whom he lived on a farm for nearly thirteen years. The farm was located about three miles east of Belleville. In 1863 his uncle, in company with Clement Schindler, built the Emerald Isle Mills, and in 1864 he was made manager and clerk. This occupation suited his tastes better than farming, and in 1866 he became a partner. He was married to Louisa Faust, Jan. 23d, 1866. By this union there have been seven children, five of whom are living, namely; Anton Joseph, born Oct. 23d, 1866; Mary Clara, born July 12th, 1873; Lena Sophia, born May 15, 1875; Anna Louisa, born May 12th, 1877; and George Nicholas, born May 12th, 1880. Two are dead: Louisa Eva, born Aug. 11, 1868, died Jan. 25, 1875; and William Charles, born March 2d, 1870, and accidentally killed by being run over by a wagon, July 6th, 1872.

Mr. Schlinger is a highly-respected citizen, a successful business man, ever ready to encourage any enterprize calculated to add to the prosperity of his adopted village. In politics he is an unwavering republican. Although politically active, he works for the general, not for his personal, advancement. He has served his fellow-citizens as member of the town board acceptably. In religion he is a Catholic, and in its advocacy he is zealous and earnest. A description of the mills, of which he and Mr, Schubkegel are proprietors, together with view, may be found elsewhere in this work.

A third interest, held by heirs of Joseph Schindler, the former proprietor, was sold on the 11th of June, 1881, under orders of the court, himself and partner being the purchasers, on a basis of $36,-000 for the mill.

FRANCIS PERRIN.

ALL countries of the civilized globe have made their contributions to free America, and representatives from many of them are found in St. Clair county. The first to seek and find homes were of French extraction, and at intervals ever since the location of Cahokia, representatives of this nationality have followed. In the year 1833 George and Susan Perrin, from Lorraine, France, crossed the sea, bringing with them their six children, landing at New Orleans, after a voyage of sixty-three days, thence up the Mississippi river to St. Louis, which point they reached March 20, 1833. Soon after they located in Dutch Hollow, about four miles north-west of Belleville, where Francis hired out to Elijah Badgley, to work in a brick-yard, which he did for three months, at three dollars per month. The following summer, 1834, he again engaged in the same service, this time serving only two months, at five dollars per month. He then apprenticed himself to Anthony Marsloff, a cooper, with whom he remained eighteen months, receiving at the end of that time eighty dollars. This eighty dollars was the foundation for what has become a handsome fortune. With it he rented land of the Badgleys, and, in connection with his brother, Nicholas Perrin, senior, farmed it. At the same time, his love for trading found play in the purchase, sale, and exchange of stock. This arrangement with his brother was continued for fourteen years, during which time they passed from the position of tenants to that of land-holders. He was married to Mrs. Catharine Pfeiffer, a widow lady, who came to this country in 1831. The ceremony took place on the 25th day of November, 1844. By this union there has been six children, four of whom are now living-Nicholas, Terisa, Rosalie, and Franklin. Of these Franklin is a young and promising member of the Belleville bar. Francis Perrin moved from Dutch Hollow to Ridge Prairie; thence in 1853 to Looking Glass Prairie, where he now lives. Here he has a farm of seven hundred and fifty acres of most excellent and well-improved land. Mr. Perrin is an excellent example of what may be accomplished by perseverance and the exercise of tact. Born in France, May 19, 1820; brought to this country when yet but a lad; working for wages;-he has gradually, step by step, acquired a competency in life. He takes great pride in his family, and in their education. Sent Franklin to McKendree college, Lehanon, and afterwards to Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., to fit him for his profession. Politically he is a straight-out republican, always ardent in his support of friends who may chance to be candidates. He has been kept in office as school trustee for the last fourteen years. He was raised a Catholic, and adheres to the faith. He says his patriotism is inherited. His father was a soldier under Napoleon, because he loved his country. He believes in teaching his children the principles of patriotism as well as mathematics or the sciences. He is locally noted for quaint sayings, often advisory in character, which have struck home with many a hearer. His father died, full of years, after having seen his sons raised from hardest struggles to gain a livelihood to independent positions. His death occurred in the month of March, 1876; his mother had preceded the father to the grave nearly two years, having died July 28, 1874. Mr. Perrin has the respect of all his associates and neighbors. He loves to talk of the rough times when men like himself were engaged in hewing out fortunes for themselves.

DR. BOYD CORNICK.

AMONG the professional men of Mascoutah whose names are de serving a place on the pages of formative history is that of Dr. Boyd Cornick, who came here but little more than two years ago, and is rapidly acquiring an extensive practice in his chosen profession, that of Medicine and Surgery. He was born in Lincoln county, Missouri, June 1, 1856. His father, Tully R. Cornick, an attorney-at-law, is living, in the enjoyment of a large practice, in Knoxville, Tennessee, at which place the subject of this sketch was principally educated, having received his academical and collegiate instruction in the University of Tennessee. After leaving college he was a year and a-half in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Schools of that state as assistant. Provision had been made for such office by Mr. Sears, agent of the Peabody fund, upon request of the State Teachers' Association. Of his services in this capacity State Superintendent Fleming said, in annual report of 1875: "It gives me great pleasure to bear testimony to the intelligent, prompt and laborious attention paid the duties of the office by my assistant, Mr. Cornick." Although successful in this field of labor, his tastes led him to prepare himself for a new sphere of usefulness, that of a practitioner of medicine. The resolution formed, he entered the office of a brother-in-law, Dr. Hutt, of Troy, Mo., thence went to Louisville, Kentucky, where he attended the Hospital Medical College, and graduated with honor in 1877. He was awarded the medal for hest general standing in his class by the Curators of the Central University of which the Hospital Medical College is a branch. Of this distinction he is justly proud. The medal, a unique gold one, bears on its face the inscription: "To Boyd Cornick, for best standing, class 1876-7." On the reverse: "From the Curators, Central University." Immediately after graduation he was, upon competitive examination, in which thirteen contestants appeared, appointed one of the city hospital physicians for one year. At the expiration of this time he was appointed a delegate by the State Medical Society of Kentucky to the International Congress of Hygiene at Paris, which he attended in August, 1878. Still eager in the pursuit of medical knowledge he visited the hospitals of London and Paris, where he could witness exhibitions of European medical skill, by which to profit. Returning to America he first located in St. Louis, Mo., whence he came to Mascoutah, May 1, 1879. An ardent lover for his calling, coupled with great pains-taking and skill in its practice, is rapidly gaining for him patrons and friends.

LOOKING GLASS VINEYARD" RESIDENCE OF THEODORE ENGELMANN, SEC. 20, TIS. R.6W. MASCOUTAH PRECINCT ST. CLAIR CO., ILL.

RESIDENCE OF PHILIP H. EISENMAYER, MASCOUTAH, ILLINOIS

RESIDENCE OF DR. F.X.FISCHER, DARMSTADT, ST CLAIR CO ILLINOIS.

"EMERALD ISLE MILLS" THE PROPERTY OF A. SEHLINGER & PH SCHUBKEGEL, MASCOUTAH, ILL.

PHILIP SCHUBKEGEL,

OF the firm, Schlinger and Schubkegel, proprietors Emerald Isle Mills, was born in Darmstadt, Germany, August 7th, 1829. His parents emigrated to America, landing in Boston in the winter of 1836; proceeding to St. Clair county in 1837, where they followed the vocation of farming. Philip Schubkegel continued farming until the year 1852, when attracted by the stories of golden wealth from California, he made his way thither, where he remained four years. His labors were crowned with success, and with ample means to purchase an elegant farm, he returned to this county, and resumed farming operations. In 1864 he opened a livery stable in Mascoutah, and run a hack between here and Belleville, which business he prosecuted two years, when he purchased the farm which is yet his home. In 1867 he bought an interest in the Emerald Isle Mills, which he still retains. He was married to Elizabeth Liebig, April 15, 1858, by whom he has four children living, Mary, born Aug. 10th, 1859; Henry, born Aug. 2, 1862; Eliza, born May 13th. 1866; John Philip, born June 11th, 1876, and George, born October 1st, 1863, died March, 1865. Mr. Schubkegel has been successful in life, which is due to his great energy and business tact. Farming proving too slow for his restless spirit, he followed mining, then other pursuits, until now he fills the place for which nature seems to have fitted him, that of miller. He has been honored by being repeatedly elected a member of the school board, also of the board of town trustees. Here he has exercised the same tact that has ever characterized his actions. Thoroughly alive to every improvement proposed which will inure to the benefit of Mascoutah, he enjoys the cordial friendship of neighbors. The mills of which he and Mr. Schlinger are proprietors, are among the best in the county. The conveniences for handling grain and products are unexcelled. Capable, earnest and straightforward in all matters of business, success follows him.

RICHLAND PRECINCT.

-ð-

IE Precinct of Richland is in the south central part of the county: Is bounded on the north by Centerville and Belleville, on the east by Fayetteville precinct, on the south by Monroe county, and on the west by Monroe county and Centerville precinct. In shape it is a regular rectangle, with a triangular addition on the west. It contains about 75½ square miles, or 48,280 acres. It is well drained by Richland and Prairie du Long creeks, and their numerous tributaries. Richland enters on section 15, on its northern boundary, flows a southerly course, and makes its exit near the western line of survey 607. Prairie du Long rises in the north-western part of the precinct, flows a south-easterly course, and leaves the precinct on section 25, same township. Much of the land is level and low, some of it requiring artificial draining to render it tillable. The population is largely German; they are thrifty and prosperous, and are principally engaged in farming. Its population, by the census of 1880, was 3,338 inhabitants.

Early Settlers.—The first settlements were made in the northeastern part on the prairies overlooked by and contiguous to Turkey Hill. The sound of the woodman's axe first sent forth its cheer, felling timber preparatory to the erection of a cabin in 1802. The axeman was Joseph Carr, who with his family came from Virginia to find homes in the west. They came by raft down the Ohio to Fort Massac, where they forsook their "broad wagon," as such means of transportation was called, and made their way via Kaskaskia, following an old trail on horseback and on foot, to section 13, which Carr selected as an abiding place. With him 46 were his sons Conrad, Abner, Jacob, and Henry, strong armed, stalwart pioneers, ready to meet and defeat hardship in whatever guise it came. Joseph Carr made yet merrier music in the ears of other pioneers than that of a hastily swung axe, by the changes he rung upon his anvil. He thought a blacksmith's kit of tools a good thing for a backwoods country, and brought a set with him. An aged pioneer, whose fourscore years have been numbered, says that Carr was as good a man as ever lived, although he had a disregard for religious services, as illustrated by his taking a hunt along the Okaw ou Saturday and Sunday, whenever his sonin-law, James Garrison, a preacher from Monroe county, held services at his house, which he often did.

In the following year, 1803, David Phillips located near by, bringing with him a family of six sons and five daughters, leaving one son behind. His daughters found favor in the eyes of the young backwoods gentry, and two sisters were married shortly after their arrival to the brothers, Conrad and Abner Carr. As though that were not matrimonial duality sufficient, two others married two brothers, Henry and Crisley Stout. David Philips was originally from North Carolina, where he was born in 1755. He served with honor in the Revolutionary war, and having aided in wresting the colonies from British tyranny, he sought a fair spot whereon to rear his family, moved to Tennessee, thence to Kentucky, and when in the full vigor of manhood, he heard praises of Illinois, he once again took up his line of march, led his family through the wilderness—found the Mecca of his hopes, and spent the evening of his life in happy repose.

The same year came Jacob Short from Kentucky, and settled in the same vicinity, a little to the south. He was a "six-footer," heavily built, athletic and defiant. Once he shot at, and wounded a deer, which went bounding away, the blood spurting from its side at every jump. Short followed up his game, and came upon an Indian leisurely "skinning his meat." What followed is a matter of conjecture. Short got his venison, and said "he made one Indian promise he would never take another deer from a white man." It was generally believed he killed the red skin. He was a member of the first Legislative body elected in Illinois. This Assembly convened at Kaskaskia, November 25th, 1812.

Children of these pioneers had the advantage of a school taught by John Bradsby on Turkey Hill, a little north of this precinct, as early as 1808. Then for a series of years no such facilities were offered. Indeed, it was not until 1824, that a school was regularly opened in this precinct. In the mean time additions had been made to the population by the arrival of the families of Higgins, 1818, Smiths, 1819, and Lamb, 1818. Timothy Higgins staked his claim to the west of the settlements already made, on Prairie du Long prairie, not far from the present site of Georgetown. He, as well as the Smiths, were regular down-easters, from far away Maine. Sturdy and vigorous as the old pine trees of their native state, they were well calculated to endure the hardships of pioneer life. Samuel Smith was a Baptist preacher and blacksmith. "He worked at blacksmithing for a living, and preached for a good conscience." Preaching brought him nothing-not even yellow-legged chickens for dinner-they hadn't come into fashion yet, nor did officiating at weddings replenish his exchequer extensively, as on one occasion a candidate for matrimonial honors proposed payment in coon skins for his services-and the coons had yet to be caught.

"Uncle" Billy McClintock (a name familiar to the old settlers) taught the first school in the precinct in 1824, or rather commenced doing so. Christmas time he found himself barred out, because he wouldn't treat to whiskey. He climbed upon the roof, displaced two or three clap-boards, with which it was covered, dropped down among the scholars, and offered to compromise by treating to cider. Robert and Benjamin Higgins (both larger than McClintock) stood out for whiskey, saying it had never been denied them in Maine. McClintock still pressed his compromise, whereupon the Higgins' boy picked him up and carried him out of the house. McClintock plead to be released to join his brothers and sisters, disclaiming his intention of going home, and of quitting the school, which he did. Benjamin Higgins often declared the breaking up of the school the sorriest day's work he had ever been guilty of.

The first marriages we have already mentioned. The first hirths were of girls, double cousins, both named Sarah Carr, and born respectively in the winters of 1803 and 1804. Sallie Carr, now Miller, born in 1803 is still living in the precinct. Joseph Chauce, as early as 1806, preached the Baptist faith in this vicinity. His preaching places were at "every man's house," as he was always welcome.

The Kickapoo Indians made friendly visits now and then, and yet under the guise of friendship still lurked the savage nature, and many petty depredations were committed by them.

South from the settlement already mentioned in T. 2 S., R 8 W., there lived, as early as 1814, one Thomas W. Talbot, who was married to Hetty Scott the same year. To them Wm. S. Talbot was born, June 19, 1815, and Hillery S. Talbot, who yet resided there in 1816.

- At this time two saw-mills were in operation, yet further south and west, one by James M. Davidson on Prairie du Long creek, and the other by Moses Quick, on Richland. Neither of these mills were run a great length of time. Moses Quick was of a speculative turn of mind, and preferred dealing in stock to sawing lumber. He and his brother Aaron were probably the earliest settlers in their vicinity, which was on the outskirts of the region of country protected by Whiteside's station. The early pioneers frequently had occasion to flee to this station as a safeguard against the Indians.

As early as September, 1815, a road was projected from Belleville to Quick's mill, and in February of the following year one from Belleville, via Davidson's mill to the county line, was viewed and ordered by Moses Short, Joseph Carr and James M. Davidson. An open roadway caused wagons and carts to come into vogue as a means of transportation of "plunder," as household goods were universally called. Usually these carts were provided with solid wooden wheels, without a vestige of iron. Their creaking could be heard across a section of land.

The early settlers showed great enterprise by repudiating the stick and mud chimneys and substituting therefor brick, which the opening of a brick-yard by the Carrs, Higgins and others in 1820, enabled them to do. The first brick burned for house building was at a much later date, by Ben. Smith, on land of Thouvernot, west of Georgetown, perhaps 1830.

A saw mill was built by Timothy Higgins, on the west fork of Richland creek in 1833. It had an upright saw run by water power. The first circular saw was used in a mill on Forcade field, about 1850.

John Smith, during a great scarcity of water which prevailed in the hot summer of 1821, whilst engaged in carrying it, fell dead. This was the first death of an adult of which we have any account.

A water-mill for grinding corn was built on Richland creek in T. 1 S., R. 9 W, by Billings and Taylor, in 1833.

Many of the descendents of these pioneers are yet living in this precinct surrounded by the comforts of life, the rightful inheritance of industry and earnest effort. Schools and churches abound; for fuller accounts of which see educational and ecclesiastical chapters of this work. The precinct was organized June 5th, 1839. The first election was held at the house of Robert Higgins. Nathan Arnott, Edward Tate, and John McCully were elected as judges.

FIRST LAND ENTRIES,

The first land entries were by Samuel Scott, Sr., of 213.93 acres, in Secs. 22 and 14; by heirs of J. H. Moore 160 acres S. W. 2 Sec. 2, and 160 acres S. E. & Sec. 3, December 3, 1814; by Hugh McClintock the S. E. 1 of Sec. 10, the N. E. of Sec. 11, and S. W., 1 of Sec. 11, in all 480 acres, Sept. 17, 1817; by Henry Carr. 160 acres, being the N. E. & Sec. 10, Sept. 11, 1817; by Balser Null, 80 acres, being the W. 1 N. W. 1 Sec. 14, Jan. 10, 1817, and by Thomas B. Talbot, 80 acres, being the E. 2, S. E. 1 Sec. 15, Sept. 15, 1817, all the above being in T. 2, R. 8 W. and by John Reynolds, Senior, 160 acres, being the S. W. 2 Sec. 24, Dec. 21, 1818; by James B. Moore, 80 acres, being the E. 1 N. W. 1, Sec. 23, Dec. 22, 1818, and John Dunlap, 80 acres, being the E 1 of N. E 1, Sec. 12, July 26, 1830, all in T. 2 S. R. 9 W. Before any governmental surveys had been made, J. Edgar, the largest land owner in his day in Illinois, located claim No. 2209, and under his direction survey No. 607 was made, including 5968 acres (found by subsequent and more accurate surveys to contain 6325 acres) Nov. 20, 1798. Of this tract 5825 acres lay in this precinct, and is known as the Tamaroas prairie tract. Edgar obtained the claim by buying up headrights of 400 acres each and militia rights of men serving in 1790, by virtue of which they were entitled to 100 acres of land each. In all it is claimed that Edgar obtained near 40,000 acres of such lands, which were among the best in Illinois. In the northeastern part of the township there are located several claims of like character, either wholly or in part in this precinct. They are claims 992, survey 390; claim 350, survey 382; and survey 772. These were selected in the years 1798 and 1799, and afterwards confirmed.

There are in this precinct several villages, named respectively, Georgetown, Smithton (which to all intents are one and the same, a street simply separating them), Flora, Paderborn, and Douglas. Georgetown was platted November 25th, 1853, by George Fischer. It comprised four blocks, one of which had already been purchased by Christian Meliuda, John Drasur and George Storger. The two Georges, Fischer and Storger, being interested in the plat, concluded to name the village for themselves, and bestowed upon it their common given name, hence it was called Georgetown. To the original town Fischer made an addition of seventy-six lots, it being the east half north-east quarter section 33, T. 1, R. 8, October 4th, 1859.

Smithton (the post-office name) was laid off by Benjamin I. Smith, April 29th, 1854, in fourteen lots. It lies to the east of Georgetown. Several additio s have been made, notably by the Franklin Mill Company, of the north-west quarter of the north-east quarter section 33, May 27, 1859; by Amos T. Barker, of 48 lots north of the above, July 29th, 1859; and by B. I. Smith, his fourth addition of thirty-two lots, April 27th, 1865; and by Christ. Gauch, of forty-eight lots, March 15, 1867. The population of the combined village is about 550.

The first house was built and used as a tavern by George Storger in 1853. Christian Melinda built the second, and used part of it as a shoe shop. The first store was kept by Ben. Smith, who also held the first appointment as post-master in 1853.

A reading club, organized in 1860, has a library of choice works numbering about five hundred volumes. Present officers are: Dr. W. H. Laeuffert, president, and Henry Henn, librarian. It is kept up by monthly contributions of ten cents each from its members.

A brewery, built in 1858 by George Schmidt, was operated until 1869, when it was converted into Farmers' Hall, which it still continues to be.

In 1868 a company was formed numbering sixteen or seventeen stockholders, to build a mill, which was done the same year at a cost of $17,000. Stock rapidly changed hands, and finally the mill passed into the hands of those enterprising millers, F. A. Reuss & Co. Its manufacture of flour, which is held in high esteem, is shipped direct to Europe in sacks of two hundred pounds each. It has the best improved machinery, and despite remoteness from market, does a large business. It has four run of stone, having a capacity for the production of about a hundred barrels of flour per day.

A society called the High Prairie Debating and Literary Society was organized in 1835, and, singular to relate, it has held regular sessions ever since. There is in possession of its officers a written record reaching from January 29th, 1842, to the present time. At first the society held its weekly sessions, alternating between three school-houses, the Potter, the Nat. Smith, and the Thompson. The first question debated after the adoption of a constitution in 1842 (it seems to have been kept up without such an instrument prior to that date), was: "Resolved, That the present tariff is oppressive to a majority of the people of the United States." Of the members of this society several have filled honorable positions in life—among them, Amos Thompson and B. J. Smith, members of the state legislature; Jacob Eyman, county treasurer; John McCulley, member of the state constitutional convention of 1847; Harbert Patterson, a leading Methodist preacher, and others.

Several coal mines have been operated in the vicinity of Georgetown, mostly from hill-sides, thus becoming banks in contradistinction to shafts.

A saw mill, three quarters of a mile south-east of town, built by Henry Sippert in 1878, employs five men. It is operated by steam power; it is provided with a circular saw of sixty inches diameter.

The business industries of the combined villages are as follows:

General Merchants.-Press and Daesch, George Stoerger, George Seibert.

Druggists.-George J. Eimer, J. C. Bock.

Physicians.-W. H. Laeuffert, J. C. Bock.

Hotels.—Franklin tavern by H. Keim, a stone building erected in 1853, by Geo. Stoerger, Adam Herold, Paul Boll.

Blacksmiths.-Leonard Schanz, Charles Frank, Jacob Sieben.

Wagon Maker .- John Brendel, Fred. Germann.

Books and Stationery and P. M.-Jacob Thress.

Agricultural Implements.-Eimer and Crossmann.

Saddler and Harness.—Daniel Klein.

Churches.—Catholic, built in 1868, cost $6000; Protestant Lutheran, built same year, cost $5000.

There are seven saloons in the villages.

FLORA

was laid off by Frederick Horn, May 28th, 18—, being part of the S. ½ of N. E. ¼ of section 11, T. 2 S., R. 9 W. in fifty lots. To the original village two additions have been made by the founder, April 23d, 1859, and August 30th, 1864.

Its business is as follows ;

Stores.-Christ. Horn, Henry Sensel.

Blacksmiths .- Andrew Franke, Henry Schneider.

Post-master.—C. Horn.

Saloons .- John Dill, Christ. Lindauer.

A Protestant (free) church is located here. Building is frame. Erected 1848.

PADERBORN

was laid off by Valentine Berg, August 18th, 1862, on the N. E. corner of the W.  $\frac{1}{2}$  of section 13, T. 2, S., R. 9 W. It is a small village, having a Catholic church, a general store by Broess, and a half dozen dwelling houses.

Richland precinct was established June 5th, 1837; the first election was held at the residence of Robert Higgins. Nathan Arndt, Edward Tate, and Philip Creamer acted as Judges. It derived its name from the creek which passes through it, and this in turn from the richness of the soil which lay upon either side of it.

1

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

THE Higgins family are among the old settlers of St. Clair county. Timothy Higgins, the grandfather of the present family, was a native of Maine. In 1816 he came west to Ohio, and settled north of Cincinnati, a distance of twenty miles. In 1818 he came to St. Clair county, Illinois, and located a farm near where Benjamin Higgins, his grandson now lives. He built a log house, and then sent for his family. They came down the river to Shawncetown, where Mr. Higgins went to meet them. He brought them to the place which he had selected, and there the old pioneer remained until his death in 1845. He married Susan Smith, who was also a native of Maine. She died in August, 1847. By this marriage there were four children, all of whom are dead. Robert Higgins, his son, was born in Maine, in 1805. He was in his thirteenth year when the family settled in St. Clair county. Here he lived until his death, which occurred September 9th, 1879. He was a soldier in the Black Hawk war, and enlisted three times. He weut out first in Capt. Miller's company, and remained in the service until the power of Black Hawk was broken in the west. He was 364 fond of hunting and spent much of his time in the chase, when deer was plenty in the early times. Altogether he was a man who was calculated to help settle the country in the pioneer era of the state. He had many friends among the old settlers of St. Clair county. He married Sarah Carr, who was born on Turkey Hill, St. Clair county, Oct. 11th, 1804. Her parents were also among the first settlers of the county and state. She is yet living with her son, Benjamin, and is a hale hearty woman of nearly four-score years. By this marriage there were six children, one son and five daughters. Benjamin, the son, was born near where he now resides, January 5th, 1828. In 1851 he married Eliza, daughter of Jeremiah Phillips. She died in July of the same year, five months later. Mary, the eldest daughter, married Amos Phillips; they have four children. Rosolva married Jacod Phillips, and also have four children. Deborah is the wife of Nathan Robinson, and have three childreu. Clarissa is the wife of Joseph McGuire, and have two children. Anna, the youngest, is the wife of Oliver Rittenhouse, and have one child.

MRS. LOUISA GROSSMANN.

THE subject of this history was born in Hessen Darmstadt, Germany, November 7th, 1824. Carl Grossmann, his father, was a farmer, and an officer under the government. In 1832 he emigrated to America, landing in Baltimore, and then by land went to Pittsburg, and from there came down to Cincinnati, and to St. Louis, and from there to Belleville, where he remained several days. He there pre-empted forty acres of land near where Squire Grossmann now lives, and put up a log cabin, and opened a farm There he lived until his death in 1866, except the time when he was on a trip to his native land. He married Elizabeth Barbara Dehn, in Germany. She died in 1864. He had been married before, by which marriage there was one child. By the last marriage there are five children living. He was eight years of age when his father came to St. Clair county. Here he grew to manhood. In his youth he received but four and a half months' schooling. The family was poor, and the children had to help support themselves and family. Schools were also scarce in those days. George remained at home until his twenty-second year. He then married Mary Hilger, a native of Hessen Darmstadt. Her father was a soldier for fourteen years under the first Napoleon, and was the largest and most powerful man in Hessen Darmstadt; he came to Monroe county, Illinois, in 1841. Mrs. Grossmann died in October 1870. By this union there were eight children, six sons and two daughters, all living except George the eldest son. He married Louisa Forgade, by whom he had three children. Louisa the eldest daughter is the wife of Leonard Schanz. Jacob, the next son married Mary Mitchell. Carl, married Mary Dear Throthers; William, Henry, Mary and Frederick are still at home. In 1872 Mr. Grossmann married Mrs. Louisa Houting nee Deohald, widow of Bernhard Houting. She had one child by her first husband, whose name is Bernhard Houting. By the last marriage of Mr. Grossmann, there are two children living, named Louis and Ida Grossmann.

Mr. Grossmann has always been a staunch democrat. He is a popular man in his locality, and has held many offices of local trust. In 1865 he was first elected Justice of the Peace, and is now serving his third term. He has been Deputy Assessor for the past eight years, and has been school director since the present school system was commenced. He has held as many as a half dozen offices at one time, and in all of them he has given good satisfaction and never betrayed any trust reposed in him. He has been an active business man for many years, and altogether is one of the representative Germans of St. Clair county.

HON. JOSEPH VEILE

WAS born in Wurtemburg, Germany, Nov. 2d, 1831. In his youth he received a good education in the excellent schools of his native town. He was the eldest of the children. In 1853 he determined to come to America. He was attracted here by the hope of improving his condition, and also to escape military duty, so repugnant to nearly all German youths. He came to St. Clair in December, 1853, and here found general work on a farm. In 1857, on the 7th of March, he was united in marriage to Mrs. Anna Barbary, widow of Leonard Keeler. Her maiden name was Koch. She had four children by her former marriage. By the latter there are two living. The same year that he was married, he commenced farming on the land belonging to his wife's children. In 1859 he bought the farm on which he still lives. It was raw, unimproved land, and there Mr. Veile has lived, improved the farm and remained to the present time. In politics Mr. Veile has been an active and reliable republican since 1858, when he cast his vote for the members of the Legislature who were pledged to vote for Abraham Lincoln for the United States Senate. From that time to the present, he has remained a firm and consistent member of that political organization. He has frequently held offices of local trust. In 1869 he was elected to the office of county commissioner, which position he occupied until 1874. In 1878 he was nominated and elected to represent St. Clair county in the state Legislature, and in 1880, was re-elected. While a member the first time, he served on the committees on Warehouses, Claims, Fish aud Game and License. In the last legislature he was chairman of the committee on Mines and Mining, and was also a member of the committee on License and Drainage, He was a useful member and practical legislator, and his entire course was endorsed by his constituents. He has been, for a number of years, Notary Public.

His wife, whose maiden name was Anna Barbary Koch, was twice married before marrying Mr. Veile. Her second husband was a Mr. Wallbaum, by whom she had one child, who died in infancy. Mr. Veile's daughter, Louisa, is the wife of Louis Mueller, Jr. Charles, the son, is still at home.

WILLIAM H LAEUFFERT, M. D.,

WAS born in Belleville, St. Clair county, Ills., Jan. 13th, 1855. His father, Jacob Laeuffert, was born in Bayaria, Germany, May 12th, 1811. He came to America in 1833, landing at New Orleans. He came up the river to St. Louis, then to Belleville, and remained here until 1838, then returned to Germany, and in 1839 came back to Belleville, and there made his home until his death, which took place in March 1875. When he first came to Belleville he traded in cattle ; afterwards, clerked. After returning from Europe he went into the hotel business, in which he continued until 1859, when he erected a building, now the one occupied by Mr. Lebkuecher as a tin store, and started a saloon, in which he continued until 1865. In 1867 he engaged in the grocery trade and run that business for a short time, then operated in real estate and building. A few years before his death he practically retired from business. He married Susaua Hemmighoefer, a native of Bavaria, Germany. She was born in 1823, and died in Sept., 1876. There were nine children by this union, three of whom are living. William H. is the eldest; Anna, the wife of Henry Strassinger, of Marissa, is the next: and Charles G., of Belleville, is the youngest. Dr. Laueffert was educated in the schools of Belleville, and received private instruction in the Latin language. At the age of nineteen he commenced reading medicine in the office of Dr. Berchalmann of Belleville, and afterwards entered the St. Louis Medical College and took three courses, and graduated in 1876 with the degree of M. D.; then went to Europe, and entered the medical department of the University of Heidelberg, afterward went to Strasburg, and Frieburg, and took a course in the medical institutions of those places. He remained in the medical schools of Germany for sixteen months, then returned home to Belleville, and in November, 1879, came to Georgetown, St. Clair county, where he commenced to practice, and where he has continued with great success to the. present. When he returned from Europe he assisted Dr. Rubach of Belleville in his practice, and had charge of the county hospital, and did the surgical work required there for nearly two years. He is now Asst. Surgeon of the 11th regiment, Illinois National Guards. He is an active member of the St. Clair county Medical Society. In politics he is a republican. On the 11th of November, 1879, he was united in marriage to Miss Laura Metzgar, of St. Louis. She is the daughter of John F. and Mimi Metzgar, who were born in Darmstadt, Germany.

Dr. Lacuffert has built up a good, lucrative practice in Georgetown and vicinity, and much of it is owing to his skill as a physician, and the great interest he takes in his cases. In manner he is a pleasant, agreeable gentleman, and possesses fine social qualities.

DR. G. C. BOCK

WAS born in the province of the Rhine, Prussia, February 20, 1816. His father, Charles August Bock, was an eminent physician, and held the position of Medical Doctor under the government. The subject of this biography received his education in the schools of Germany, and was trained for the profession of medicine. He studied under his father, and attended the medical schools at Berlin aud Leipsic, and graduated at Giesen in 1844. He then entered the military service as surgeon, and during that time passed through the Schleswig-Holstein war of 1848-49. He remained in the service until 1852, when he was sent by the German government to the German hospital in London, England, as assistant surgeon. He remained there until 1854, when he came to America, and settled in Chillicothe, Ohio, and remained there until 1858, practising his profession. He then came to Illinois, and settled in Smithton, St. Clair county, and there he has remained to the present. He was twice married. First in Ohio, by which union there are two children, named Charlotte and Augustus. The son is now studying medicine under his father, and has taken two courses at the St. Louis Medical College, and will take the third one this coming year, and graduate. On the 13th of November, 1860, Dr. Bock married Elizabeth Schlaefer, a native of Germany, by which marriage there have been ten children, four of whom are living. Their names are-Amelia, Augusta, Frederick, and William Bock. Dr. Bock has been regularly in the practice of medicine since 1844, and in that time has had a wide field and much experience, and is consequently well posted in the healing art. He has been very successful in his practice.

RESIDENCE, STOCK & CRAIN FARM OF JOHN NEHRING, Sec. 23, T, IS. R.8. W. (RICHLAND PREGINT ) ST. CLAIR CO. ILL.

HEINRECK KEIM

Is a native of Bavaria, Germany. He was born June 1st, 1834. When he was in his thirtieth year he emigrated to America, in company with his uncle. He landed in New Orleans, December 31st, 1847, and came up the river to St. Louis, where he found work on a steamboat plying on the river. He remained engaged in that business for six months, when he procured a situation as clerk in a wholesale hardware store, in which business he continued for three years. He then went into the saloon business in St. Louis, where he remained until 1856; then came to Smithton, and there engaged in the same business and hotel keeping, and has remained in that business to the present. On the 22d of February, 1855, he was united in marriage to Miss Anna Mary Buechel, a native of the province of the Rhine Prussia. She came to St. Louis in 1848, and was there married. By this marriage there are six children living, two sons and four daughters. Anna, the eldest daughter, is the wife of John Daab, of this precinct; the rest of the children are at home. In politics he is a republican, but votes for men oftentimes regardless of their politics. He is a straightforward, honorable man, a good, law-abiding citizen, and has many friends in his neighborhood.

ST. CLAIR PRECINCT.

- 凄.

US precinct is situated in the south-eastern part of the county, and is bounded on the north by Mascoutah, east by Washington county, south by Athens, and west by Fayetteville precincts. Its entire northern, western and southern boundaries are formed by the Kaskaskia river and Mud creek. The Kaskaskia river, Mud creek, and Little Mud creek, which enters the township from the east, in section 13, flow in a westerly course, emptying into the Kaskaskia in section 16, and together with their small tributaries, water and drain the entire precinct. The timbered lands bordering on these streams furnished the attraction which impelled the first hardy pioneers to the creation of homes in what was indeed a dreary wilderness. The broad prairies, luxuriant in their growth of wild grasses and flowers, and which form the greater part of the township, were passed over by these pioneers as unfit for the habitation of men. Deeply studded woodlands with rippling waters hard by, were looked upon as cases in the vast prairie stretches of Illinois. As early as 1816, the savage who returned to the loved banks of the Kaskaskia, where his wigwam had long held sentinel, found the pale face in possession, energetic in hewing out a forest home. Undiscouraged by the absence of neighbors; eager to meet and conquer the hardships incident to pioneer life, Nathaniel Hill, who, far away in North Carolina had heard of the fame of the Illinois country, was the first to erect a cabin within the boundaries of this precinct. Soon after, perhaps the same year, there arrived from the mountains of East Tennessee one, who by his great energy and successful invitation to others to come also, a person whose name is yet perpetuated as that given to the locality, Andrew Free, who brought with him a family of grown sons and daughters. In 1817, Isaac Rainey, then living in Middle Tennessee, brought with him his family, essaying to cross the river and locate in what is now Fayetteville precinct. Owing to floods he was deterred from this, and luckily, found a welcome at the home of Nathaniel Hill with whom he passed the winter. His first intentions were never carried out. With willing hands he aided Hill in the felling of timber, in hunting and trapping until spring, when he erected a dwelling close by. In 1818, the population of what was already the name of the "Free" settlement, was augmented by the advent of Joshua Pennington and family from East Tennessee, and Isaac Allen from Red Bud, Randolph county, a young bachelor, drawn thither by the irresistible charms of Elizabeth Free, to whom he was married March 5th, 1818. This being the first wedding in the settlement entitles it to more than a passing notice. The ceremony was performed by Peter Mitchell, a Justice of the Peace, living at the time in Fayetteville precinct; that it attracted great attention, and furnished fresh zest to gossip, we entertain not a doubt.

Richard Beasley, Sr., located on Mud creek in 1822. During the same year, or the year following, H. Darter settled on section 13, the present site of the St. Libory Catholic cemetery. David Pulliam erected a cabin on the east side of the Kaskaskia, north of the mouth of Little Mud creek, on section 16, in 1822. Thus, one by one, brave, generous, hardy pioneers gradually redeemed from the wilds of nature this beautiful country. Schools and churches there were none. Occasionally a traveling preacher, bearing the "glad tidings of great joy," was welcomed to their firesides and greeted by all the neighbors who assembled to hear the "old, old story." Such a preacher was Washington Ballard, and also Nathaniel Powers.

The first birth was that of John Hill in 1817, the second is believed to have been that of Jefferson Rainey, April 20, 1820.

The first death was that of Mrs. Beasley, first wife of Richard Beasley, Jr. Her maiden name was Sallie Curry. They were married June 21st, 1824, and in less than a year death claimed her. The second death was that of Mrs. Free in 1827. She was buried on section 27, three quarters of a mile west from present site of Darmstadt. Jack Baggs was buried about the same time on section 14, on the east bank of Mud creek.

It is related that Absalom P. Free stole a girl, Patsey Belsher, from a camp of emigrants on their way to Missouri, and married her. They were married May 1st, 1818. The second marriage in the vicinity.

The advent of a blacksmith, Jared Wilkinson, (colored) was hailed by the farming community gladly in 1831. For several years he enjoyed a monopoly at his trade, the next nearest smithy being far distant, and, at seasons of the year when most in demand, quite inaccessible. Jared Wilkinson was brought, a slave, from Virginia by his master, Washington Ballard, who gave him his papers of freedom. As illustrative of the lack of educational advantages those living in the Free settlement, who would master the three "R's" were compelled to go to Sparta. Jared Wilkinson, ambitious, as he was, to become more proficient in his calling as a preacher (for he was a Methodist preacher, and it is said a good one, as well as a blacksmith) in company with Jefferson Rainey attended school at that place. It was not until 1831, that a school was attempted in this precinct, then several neighbors, each contributing labor or material, or both, put up a primitive school-house on Little Mud creek, about two miles north-west of Darmstadt. John Campbell was the first teacher. He received $2.50 per scholar per quarter, took pot luck with patrons, or boarded around, as it was called, and had fourteen or fifteen pupils.

"Necessity is the mother of invention," so, too, necessity drives to the use of her inventions. A growing community presents growing wants. The idea of going fifteen or twenty miles to mill especially when compelled to do so during the night-time, because of endangering animals to the attacks of myriads of insects with which the prairies swarmed, was repellant, so, when Isaac Rainey, who had returned from a temporary home in Randolph county, built a horse-mill, in 1834, it was regarded as an answer to a great existing necessity. It was a primitive band-mill. Slow but sure. The reader is not asked to credit the story that a hound attracted the attention of a passer-by by his moaning, who found him waiting, rather impatiently, until the grist, slowly accumulating, would be sufficient to make a "bite." The dog wanted a square meal, and here was his opportunity.

The first German settlers were Bernard Dingwerth, William Harwerth and Joseph Stempel, who located here in 1833. Of these Mr. Harwerth is still living. Soon after coming, Messrs. Dingwerth and Harwerth built a raft on the Kaskaskia, and furnished a home market by buying up country produce, chiefly chickens, corn and potatoes, and leisurely floating down with the current into the Mississippi, thence to New Orleans, where they sold boat as well as provisions.

In 1835 the first store was opened by Robert G. Shannon and Samuel Foster. This effort was followed up by Conrad Benner in 1844. Benner had followed peddling for several years. His business grew to such proportions that he was constrained to have an abiding place, hence the store.

Isaac Rainey kept the first post-office, called Mud Creek, at his own house, about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Darmstadt. It was afterwards moved to Hermanntown, in 1856. In 1878 the name was changed to St. Libory.

In 1842, William Waeltz opened a blacksmith shop within a mile of Darmstadt, and during the same year, Peter Rodemeyer commenced a smithy within the present limits of the same village.

The Protestant Lutheran, on section 27, built in 1842, was the first house for public worship. It was a small log building, and, in 1866, gave place to a more commodious brick structure, which was destroyed by lightning the following year. A cemetery, first used as a burial place in 1839, marks the location of the church. George Heberer was the first to be buried there.

In 1837 the German population had many accessions to their numbers. John C. Eckert, Nicholas Petri, Michael Funch, Wendel Eckert, Nicholas Worm, among them. Wendel Eckert was married to Mary Perschbacher, March 1st, 1839, by John Stuntz, J. P., notable as being the first wedding among the German population.

J. G. Eckert had a singular experience with wheat the first season after his arrival. He prepared the ground, as he was accustomed to do in the old country, although Jeff. Rainey expostulated with him, foretelling the result, which was a very rank growth of straw, so rank that the wheat fell of its own weight. It only took a man five weeks, using a sickle, to cut twelve acres of it.

In 1836 a proselyting elder from the Mormons, drumming up emigration for Mount Zion, Jackson county, Missonri, came into this township. His urgent appeals and fair promises, coupled with great religious zeal, resulted in numerous converts to the Mormon faith. Many laid aside their Bibles as being full of idle tales, and accepted the book of Mormon as God's revealed will. Among those to travel Zionward, or, Missouri-ward rather, were George Baggs Free and Thomas Nelson. Nelson soon after returned and told his friends that the scales had fallen from his eyes upon reaching Mt. Zion; he had seen Mormon life in all its hideousness; fell out with the leaders; had a free fight, out of which he came first-best, and struck a bee-line for his old home. Some never gave up their Mormon faith.

Agriculturally, this is an excellent body of land. The streams are skirted with timber, and the land is undulating; the greater part of the precinct is a beautiful prairie, now under a high state of cultivation. The farm-buildings are good, and the farmers intelligent and enterprising. Population :---census of 1880-1,639. The acreage is 23,895, of which fully five-sixths is prairie. Great crops of the cereals gladden the hearts of farmers, while large numbers of stock, principally hogs, are annually fattened for the market.

Lack of facilities, furnished by railroad transportation, is the great drawback. At one time it was thought proposed improvements along the Kaskaskia would obviate this difficulty by giving water communication, but all that has flitted by, as a thing of the past. The precinct was organized, upon petition of its citizens, April 16th, 1870; prior to that time it was a part of Atheus.

THE FIRST LAND ENTRIES

Were made by H. Darter et al. of 160 acres, being the S. W.  $\ddagger$  of sec 10, April 19, 1815; Daniel Stookey, of 119.12 acres, being part of N. W.  $\ddagger$  of sec. 20, July 31, 1817; David Pulliam, of 80 acres, being the east half of the N. W.  $\ddagger$  sec. 11, November, 17, 1817; William Glasgow, of 240 acres, being the N. W.  $\ddagger$  and the west half of the N. E.  $\ddagger$  sec. 10, February 16, 1817; and John Walker, of 160 acres, it being the S. W.  $\ddagger$  sec. 3, December 8, 1817, all lying in that part of T. 2 S., R. 6 W., and by Henry T. Whitman, of 480 acres, in sec. 14, July 8, 1818, in T. 3 S., R. 6 W.

THE TOWN OF DARMSTADT

Is situated in the north-west quarter of section 35, T. 2 S., R. 6 W. It was laid off by Isaac Rainey, February 1, 1855, who, singular to relate, gave it the German name of Darmstadt. His ideas of a village were moderate, extending only to laying off thirty-six lots, one of which was already occupied by the blacksmith shop of Peter Rodemeyer, and another by a tavern, erected in 1845 by Henry Kaylor. At present the town has a population of about 350. Prominent among its industries is a mill, built in 1863, by a company composed of George M Eckert, Hermann H. Voskamp, Leonard Kayser, Henry Koch, William Massmann, and Henry Eckert. This company made, May 11, 1864, an addition to the town of Darmstadt, calling it "The Mill Company's addition." The mill is now owned and operated by Martin Eckert. It has four run of stone. Its capacity is 200 barrels of flour per diem; gives employment to five men; cost about $30,000. Flour is hauled by wagon to Marissa station, six miles distant, thence shipped chiefly to St. Louis, Mo., and Cairo, Ill. The mill has contributed much to the upbuilding of the town.

Pleasantly located, in the heart of a large agricultural district, Darmstadt, despite its inconvenience for railroad facilities, enjoys a prosperous trade. It is well supplied with schools, having a public and two private ones supported by the churches. There are two churches—the Lutheran, built in 1865, and the Protestant Lutheran, transferred, after its destruction by lightning, from its former site to a desirable location in the village. Built in 1877.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

True Bund No. 15 was organized November 9, 1871, with nine charter members.

A lodge of the A. O. U. W., was organized February 10, 1878, with nineteen charter members. Has at present twenty-three members. Meets in hall owned by John Lehr.

There is also here a singing society, "The Concordia," with fourteen members, organized October 25th, 1878. Christian Keim, leader.

BUSINESS HOUSES.

General Stores-Joseph Reith, Bernhardt Twenhaefel, opened in 1854-5.

Hotels-John Lehr, John Schlesinger.

Blacksmiths-Hartmann Koch, William Ludwig.

Physician-Dr. F. X. Fischer.

Saloons-John Lehr, John Schlesinger, Bernhardt Twenhafel.

Wagon Makers-Jacob Theobald, Henry Steinheimer.

Tailor-Henry Koehler.

Saddler-Philip Koehler.

Soda Manufacturer-Christian Gross. Puts up for the trade 47 about 4,000 boxes annually. The surrounding villages furnish a market.

Hall-John Lehr, huilt in 1864, capable of seating two hundred people.

Post-master—Martin Eckert. Was appointed when the office wes first established, which was on petition in 1864, and has held it ever since.

TOWN OF ST. LIBORY.

October 18, 1866, John Wessels laid out on the N. E. part of the S. E. quarter of the N. W. quarter of section 18, T. 2 S., R. 6 W. the town of Hermanntown. Close by was a Catholic church, erected in 1846, and to which the name of St. Libory was given. In the village was the general store of H. Ruetter, who had established it in 1849. In 1856 the post-office, called "Mud Creek," was moved to this store, and H. Ruetter was appointed post-master-so that, when the town was platted, there were three names struggling for the supremacy. Mills were built; business prospered, and, although people built on all sides of the platted town, no additions were made thereto. In 1874 the name of the post-office was changed from Mud Creek to St. Libory, and by common consent other names have been dropped, so there is presented the anomaly of a village of perhaps 250 inhabitants, on land not regularly platted as a town site. with a name not recognized in the public records, save by common consent. A large mill has stood idle for several years past, while a small custom mill, owned by Gustav Hessler, meets the demands of the community.

BUSINESS HOUSES.

General Stores-Barney Ruetter, Pohlmann Bros., Stephen Knuewe.

Drug Stores-Dr. Dickinson, Dr. Fischer.

Builders-Henry Scheiper, Conrad Busse.

Saddler and Justice of the Peace-C. D. Hausmann.

Wagon Makers-Frank Schroeder, Bernhardt Otten.

Gunsmith-Arnold Rudenfranz.

Blacksmiths-Frank Frischemeyer, Joseph Franke.

Hotel-John Biermann.

A coal shaft, operated by the St. Libory Coal company, is among its industries. It has a depth of 186 feet; is operated by horse power; employs three men, and has a capacity for turning out 300 bushels per day.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

-701

. . :

CONRAD D. HAUSMANN

WAS born in Hanover, Germany, December 8th, 1840. His father was for many years a teacher in Catholic schools in his native land. His mother's maiden name was Catharine Sutmüeller. His parents emigrated to America when he was a mere child, so young that he recollects nothing of the sca voyage, nor does he distinctly remember his parents, as his mother died shortly after their arrival in St. Louis, and his father, Matthias Hausmann, survived her but a year or two. Thus he was left an orphan and through the kindness of friends, was placed in the Orphan Asylum, a Catholic institution in St. Louis. After remaining there two or three years he ran away and took up his home with Bennet Somer, who kept a boarding house and store opposite south market. Remained with Somer about two years, when he was bound over by the clergy to a Mr. Garretson, a saddle tree maker. Mr. Garretson had been a teacher in Germany, hence he found himself in good hands. Here he remained until he was twenty two years of age. During this time he acquired a good practical business education, and a knowledge of men which has proved of great service to him. He mastered the saddlery and harness manufacturing business, and for a time in its prosecution was associated with P. J. Peters, subsequently with Thornton Grimsby. In the latter part of the war he entered into a speculation in Arkansas, purchasing goods in St. Louis in bulk, taking them to the front where he disposed of his wares to sutlers. He next became an agent for the Great Republic Life Insurance company in whose employ he remained but about four months, whereupon he became salesman for Shaefer & Co., corner Main and Chestnut streets, engaged in wholesale saddlery. Whilst in this employ he was singled out, because of his fitness for the work, as assignee of Peter Feltmen & Co., wholesale liquor merchants which business he closed to the complete satisfaction of all concerned, within a year. In 1868 he determined on a change of location, with a view to pursuing his trade of saddlery and harness making. and located in St. Libory, where he has since resided. Being of an active temperament he has combined with his regular trade various pursuits. Handled agricultural implements for four years; was elected Justice of the Peace in 1873, which office he has held ever since; was appointed assignee of the St. Libory mill company in 1877; was treasurer for his township for three years. So that he has been more than ordinarily active in a business sense. He was one of the projectors of the St. Libory coal mining company and was for a time its president. No undertaking in his vicinity calculated to promote its welfare has ever been set on foot which has not found in him a friend and abettor. He was united in marriage to Catharine Dcirker, October 7th, 1869, by whom he has had four children, two of whom, Caroline and Ida, are living, and two are dead Politically, Mr. Hausmann is a sterling democrat, and cast his first vote for General McClellan, for President He and his wife are communicants of the Catholic church. As a prompt, energetic business man; as a friend of progress no man in the vicinity of St. Libory deserves more honorable mention than Conrad D. Hausmann.

GEORGE M. ECKERT.

No citizen of Darmstadt deserves better mention than George M. Eckert. He was born in Dietzenbach, Germany, Oct. 5th, 1827. His parents, John George and Anna M. Eckert, came to America and located in St. Clair county in 1837. His father had been an inn keeper and farmer in the old country, and still pursued the latter calling in this.

George M. Eckert was trained in the common schools, enjoying for a brief time the advantages of better schools of the same class at Venedy. He was married to Regina Voskamp, June 7th, 1853, by whom he has six children living, and three dead. The names of the living are Henry G., Charlotte, Hermann, Regina, Martin and Louis. Mary, George and Martin are dead. He commenced milling where he now is in 1864. Had ran a horse-power saw mill from 1854 to 1859, then a steam saw mill until 1864, when the present grist mill was built. He has served as post-master for seventeen years. Is a consistent, unswerving, uncompromising republican. Cast his first vote for John C. Fremont, for president, in 1856. His son, Henry G., was secretary of the Darmstadt Garfield club last fall. He (Henry G.) was married to Clara Schoen, Nov. 14, 1879, near Pierce City, Mo. Mr. Eckert is an active member of the Lutheran church. Every improvement conducive to the upbuilding and development of his vicinity finds in him a friend and advocate. No man stands higher in the estimation of his fellows than he.

J. REITH.

In the enjoyment of a monopoly in his line, that of general merchandise, in the village of Darmstadt, is J. Reith. His business is quite extensive and remunerative. He was born in Nassau, Germany, May 14th, 1835. His parents were J. Reith, Senior, and Catharine. His father, a tailor in the old country, came to America, landing first in New Orleans, thence to St. Louis, Mo., where he pursued his business in 1854. In 1857 he came to St. Clair county. The subject of this sketch followed the same business for years, and still takes a turu upon the bench when occasion requires. He volunteered in company B, 43d Illinois regiment, as a private, in the early days of the war in 1861, in the three month's service, re-enlisted in the service at Cairo in the 9th Illinois, then again in company H, 149th Illinois, where he was elected 2d lieutenant. In all he served nearly five years with honor to himself. Although in many hard fought battles he never received a wound. He was married to Catharine Massann in 1868, by whom he has one child, a daughter, named Elizabeth. Politically he is an ardent republican. His first ballot was cast for Lincoln; he has ever remained true to the republican faith. In business he is correct and straightforward. By his course he has endeared to himself his numerous patrons, and built up a fine custom which is constantly increasing.

370

HENRY RUTTER, (DECEASED.)

DR. F. X. FISCHER,

Was born in Basle, Switzerland, March 29th, 1839. His parents were Franz Joseph and Elizabeth Fischer. His father practiced law for about forty years in Basle. An earnest, faithful barrister, he won for himself great esteem. Dr. Fischer came to America in 1866, landing in New York city, then went to St. Louis, where he cast about him for a location, and found it at Du Quoin, Ills., where he practiced about two and a half years. From there he went to Lincoln, Ills, where he remained a year, moving again to St. Libory, where he remained until 1880, when he removed to Darmstadt, where he still resides. A view of his residence appears elsewhere in this volume. The doctor opened a drug store in St. Libory in 1876, which he still owns and manages. He received his medical education in the Universities of Basle and Zurich. Graduated at Zurich in March, 1857. Practised his profession in his native village until he determined on coming to America. He came here prompted by a desire to enlarge his sphere of usefulnesss, and to find a better chance in the prosecution of his profession. In the practice of medicine he belongs to that large class of progressive physicians who believe that too many drugs are administered-that nature instead of being aided-the true province of the physician-is hindered in her work of eliminating disease from human systems. He is independent in his convictions, and equally so in their expression. His ability finds recognition in a wide-spread, arduous and lucrative practice. His skill is unquestioned. He was united in marriage to Helena Wagner, in the Catholic church at St. Libory, by the Rev. Father Frederick Chmelicek, August 13th, 1873. By this union there are three bright boys, Otto, Leo, and Louis. His wife was born in Posen, Prussia, in 1857, yet her nationality is Polish. She came to America in 1871. Politically, the Doctor has identified himself with the democratic party, believing its principles to be right. He was naturalized in Belleville, in 1874, and in 1876 cast his first ballot for President. Contrasting the institutions of this country with those of his native land (Switzerland), he says there is no great superiority in America's republicanism over that of his native land; that in the adaptation of practice to principles, Switzerland is in the ascendant. There is quite a similarity in form of government, but greater harmony there than here. Office he never wanted, but his say in politics he will have. He and his family are members of the Catholic church. Although in the enjoyment of a large practice, the Doctor finds time for literature, for which he has excellent taste, as his selections of authors testify. The classics of University days are not laid entirely away, but serve to while away a happy hour. A skilled physician, a kind neighbor, a man of generous impulse, he enjoys a wide, and constantly widening circle of friends.

PARTIAL LIST OF PATRONS.

1

CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE.-[CONTINUED.]

| CITY OF BELLEVILLE.                         |                                                        |                                                   |                                                     |                  | CITY OF BELLEVILLE[CONTINUED.]              |                                        |                                                                              |                                      |
|---------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|------------------|---------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| NAME.                                       | PLACE BF BUSINESS                                      | OCCUPATION.                                       | NATIVITY.                                           | Settld           | NAME.                                       | PLAC. OF BUSINES                       | OCCUPATION.                                                                  | NATIVITY.                            |
| Abend, Edward                               | Main Street                                            | Pres. Belleville Sav.Bank                         | Gerniany                                            | 33               | Fuess, Joseph                               | let N & Church S                       | Dry Goods Merchant                                                           | Washington Co.                       |
| Andel, Adolph                               | W. a. Pub. Square                                      | Prop. National Hotel                              | " [Ger.                                             | 60               | Feickert, Christian                         | Belleville                             | Baker and Confectioner                                                       | Germany                              |
| Andel, C.                                   | S. a. " "                                              | Cash. 1st National Bank                           | Rhenish Hesse,                                      | 59               | Gross, John                                 | Cor.High & 1st So                      | Proprietor of Livery                                                         | Lorraine, Fran                       |
| Atzinger, MelchiorAffleck, James        | Cor.8th S.& AbendCenterville Road                  | Foreman Cooper Shop                               |                                                     | 5417         | Guentz, Henry                               | Illinois street                        | J.P. & Fire Insurance Agt                                                    | Dresden, Ger.                        |
| Aberer, Emil                                | East Main Street                                       | Saloon                                            | Tenu.St. Clair Co. Ill.                         |                  | Graner, LouisGundlach, Henry            | Conrt HouseCr.Main & Jacka'n       | County SurveyorGrocer                                                    | St. Clair Co. I                      |
| Ames, Owen                                  | Sycamore Street                                        | Sewing Machine Agent                              | St. Clair Co. Ill.                                  |                  | Gaylord, G. W.                              | Res.—East Main                         | Iron Founder                                                                 | Lee Co. Ill.                         |
| Anderson, W. M.                             | 1st South Street                                       | Stock Dealer                                      | St. Clair Co. Ill.                                  |                  | Gooding, Abram                              | North Richland                         | Tile Manufacturer                                                            | St. Clair Co. I                      |
| Appel, Ph.Andel, C. W.                  | Illinois & R.R. St.                                    |                                                   | St. Clair Co. Ill.                                  |                  | Grünewald, Joseph                           | West Main street                       | Gunsmith and Hardware                                                        | Germany                              |
| Lena Burgdoff                               |                                                        | Wholesale Liquor DealerWite of C. W. Andel    |                                                     | 5353         | Glaser, Charles M.Horack, J. W.         | S a Public Square                      | Hats, Caps, and Gents' FurnishingCoodsProprietor of Belleville House | Moscow, Russ                         |
| Becker, Charles                             | ResSpring St.                                          | Ex. Circuit Clerk                                 |                                                     | 51               | Huhn, Henry                                 | S. a. Illinois atreet                  | Editor Stern                                                                 | Bavaria, Ger.                        |
| Bosch, Theodore                             | Cor.Richl'd &5th S                                     | Proprietor of Saloon                              | Germany                                             | 55               | Hay, John B.                                | S W. cor. Pub. Sq.                     | Attorney at Law                                                              | Belleville, Ill.                     |
| Brueck, AnthonyBarnickol, John          | Illioois StreetMain street                         |                                                   |                                                     | 57               | Hughes, James W.                            | Charles street                         | Real Estate                                                                  |                                      |
| Badgley, A. G.                              | Academy of Music                                       | Proprietor of SaloonGeneral Insurance Agent   | GermanySt. Clair Co. III                        | 42               | Halbert, R. A.Hartnagel, H. A.          | Acad.of Mus.B'd'gCr.Main &High sts | Deuggist                                                                     | St. Clair Co. II                     |
| Brockhaus, George W.                        | Thomas House                                           | Attorney at Law                                   | Hamilton Co. O                                      | 64               | Harrison, C. W.                             | 66 66                                  | 4444                                                                     | u u                           |
| Bartel, Louis                               | W. Main street                                         | Wholesale Liquor Dealer                           | Prussia                                             | 52               | Heinfelden, Cart                            | N.W. cor. Pub. Sq.                     | Editor Belleville Zeitung                                                    | Prussia                              |
| Barnickol, PeterBoucher, L. T.          | Main StreetAcademy of Music                        | Saloon and Restaurant                             | Saxony. Ger.                                        | 43               | Holder, R. D. W.                            | Court House                            | Prosecuting Attorney                                                         | Jefferson Co. I                      |
| Bischof, Jacob, Jr.                         | West Main street                                       | Butcher                                           | Wash'gt'nCo.Il.St. Clair Co. Ill.               | 55               | Huggins, J. N.Hill, W. G.               | Acad.of Mus.B'd'gWalnut street     | City Alderman                                                                | St. Clair Co. "                      |
| Beahore, J. Ed.                             | Illinois street                                        | Proprietor Pearl Saloon                           | Ohio Co.W.Va                                        | 76               | Hance, W. F.                                |                                        | Livery, Feed & Sale Stable                                                   | New York                             |
| Brenuer, John A.                            | Cor. 1st N.& Ill. St                                   | Prop. City Hall Exchange                          | Steamer Atlantic, Miss.River                    | 5 0       | Hamill, J. M.                               | Acad.of Mus.B'd'g                      | Attorney at Law                                                              | Ireland                              |
| Brosius, JacobBusiek, Henry, Jr.        | E. Main street                                         | Proprietor Oil WorksCarpenter and Builder     | Nassau, Germany                                     |                  | Hilgard, C. W.                              | Cor. High & Main                       | Insurance Agent                                                              | St. Clair Co. Il                     |
| Boaiek, Henry, Sr.                          |                                                        | Carp'ter & Build'r & Alderm'n                     | St. Louis, Mo.Prossia Ger                       | 5454         | Hinssen, Rev. LouiaHarrison, Theophilus | 3d South street3d South atreet     | Pastor St. Peter's ChurchProp. Harrison Mach. Works                      | Rheinish Prns.,G                     |
| Bœrner, Franklin                            | Cr.3d N.& Walnut                                       | Grocer                                            | Wisconsin                                           | 66               | Hartman, M. R.                              | N. E. cor. Pub. So.                    | Dlr. in Agricultural Imp.                                                    | Berks Co. Pa.                        |
| Beyer, Joseph                               | Richland street                                        | Carriage & Wagon Maker                            |                                                     |                  | Hartman, B.                                 | Belleville, N. Belleville              | One of the Props. Star Brewery                                               | Hanover. Ger.                        |
| Brenner, JacobBenedick, F. A.           | Cor Illin & 34 N                                       | Contractor & Brick MasonProp. Benedick House  |                                                     | 33               | Hilgard, Ernst                              | East Main street                       | Dry Goods & Carpet Dir.                                                      |                                      |
| Bethmann, Robert                            | Res.—Illinois St                                       |                                                   | Lorraine, Ger.Prussia                           | 5167         | Huff, William B.Hinckley, Russell       |                                        | Boot and Shoe DealerBanker                                               | el li11 le                       |
| Buesch, Mathias                             | East Main street                                       | Prop. Hotel and Saloon                            | , "                                                 | 72               | Hughes, Isab. nee Myers                     | Res.—Jackson st.                       |                                                                              | 64 66                                |
| Bieser, Adam                                | E. Main street.                                        | Harness and Saddlery                              | Germany                                             | 53               | Hauck, Julius                               | N. s. Pub. Square                      | Printer                                                                      | Missouri                             |
| Brackett, George W.Brunck, Joseph       | Nu. 2811 Gamble Ave., St.Louis, Mo.Main street | Attorney at LawFarmer and Stock Raiser        | St. Clair Co. Ill.                                  |                  | Heidorn, H. W.                              | 44 - 46                     | Cl'k with West & Brandt                                                      | St. Clair Co. Ill                    |
| Beshore, Fred. W.                           | South Rice street                                      |                                                   |                                                     | 5570         | Holdener, W.J. B. Tenner                | Illinois street                        | Proprietor Livery and UndertakingStables                                 | Switzerland                          |
| Brosius, John                               | East Main street                                       |                                                   | St. Clair Co. Ill.                                  |                  | Herzler, J.                                 | 46 6c                                  |                                                                              | Rhein Pfaltz,G.                      |
| Beatty, J.                                  | Race street                                            |                                                   |                                                     | 55               | Heinrich, Oscar                             | South Illinoia st                      | Lumber Dealer                                                                | Suxony, Ger.                         |
| Bode, P. J.Borreokatt, A.               | 5th South atreetMain street                        | Machinist [Liq. HouseSalesman Bartell's Whole | GermanyRhoin Province                           | 5358         | Hoerr, Jacob                                | Illinois street                        | Tinsmith & Slove Dealer                                                      | St. Clair Co. Ill                    |
| Brandt, A. R.                               | N. s. Pob. Square                                      | Prop. Gents' Furn. House                          | Germany                                             | 5838         | Helfrich, JacobHoffmann, John           |                                        | Proprietor of SaloonButcher                                              | Germany                              |
| Brauch, William                             | Short street                                           | Market Master                                     | Baden, Ger.                                         | 54               | Heinzelman, John                            | Cor. Jackson & 2d N                    | ~                                                                            | Ciocinnati,Ohio                      |
| Rang, Auna                                  | National Hotel                                         | Retired                                           | St. Clair Co. Ill.                                  |                  | mendzennan, winnam                          |                                        |                                                                              | 14 44                                |
| Bang, WilliamBaumann, G. F.             | West Main street                                       | Late hosb. of Anna BangBaker and Confectioner |                                                     | 3                | Hilgard, G. F.                              |                                        | Surveyor                                                                     | St. Clair Co. Ill                    |
| Challenor, H. R. [eline                     | S.W.Cor. Pub. Sq.                                      | Police Mag. & Atty at Law                         | Randolph Co.II.                                     | 51               | Hughes, R. T.Hansing, Adolph            |                                        |                                                                              | Wisconsin                            |
| Chandler, nee Lacroix, Ad-                  | Illinois street                                        | Retired                                           |                                                     | ii               | Herr, Franz                                 |                                        | Butcher                                                                      | Germany"                         |
| Camfield, C. H.                             | Jackson atreet                                         | Cotton Broker                                     | Richmo'd Co.Ga                                      | 3                | Hay, James M.                               | 1st South street                       | Attorney at Law                                                              | St. Clair Co. Ill                    |
| Cærver, JacobClancy, P. H.              | Illinois street1st North                           | PolicemanEngineer                             | Rhein,Bav.,GerNova Scotia                       |                  | Hinneman, H. A.                             | Belleville, Belleville                 | Batcher                                                                      | Jermany                              |
| Corrington, H. K.                           | Illinois street                                        | Telegraph Operator [Sal.]                         | Marion Co. Ill.                                     | 8                | Ibbotson, ThomasIbbotson, S.            | Race & 7th S. at. 3                    | Sec. Pump & Skein WorksAccountant "Works                                 | New York                             |
| Courar, John                                | West Main street                                       | Dir. in Boots & Shoes and                         | Prussia /                                           | 35               | Jæger, Fred.                                | Court House                            | Deputy County Clerk                                                          | Cologne, Ger.                        |
| Cochrane. Thomas M.                         | Cor. High & 1st S.                                     | General Manager Fairbanks' hewing                 | New Jersey                                          | 78               | Jerome, Mary, Sr.                           | 3d South street                        |                                                                              | Allegh'nyCo.Pa                       |
| Crouch, William T.Clark, Nancy          | lot S., E. of Mascontah                                | PhotographerRetired                           | Baltimore, Md.Alabama                           |                  | Jacobs, V.                                  |                                        | Architect and Builder                                                        | St. Louis, Mo.                       |
| lark, David                                 | Died Feb. 18, 1870                                     | Late husb. Naucy Clark                            |                                                     | $\frac{36}{40}$  | Johnson, M. BelleJohnson, Benjamin      | Thomas House                           | RetiredFath'r of M Belle Johnson                                         | Bond Co. 111.                        |
| )ill, James M.                              | Acad.of Mus.B'l'g                                      | Attorney at Law                                   | Proble Co. Obio                                     | 35               | Lucinda Hahuer                              | Died April 0, 1002                     | Wife of Benjamin Johnson                                                     | Kentucky                             |
| aab, Frederick                              | Cairo S. L. Office                                     | Ticket Agent                                      | Hesse Darmstadt, Ger-manySt. Clair Co, Ill. | 53               | Kueffner, William C.                        | Illinois street                        | Attorney at Law                                                              | M vchlenb'rg.G                       |
| Dawson, A. L.Davis, Sarah B. nee Harris | Res.—Jackson atHigh street                         | Retired                                           | St. Clair Co. III. [7N.London Co.Ct]            | 52               | Kærner, G.Kaarahan, Datas T             | Main street                            |                                                                              | Frukfort on the MainOermany [Ger |
| obeclintz, Moritz, J.                       | E.s. Public Square                                     | Real Estate Agent                                 | Pru-sia /                                           | 55               | Kaercher, Peter J.Krafft, Theodore J.   | N. E. cor. Pub. Sq.                    | Saloon and Restaurant                                                        | Germany [GerHesse Darmstadi      |
|                                             |                                                        | Harrison Machine Works                            | St. Clair Co. Ill.                                  | 10               | Kempff, William W.                          | Main street                            |                                                                              | Bivaria, Ger.Germany             |
| Dietz, Joseph                               |                                                        | Groceries, Queensware,&c                          |                                                     | 53               | Kersting, Rev. A.                           | 3d South street                        | Past. St. Patrick's Church                                                   | Westphalia, Ge                       |
| agne, AdamJorn, Joseph                  | Illinois street                                        | Carpenter and BuilderProp. Hotel and Saloon   |                                                     | 37  16       | Koska, J. C.Knœbel, Fritz               | East Main street                       | Jeneral Merchant                                                             | Prussia [Ger                         |
| Denlinger, William                          | 66 66                                                  |                                                   |                                                     | 33               | Kohl, Julius                                |                                        |                                                                              | Rheinish Bava.Nagara Car         |
| B. Russell                                  | ii i i                                          | 66 86                                      | Pa.                                                 | 52        | Kircher, Heury A.                           |                                        | Hardware & Agr'l Imp'te                                                      | Nassan, Ger.Cass Co. 111. f G    |
| ake, C. R.                                  | South Illinois st                                      |                                                   |                                                     | 3                | Klotzbach, A. T.                            | Charles street                         | Lumber Dealer                                                                | llesse Darmstadi                     |
| apprich, E.eidesheimer, H.              |                                                        | Principal Franklin SchoolGeneral Merchant     | Nassau. Ger.Rhein Pfaltz,Gr                     | 5                | Krisner, Henry N.                           | Cr.Richland&218                        | Proprietor of Saloon                                                         | St. Louis, Mo.                       |
| hret, Henry                                 |                                                        |                                                   |                                                     | 16               | Kretschmer, Fred.Klug, August           | Res N. Richl'nd                        | Alderman, 3d WardCl'k with We-t & Brandt                                 | Hesse Darmstadt, Ger                 |
| agler, George                               | 1st South street                                       | Butcher [publican]                                | Missouri (                                          | 10    | Kissel, Andreas                             |                                        | Blacksmith & Ald 94 W                                                        | lusse Darmstadt, Ger                 |
| ckert, T. W.                                | Illinoi-street                                         | Elitor and Publisher Re-                          | Monroe Co. Ill.                                     | 3                | Krianer, Louis P.                           |                                        | Boot and Shoe Dealer                                                         | menySt. Louis, Mo. [Gr           |
| ckhardt, William, Jr.                       |                                                        | Dry Goods and Groceries                           |                                                     | 50               | Kissel, John                                | 44 56                                  | Proprietor of Saloon                                                         | Hesse Darmaı'd                       |
|                                             | S. W. cor. Pab. SqCourt House                      | Notary Public and AbstractorAssistant Clerk   | Nassau, Ger.St. Clair Co. III.                  | 9                | Knebelkamp, Christ                          | Abend street                           | Contractor and Builder                                                       | Prussia                              |
| leischbein, Adolph G.                       |                                                        |                                                   |                                                     | 2017         | Kloess, JohnKrebs, Martin               |                                        |                                                                              | GermanyBarlin Ger                |
| 'tei chbein, C. P                           | Acad.of Mus.B'd'g                                      | Insurance Agent                                   |                                                     | 10!              | Kaub, B. J.                                 |                                        | Agent Theater aud SaloonFin and Stoves                                   | Berlin, Ger.St. Clair Co. Ill    |
| leming, E. II.                              |                                                        |                                                   | Kaskaskia, III.                                     |                  | Kaysing, Otto                               |                                        | Policeman                                                                    | 4 4                                  |
|                                             | N.s. Public Square                                     |                                                   | Hamburg, Ger.                                       | 50               | Kærner, G. A.                               | East Main street                       | Attorney at Law                                                              | ct ti                                |
|                                             | Main street                                            | Grocer, Confectioner and Sewing Ma-16             | Rhein Pfaltz,Gr                                     |                  | Kaiser, Theo.                               | Res. Richl'd & 24 N.                   | Teacher of Gymnastics                                                        | Germany                              |
| ernau, August                               | West Main street                                       | chins AgentTobacconist                        | Ilesse Cassel,Gr                                    |                  | Karleslind, BarbaraKarleslin I, D.      | West Main street                       | RetiredHusb. Barhara Karleslind                                          | "                                    |
|                                             |                                                        |                                                   |                                                     |                  |                                             | THERE SHOLE Z ). 1860                  |                                                                              | n Fando                              |

CITY OF BELLEVILLE.-[CONTINUED.]

CITY OF BELLEVILLE.-[CONTINUED.]

|                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                               |                                                                                                      |                                          | _  .                                    |                                                                                           |                                         |                                                                               | .1                                                |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------|
| NAME.                                                                                                            | PLAC. OF BUSINESS                                                                                             | OCCUPATION.                                                                                          | NATIVITY.                                | Settld                                  | NAME.                                                                                     | PLAC. OF BUSINESS                       | OCCUPATION.                                                                   | NATIVITY.                                         |
| Kissel, Bartlı                                                                                                   | West Main street                                                                                              |                                                                                                      |                                          | 66                                      |                                                                                           | 1st North street                        | Circuit Judge                                                                 | St. Clair Co. 11.                                 |
| Krost, M. E.Anna, Nebel                                                                                      | Eimer'a Hall                                                                                                  | Retired CapitalistWife of M. E. Krost                                                            |                                          | $53\\53$                                | Stookey, M. T.Starkel, Louis C.                                                       |                                         | Co. Treasurer and FarmerCounty Clerk                                      | Prague, Bohem.                                    |
| Lunkel, Fred.                                                                                                    | C. H., cr. Ch. & 5th                                                                                          | Deputy Assessor                                                                                      | Hesse Cassel, Gr                         | 59                                      | St lberg, George H.                                                                       | Court House                             | Circuit Clerk                                                                 | Germany 4                                         |
| Lavaux, Victor                                                                                                   | High street                                                                                                   | Confectioner & Fruit Dlr.Dlr in Stovea, Tinware, &c.                                             | France                                   | 72                                      |                                                                                           | High street                             |                                                                               | St Clair Co. Il.                                  |
| Lebkuecher, L.Lengfelder, B.                                                                                 | West Main street                                                                                              | Dir in Stovea, Tinware, &c.                                                                          | Nassau, Ger.Hesse Darmstadt, Ger-    | 5863                                | Spies, WilliamSeib, Charles F.                                                        |                                         |                                                                               | Nassau, Ger.St. Clair Co. II.                 |
| Lind, Charles                                                                                                    |                                                                                                           | Dry Goods Merchant                                                                                   | manySouth Germany                    | 67                                      | Saffold, D.                                                                               | East Main street                        |                                                                               | Liverpool, Eng.'s                                 |
| Loelkes, George                                                                                                  | 66 68                                                                                                         | Physician and Surgeon                                                                                | Nassan, Ger                              | 68                                      | ∫ Schanuel, Henry E.                                                                      | 1st South street                        |                                                                               | St. Clair Co. II.                                 |
| Lougeay, S. M.Lieae, Juliua                                                                                  | Res., S. Church st.East Main street                                                                       |                                                                                                      | Allegh'ny Co.PaGermany               | $\begin{array}{c} 70 \\ 64 \end{array}$ | Schanuel, John J.Siefert, John H.                                                     | S W cor Pub So                          | Constable and Collector                                                       | russia 4                                          |
| Lorey, Philippina                                                                                                | N.W. cor. Pub. Sq.                                                                                            | Retired [Lorev                                                                                       |                                          | 34                                      | Schleth, Ad.                                                                              | West Main                               | Grocer                                                                        | St. Clair Co. Il.                                 |
| Lorey, William.                                                                                                  | Died May 19,1869                                                                                              | Late husband Philippina                                                                              | "                                        | 34                                      | Staufenbiel, F. J.                                                                        | Court House                             | Deputy Recorder                                                               | Prussia                                           |
| Metschan, Franz F.Millitzer, Henry A.                                                                        |                                                                                                               | Man. Belleville Print. CoPost Master                                                             |                                          | 5953                                | Schmidt, John Jo.Schaffer, John                                                       | North Spring st.Cr. 4 S &Springsts. | Carpenter and BuilderBoiler Maker                                         | St. Clair Co. Il. 4St. Louis, Mo. 7           |
| McQuilkin, James                                                                                                 |                                                                                                               | Co. School Superintendent                                                                            |                                          |                                         | Scheel, A. M.                                                                             | N. s. Pub. Square                       | Physician and Surgeon                                                         | St. Clair Co. Il.                                 |
| McConaughy, F. A.                                                                                                | Academy of Music                                                                                              | Attorney at Law                                                                                      | Lancaster Co.Pa                          | 61                                      | Sunkel, Fred.                                                                             | Cr. 8th S. & Abend                      |                                                                               | Germany                                           |
| Moore, L. W.Miller, A. F.                                                                                    |                                                                                                               | U. S. Ganger [Ins. AgtDeputy U. S. Col. & Gen.                                                   |                                          |                                         | Sunkel, LouisStevenson, David                                                         | 66 66                                   | Miller, Star Mills                                                            | "Edinburg, Scot.                              |
| McCullough, J. W.                                                                                                | Illinoia street                                                                                               | City Clerk [District                                                                                 | Lincoln Co. Mo.                          | $\frac{68}{52}$                         | Scheske, A.                                                                               | 2d North                                | Butcher                                                                       | Prussia 6                                         |
| Morrison, William R.                                                                                             | Waterloo, Waterloo                                                                                            | Member of Congress, 19th                                                                             | Monroe Co. Ill.                          |                                         | Schiller, Joseph                                                                          | West Main                               | Manufacturer of Hats                                                          | - "                                               |
| Monk, C. A.Monch, Charles, In                                                                                |                                                                                                               | Dlr. in Agricultural ImplConfectioner and Baker                                                  | Chenango, N.Y.                           | 64                                      | Schmall, ErnestStoelzle, Fidel                                                        | East Main streetWest Main street    | Agricultural Imp't DealerProp. St. Clair Brewery                          | Hanover, Ger.Germany                          |
| Merch, Charles, Jr.Maule, John                                                                               | West MainRichland street                                                                                  |                                                                                                      |                                          | 3754                                | Shellmann, Catherine                                                                      | 66 66                                   | Retired [mann]                                                                | France                                            |
| Mueller, L.                                                                                                      | Mascoutah street                                                                                              | Blacksmith                                                                                           | Germany                                  | 60                                      | Shellmann, Joseph                                                                         | Died July 22, 1866                      | Late husband of C. Shell-                                                     | "                                                 |
| Moeher, Wollrath                                                                                                 |                                                                                                               | " [smith                                                                                             | 6666                                 | 65                                      | Stauder, J. A.                                                                            | Cor. W. Main & RaceMain street      | Prop. City Hotel [WorksChief Eng. Brosius Heat'g                          | GermanyHanogor Gor                            |
| { Merz, Philip{ Catharine Stein                                                                              | S. Illinois streetDied Jan. 5, 1849                                                                       | Wagon Maker and Black-First wife of Philip Merz                                                  |                                          | 3942                                | Stolze, IgnatiuaSchnck, Ph.                                                           | S. E. cr. Public Sa.                    | Wholesale Liquor Dealer                                                       | Germany                                           |
| Catharine Weithmann                                                                                              | S. Illinois st.                                                                                               | Present " "                                                                                          | 16                                       | 48                                      | Siefert, Capt. Wm.                                                                        | Res., Spring street                     | Retired [Monk Pump                                                            | 4                                                 |
| Meyer, Jacob                                                                                                     | West Main st.                                                                                                 | Clothier and Gents' Fur-                                                                             | . "                                      | 61                                      | Smith, J. W.                                                                              |                                         | Pump Dealer, SpecialtyHotel and Bar Clerk                                 | Monroe Co. Ill.St. Clair Co. Il.              |
| Merker, G. W.Morgenstein, Jacob                                                                              | 2d NorthWest Main st.                                                                                     | Constable [nishing GoodsFarmer and Saloon                                                        | Germany                                  | 4244                                | Schaeffler, F. T.Schember, August                                                     |                                         | Dealer in Boots and Shoes                                                     |                                                   |
| Mueller, Michael                                                                                                 | Res., Church st.                                                                                              | Retired Farmer                                                                                       | Elsass, France                           | 33                                      |                                                                                           | Cor. S. & Oak ats                       | Retired Farmer                                                                | St. Clair Co. Ill                                 |
| McCarthey, Timothy J                                                                                             | . 7th South st.                                                                                               | Heater                                                                                               | Ireland                                  | 62                                      | Semmler, Mich.                                                                            | Mascoutah street                        |                                                                               | Germany                                           |
| ∫ Meyer, Carl} Lydia Weibel                                                                                  | Abend street                                                                                                  | RetiredWife of Carl Meyer                                                                        | GermanyPa.                           | 5558                                | Schmitt, HenrySchuessler, Geo. W.                                                     | First North street                      | Boarding and SaloonDeputy Circuit Clerk                                   | St. Louis, Mo.                                    |
| (Mueller, Theresa J.                                                                                             | 1st South, het, Spring and                                                                                    | Ratinad                                                                                              | Samana Can                               | 58                                      | Thomas, James H.                                                                          | First South street                      | Proprietor Advocate                                                           | St. Clair Co. Ill                                 |
| Sebastian Hoeffing                                                                                               | Died March 7th, 1868                                                                                          | First husb. of T J. Mueller                                                                   | r 46 66                                  | 49                                      | Turner, Don                                                                               | Main street                             | Attorney at Law                                                               | Windle Cla XI                                     |
| ( Mueller, John J.Maus, William                                                                              | Died May 3d, '76North High stree                                                                          |                                                                                                      | Hesse Darmstadt, Ger-many            | · 5440                              |                                                                                           | High streetMain street              | State Senator, 49th Distr'tDry Goods Merchant                             | St. Louis, Mo.                                    |
| (Merz, John                                                                                                      | South Illinois st.                                                                                            |                                                                                                      | Germany                                  | 4039                                |                                                                                           | Illinois st [contah                     | Clerk Benedict House                                                          | Switzerland                                       |
| Ann Kleihacker                                                                                                   | 66 66                                                                                                         | Wife of John Merz                                                                                    | Hanover, Ger.                            | 39                                      | Tiemann, August                                                                           |                                         | Prop. Hotel Tremain and                                                       | Germany'' [Pa.                                |
| Needles, H. M.Noetling, C. F.                                                                                | Academy of Music                                                                                              | Attorney at Law                                                                                      |                                          | 54                                      |                                                                                           | West MainBelleville                 | Prop. of Saloon [City ParkCoal Miner                                      | '' [Pa.Schuylkill Co.                         |
| Neely, Harrison                                                                                                  | Cairo Short Line Dep                                                                                          | Watchman                                                                                             | Union Co. Pa.Mecklenb'g, N.C         | $56 \\ 64$                              |                                                                                           | 66                                      | Wife of J. T. Taylor                                                          | St. Louis Co.Mo                                   |
| Neighbors, Cassius                                                                                               | High street                                                                                                   | Policeman House                                                                                      | St. Clair Co. Ill.                       | 45                                      | Thiele, August                                                                            | " Belleville                            | Grocerics and Provisions                                                      | St. Clair Co. Ill                                 |
| Neighbors, JosephineObst. Fred.                                                                              | BellevilleIllinois street                                                                                 | Proprietress HinckleyConstable and Collector                                                     | Belleville, Ill.Prussia              | 49                                      |                                                                                           | Res., High street                       | Editor and ReporterRetired [Saloon                                        | Sonth CarolinaClioton Co. Ill.                |
| Opp, Henry                                                                                                       | W. Main street                                                                                                | Plow Manufacturer                                                                                    | Germany                                  | 5850                                |                                                                                           | West Main street                        | Prop. of Wine and Beer                                                        | St. Clair Co. Ill                                 |
| Pieffer, Sebastian                                                                                               | 2d South street                                                                                               | Sewing Machine Factory                                                                               | 4                                        | 78                                      | Viehmann, Henry                                                                           | 66 66                                   | Fobacconist                                                                   | Germany                                           |
| Pannell, A.Pieper, F. H.                                                                                     | Cr.Walnut&4th NC. H., High street                                                                         | GrocerCounty Indro                                                                               | Kent, England                            | 7343                                | Weber, Hermann G.Weir, Marshall W.                                                    | S. W. cr. Pub. Sq                       | Ex-SheriffAttorney at Law                                                 | Miss.                                             |
| Perryman, James L.                                                                                               | Cr. Main & Highste                                                                                            | Physician and Surgeon                                                                                | GermanyClaiborne Co. Ten             |                                         |                                                                                           | 1st North street                        | Proprietor Livery Stable                                                      | St. Clair Co. Ill                                 |
| Perrin, J. N.                                                                                                    | Academy of Music                                                                                              | Atty at Law & Repre'tive                                                                             | St Clair Co. Ill                         | 155                                     | Wilderman, A. S.                                                                          | Academy of MusicWest Main street    |                                                                               | S <sup>1</sup> . Louis, Mo.                       |
| Priester, F. M.Phillips, Fred. B.                                                                            | High street                                                                                                   | Merchant TailorAttorney at Law                                                                   | Hesse Darmstadt, Ger-many            |                                         |                                                                                           | East Main street                        | General Merchant                                                              | St. Clair Co. Ill                                 |
| Pannier, Ernst                                                                                                   | 44 44                                                                                                         | Merchant Tailor                                                                                      | N. Madrid Co Mo.Saxony, Ger.         | 66                                      | Wehrle, Joseph                                                                            | 66 66                                   | Jeweler [Notions, &c                                                          | Baden, Ger.                                       |
| Pitthan, Louia                                                                                                   | West Main "                                                                                                   | Dlr. in Books & Stationery                                                                           | Prussia                                  | 66                                      | Weidmann, Christ                                                                          | West Main street                        | Dry and Fancy Goods,Grocer                                                | Nassau, Ger.St. Clair Co. Ill                 |
| Primm, A. T.Puderer, Frank W.                                                                                | East Main "East Main street                                                                               | Clk with Koska & Wange                                                                               | St. Clair Co. Ill.                       |                                         | Wangelin, I. II.Winkelman, William                                                    | Illinois street                         | Attorney at Law [House                                                        |                                                   |
| Quick, Thomas                                                                                                    | Illinois street                                                                                               | Attorney at Law                                                                                      |                                          | $\frac{57}{23}$                         | Weisenbruch, Rudolph                                                                      | Illinois & 2d N. sts                    | Prop. Heinrick's Opera                                                        | Prussia                                           |
| Reinecke, C.                                                                                                     | Belleville, Belleville                                                                                        | Coal Operator                                                                                        | Germany .                                | 51                                      | Wangelin, Charles                                                                         | Main street                             | MerchantAttorney at Law                                                   | OhioSt. Clair Co. Ill                         |
| Rubach, Ferdinand                                                                                                |                                                                                                               | Physician and Surgeon                                                                                | Prussia                                  | 40                                      | Ward, W. E.Willoughby, J. A.                                                          | Jackson streetCourt House           | Recorder of Deeds                                                             |                                                   |
| Ropiequet, Fred.Rutz, Ed.                                                                                    | Court HouseSpringfield, Ill.                                                                              | SheriffState Treasurer                                                                           | Bavaria, Gcr.Germany                 | 5248                                | West, B. J., Jr.                                                                          | N. s. Pub. Square                       | Prop. Gents' Furnishing                                                       |                                                   |
| Rhein, Philip                                                                                                    | Court House                                                                                                   | Deputy County Clerk                                                                                  | Bavaria, Ger.                            | 57                                      | White, William                                                                            | Res., South Ch'rchMain street       | Nailor [HouseCash. Belleville Sav. Bank                                   | Addison Co. Vt.St. Chir. Co. 111              |
| Rainey, Jeff.                                                                                                    | Res., Charles st.                                                                                             | Farmer                                                                                               | Randolph Co.Ill                          | 29                                      | Wangelin, RichardWaugh. J.                                                            | 1st South street                        | Pres. Belleville Nail Co.                                                     |                                                   |
| Runde, Gustav A.r Reis, Michael                                                                              | West Main street                                                                                              | Lumber Dealer                                                                                        | Nassan, Ger.Hesse Darmstadt, Ger-    | 46                                      | West, Washington                                                                          | Cr. High & Main sts                     | Physician and Surgeon                                                         | St. Clair Co. Ill                                 |
| Reis, Henry                                                                                                      | e6 66                                                                                                         | 66                                                                                                   | many" "                              | 46                                      | Wagner. John W.                                                                           | National Hotel                          | Clerk National HotelGeneral Merchant                                      | 66 6666 66                                    |
| Rentchler, J. B.                                                                                                 | 2d North street                                                                                               | Manuf. of I. X. L. Drills                                                                            | Union Co. Pa.                            | 38                                      | Wangelin, E. H.Ziehnert, G. F.                                                        | East Main streetRichland street     | Brick and Stone Dealer                                                        | Germany                                           |
| Rinck, JohnRenner, Michael                                                                                   | 3:1 South streetWest Main street                                                                          | Foreman Harrison Ma-Barber Ichine Shor                                                           | St. Clair Co. Ill.                       | 4854                                | Zahn, Justua                                                                              | High street                             | Photographer                                                                  |                                                   |
| Roediger, H.                                                                                                     | 66 66                                                                                                         | Jeweler                                                                                              |                                          | 65                                      | ,                                                                                         |                                         | (                                                                             |                                                   |
| Rogers, Robert                                                                                                   |                                                                                                               | Proprietor of Foundry                                                                                | Ireland                                  | 75                                      |                                                                                           | WEST DE                                 | LLEVILLE.                                                                     |                                                   |
| Ribling, HenryRomeiser, P. M.                                                                                | Richland atreetEast Main                                                                                  | Proprietor of SaloonClothier                                                                     | Germany"                             | $\frac{50}{73}$                         |                                                                                           |                                         |                                                                               |                                                   |
| Rogland, John                                                                                                    | Court House                                                                                                   | Deputy Sheriff                                                                                       | Clinton Co. Ky.Hesse Darmstadt, Ger- | 66                                      |                                                                                           |                                         | T (1 0.1 T)                                                                   | E-1010                                            |
| Reis, Michael                                                                                                    | West Main                                                                                                     | Lumber Dealer                                                                                        | Hesse Darmstadt, Ger-many            | 46                                      | Bunsen, George C.                                                                         | Main streetWest Belleville          | Justice of the PeaceCoal Mine Operator                                    | Frankford, Ger.Frussia                        |
| Raab, HenryReis, Valentine                                                                                   | Res., High atreetSouth 2d street                                                                          | Superintend't City SchoolsContractor and Builder                                                 | Prussia [Ger.Hesse Darmsta't         | 04                                      | Brandenberger, Wm.(Betts, Joseph E., Sr.                                              | West Belleville                         | Miner                                                                         | Warwick, Eng.                                     |
| Dhain Valentine                                                                                                  | BOULLI ZU STREET                                                                                              | Merchant Tailor                                                                                      | Germany                                  | 53                                      | Mary M. Jaques                                                                            | 46 66                            | Wife of Jos. E. Betts, Sr.                                                    | 66 66                                             |
| mileio, valennine                                                                                                | High street                                                                                                   |                                                                                                      |                                          | 44                                      | f Betts, Joseph E., Jr.                                                                   | 26 6666 66                          | Miner                                                                         |                                                   |
| Rhein, Valentine                                                                                                 | High streetWest Main street                                                                               | Retired                                                                                              | St. Clair Co. Il.                        | 100                                     |                                                                                           |                                         | WITO AT JOB R. ROTTO                                                          | Maduon Co III '                                   |
| { Rudolph, Rosine{ Rudolph, Adolph                                                                           | High streetWest Main streetDied Nov. 5th '75                                                          | RetiredLate husb. of R. Rudolph                                                                  | Germany                                  | 69                                      |                                                                                           |                                         | Wife of Jos. E. Betts, Jr.Coal Operator                                   |                                                   |
| f Rudolph, RosineRudolph, Adolphf Rayhill, Charles                                                       | High streetWest Main street                                                                               | RetiredLate husb. of R. RudolphRetired Farmer                                                |                                          | . I 9                            | 👌 Beaird, John                                                                            | 66 6666 66                          | Coal OperatorWife of John Beaird                                          | IrelandScotland                               |
| Sudolph, Rosine Rudolph, Adolph Bayhill, Charles Charita J. Fike                                                 | High streetWest Main streetDied Nov. 5th '75                                                          | RetiredLate busb. of R. RudolphRetired FarmerWife of Charles RayhillRetired          | GermanySt. Clair Co. Il.Germany  | 192269                          | Beaird, JohnJennette FyfeBeatty, James                                            | 66 6666 6666 66                 | Coal OperatorWife of John BeairdCoal Operator                         | lrelandScotland(reland                    |
| f Rudolph, RosineRudolph, AdolphBayhill, CharlesCharita J. FikeRodemeyer, GeorgeRider, E. H. | High streetWest Main streetDied Nov. 5th '75Mascontah street"Res., Mascontah stBelleville | RetiredLate hush of R. RudolphRetired FarmerWife of Charles RayhillRetiredFarmer | GermanySt. Clair Co. Il.             | 19226933                    | Beaird, John  Jennette Fyfe  Beatty, James  Elizabeth Lard                    | 66 6666 66                          | Coal OperatorWife of John BeairdCoal OperatorWife of James Beatty | lrelandScotlandIrelandYorkshire, Eng. |
| { Rudolph, Rosine{ Rudolph, Adolph} Rayhill, Charles{ Charita J. FikeRodemeyer, George           | High streetWest Main streetDied Nov. 5th '75Mascontah street"Res., Mascontah st               | RetiredLate busb. of R. RudolphRetired FarmerWife of Charles RayhillRetired          | GermanySt. Clair Co. Il.Germany  | 192269                          | Beaird, John  Jennette Fyfe  Beatty, James  Elizabeth Lard  Emery, Joseph | 66 6667 6666 6666 66        | Coal OperatorWife of John BeairdCoal Operator                         | lrelandScotland(reland                    |

| WE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | ST BELLEV                                                                                                                                                                              | ILLE[CONTINUED.]                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | TOWNSHIP I                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | NORT                                                                                                                                                            | H. RA                                                                                                                                                                 | NGE 8                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | WEST                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | -[Contint                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | JED.]                                                                                                  |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| NAME.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | RESIDENCE.                                                                                                                                                                             | OCCUPATION.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | NATIVITY.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | petita                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | NAME.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | P. OFFICE.                                                                                                                                                      | RESID.                                                                                                                                                                | occu                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | PATION.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | NATIV                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | ITY.                                                                                                   |
| Emery, Mark P. Sarah Fropple Gintz, Adam Groom, Robert Harding William Jones, H. E. Kloese, John- Kohl, Joseph Kircher, Fred, Lorenzen, John Listmayr, Anton F. Pointon, George Ruebel, P. { Richards, George { Margaret James Schaefer, Philippe Weissenborn, E. Weissenborn, F. E. { Wild, Thomas Mary Ann Johnson | West Belleville"""""Main street"West Belleville"Main street""Main street""West Belleville"West Belleville" | Wife of Mark P. EmerySupt. Western Brewery CoEng. Brandenberger Min-Coal Operator [ing Co.Kagineer Harding & Emery MinolngCompanyPres Western Brewery Co.Sec. & Treas. ""RetiredOrccer and Binsting PowderPhysician and SurgeonCoal OperatorButcherCoal OperatorButcherCoal OperatorWife of George RichardsCi'k Western Brewery Co.Proprietor of SaloonProp. Green Mound MinesGen. Merchant [& SaloonMem. Western Mining Co | Stafford, Eng. 5England 5Wales 5Wales 7Rhein Prussia 4Rhein Pfaltz,Gr 5Prussia, Ger. 4Schleswig, Ger. 6Bavaria, Ger. 6England 4Rhein Pfaltz,Gr 4Lincolnsh'e,Eng 6Pa. 6Prussia 4Carbondale, Pa. 3Prussia 4St. Clair Co. III. 6Staffordsh'e, Eng 6 | 216151619161914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191419141914191415151515151515151515 | Louis, Marie B. nee Chris-Louis, August [tophe{ Letempt, PaschalLucie C. Junod{ Lebert, JohnSophia Louser{ McClintock, William{ Nancy Eyman{ Mason, JamesElizabeth Archibald{ Meder, John{ Fredrika AllgeyerMiller, R.{ Morrisey, Thomas{ Margaret Lotz{ Meder, Peter{ Margaretta Gahr{ Miller, Joseph E.{ Eva AmmelMarinelli, E.{ McFarland, Amanda J{ McFarland, David{ Messinger, Ida A. ase Klefnon{ Messinger, Ida A. ase M | Died M'rchBelleville""Died M'rchW. Belleville"W. Belleville"Belleville"Died Feb.BirknerO'FallonDied May | 25, '60Sec. 3122Sur. 3805, 1875Sec. 171616181818181818163228, '80Sec. 514, 1864Sec. 2 | Farmer andWife of PassFarmerWife of JolRetired FarLate wife WProp. HotelWife of JatHos'l Stew'rWife of JatHos'l Stew'rWife of JatHos'l Stew'rWife of JatFarmer andEngineer YWife of Tho:SuperintendWife of PetLate wife ofFarming & SFarmer & CFarming & S | M. B. LouisStock Raiserchal Letemptin Lebertmer'. McClintockand Saloonues Masond Poor Farmin MederMineroch Minesmas Morrisey't Poor Farmer Mederof Shopshire Sheepswice'oal OperatorStock RaisingAmanda Mc- | St. Clair CSt. Louis,PrussiaWurtembNicholas (St.Clair CScotland"St. Louis,GermanyEnglandFayette CSt. Clair CSaxony, GGermanySt. Clair CSt. Louis,St. Louis,St. Clair CKnox Co.St. Clair C | , Mo.y'rg.GrCo. Kyo.Il 17, Mo.co. Ill.Go. Ill."Mo.Zo. Ill.Ohio |
| TOWNS                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | HIP 1 NOR                                                                                                                                                                              | TH, RANGE 8 W                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | q                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | berMaguiagan John                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Died Oct.W. Belleville                                                                                                                                      | 17,'80Sec. 18                                                                                                                                                     | Farmer and                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | "                                                                                                      |

TOWNSHIP 1 NORTH, RANGE 8 WEST.

| Lance                                     |                             |             | 1               |                                   |                                       |                 | ∫ McBrid                 |
|-------------------------------------------|-----------------------------|-------------|-----------------|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------|-----------------|--------------------------|
| NAME.                                     | P. OFFICE.                  | RESID.      | 0               | CCUPATION.                        | NATIVITY.                             | Settld          | {Ellen M∫Neuhoff     |
| Bornman, L. C.                            | Belleville                  | Sur. 480    | Farmer          | and Stock Raiser                  |                                       | 37              | Mary KPowell,        |
| { Biebel, N. J.                           | 66                          | Sec. 13     |                 |                                   | France                                | 43              | )                        |
| ) Magdaline Miller                        | "                           |             |                 | N. J. Biebel                      | St. Clair Co. Ill.                    |                 | Louisa                   |
| { Bader, George S.{ Augusta Hartnagel |                             |             |                 | & Vet. SurgeonGeo. S. Bader   | Bavaria, Ger.St. Clair Co. Ill.   | 52              |                          |
| (Badgley, Alpheus                         |                             |             |                 | and Stock Raiser                  | SL Clair CO. 111.                     |                 | { Pulliam                |
| Emeline Little                            | Died                        | 500. 3      |                 | ife of A. Badgley                 | ec 66                                 | 36              | ) Eveline                |
| Nancy Dixon                               | Bel'eville                  | Sec. 9      | Present         |                                   | Tenn.                                 | 4661        | Ripley,                  |
| f Beaumont, John                          | Birkner                     |             | Coal Op         |                                   | England                               | 60              | Susan M                  |
| Naomi Tempest                             | "                           | 7           | Wife of         | John Beaumont                     | ,i                                    | 70              | { Randle,  { Eliza A |
| f Becherer, Anton                         | Belleville                  | 16          | Farmer          | & Coal Operator                   | Buffalo, N. Y.                        | 40              | Stookey                  |
| Lonise M. Fonrnie                         | 66                          | 16          | Wife of         | Anton Becherer                    | St. Clair Co. Ill.                    | 42              | Mahala                   |
| f Bartlsmann, Casper                      | "                           | 8           | Farmer          | & Fruit Grower                    | Hanover, Ger.                         | 46              | Schmiss                  |
| Burmann, Mary                             |                             | 8           | Wife of         | C. Bartlsmann                     |                                       | $5\overline{3}$ | ( Schmiss                |
| ∫ Brichler, John L.                       | "                           | 8           | Farmer          | and Stock Raiser                  | Lorraine,Fr'nce                       | 33              | Emily E                  |
| ∖ Magdalena Muenie                        | "                           | 8           | Wife of         | J. L. Brichler                    | 66 66                                 | 52              | (Snyder,                 |
| Badgley, Henry L.                         | "                           |             | Farmer          |                                   | St. Clair Co. Ill.                    | 33              | Clarissa                 |
| Braun, John                               | -1                          |             |                 | and Stock Raiser                  | - <sup>61</sup> - <sup>66</sup>       | 57              | (Sarah Sa                |
| ∫ Chenot, Augustus                        |                             | 24          |                 |                                   | France                                | 42              | Stookey                  |
| Elizabeth Bonl                            |                             | 24          | Wife of         | Augustus Chenot                   | St. Clair Co. Ill.                    |                 | 1) Mary Ca               |
| Doussard, J. R.                           | 64                          |             |                 | and Stock Raiser                  |                                       | 55              | ) Schilling              |
| Doussard, Lucien                          |                             |             | Mother          | of J. R. Doussard                 |                                       | 49              | } Madelin                |
| ( Martha Bornman                          |                             |             | Coal Op         |                                   | St. Clair Co. Ill.                    |                 | Stookey,                 |
| -{ Deans, Henry                           | Birkner                     | 7           |                 | Ilenry Deans                      | Scotland                              | 57              | { Clement                |
| Amelia Jeffs                              | Belleville                  | 6           | Farmer          | and Stock Raiser                  | EnglandSt. Clain Co. Ill          | 63              | [ Tribout,               |
| { Fournie, Victor{ Magdelina Boul     | Denevine                    | 9           | Wife of         | Victor Fournie                    | 46 46 K                               | 13              | { Elizabet               |
| ∫ Feder, John                             | 64                          | Í           | Farmer          |                                   | Bavaria, Ger.                         | 1015        | ( Margare                |
| Catherine Frettman                        | "                           |             |                 | John Feder                        | Switzerland                           | 49              | Taylor,∫ Voelling    |
| (Fournie, Svlvester                       | "                           | 15          | Farmer          | and Stock Raiser                  | St. Clair Co. Ill.                    | 51              | Hellen                   |
| Elizabeth Cully                           |                             | 15          | Wife of         | Sylv'ter Fournie                  |                                       | 62              | Wild, Jo                 |
| f Fournie, Joseph                         | 66                          | 15          | Farmer          | and Stock Raiser                  | 66 66                                 | 48              | Hannah                   |
| Louisa Ć. Feder                           | 66                          | 15          | Wife of         | Joseph Fournie                    | cf ff                                 | 59              | f Wilson,                |
| Fuchs, Gustav E.                          |                             | 1           |                 |                                   |                                       |                 | Dortha                   |
| J Fournie, Jacob                          | Belleville                  |             |                 | and Stock Raiser                  | St. Clair Co. Ill                     | 45              | (Ward, J                 |
| Mary A. Boul                              | "                           | 31          | Wife of         | Jacob Fournie                     | · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · | 47              | J Turon f                |
| ∫ Glenn, William M.                       | "                           | 10          | Farmer          | and Stock Raiser                  | Lincoln Co.N.C                        | 73              |                          |
| Mary S. Leigh                             |                             | 10          | Wife of         | Wni. M. Glenn                     | Allen Co., Ohto                       | 73              | 🕴 Yoch, J                |
| { Hemmer, Anthony                         |                             | 3           | r armer         | and Stock Raiser                  |                                       |                 | () Catherin              |
| Hattil Burdux                             | Birkner                     | 6 B         | Prop Sc         | Anth'y Hemmerd.&Coal Oper'tor |                                       | ð 2      | j Zink, N                |
| ∫ Haslam, Joseph                          | birkher"                | 6           | Wife of         | Joseph Haslam                     | Laucashire, Eng                       |                 | ∫ Mary L                 |
| { Hirst, Mary A.∫ Hirst, Thomas       | 66                          |             | Coal Op         |                                   | England                               | $\frac{70}{56}$ |                          |
| Hannah Bodden                             |                             |             |                 | Thomas Hirst                      | 1) IS IG IG IG                        | 62              |                          |
| ∫ Herr, Louis J. [lach                    | Belleville                  |             | Farmer          |                                   | St. Clair Co. Ill.                    | 54              |                          |
| Herr, Maggie M.nee Gund                   | "                           | 24          | Wife of         | Louis J. Herr                     |                                   | 57              | L L                      |
| ∫ Izatt, William                          | Birkner                     | Birkn'r     | Part. in        | Pollock Min. Co                   | Scotland                              | 63              |                          |
| Mary Mathews                              | 66 .                        |           | Wife of         | William Izatt                     | Wales                                 | 65              | Albrech                  |
| Kammerer, Fritz                           | Belleville                  |             |                 | and Carpenter                     | Saxony, Ger.                          | 58              |                          |
| f Kurtz, Jacob                            | 66                          |             |                 | & Fruit Grower                    | Germany                               | 38              | Anthon                   |
| Catharine Faust                           | 66                          |             |                 | Jacob Kurtz                       |                                       | 38              | Abt, Pa                  |
| ∫ Kraus, Joseph                           |                           |             |                 | & Grape Grower                    | 61                                    | 47              | Altewar                  |
| Lydia Butz                                | "                           |             |                 | Joseph Kraus                      | "                                     | 31              |                          |
| ∫ Kreilich, Francois                      | W. Belleville               |             |                 | Farmer                            | France                                | 54              |                          |
| Mary Schmisseur                    | "                       | 17          | write of        | F. Kreilich [ator                 | "                                 | 54              | Becker,                  |
| Koelle, William                           | BirknerClement, Clinton | Clint's Col | The suma of the | M. & Coal Oper-                   | w urtemb'rg, Gr                       | 52              |                          |
| ∫ Louis, John B.                          | Co., Ill.                   | Lake Sc. 3  | rarmer          | Tohn D Tanta                      | St. Clair Co. Ill.                    |                 |                          |
| Catharine Kern                            |                             | See 0       | Farmer          | John B. Louisand Stock Raiser |                                       | 57              |                          |
| Louis, Frank                              | Belleville                  |             |                 | Frank Louis                       |                                       | 32              |                          |
| Josephine Glouy                           | 61                          |             |                 | Farmer                            | GermanyPrussia                    | $52 \\ 72$      |                          |
| Lenz, August                              | "                           |             |                 | August Lenz                       | Allegheny                             | $\frac{72}{79}$ | Bunyan                   |
| ∖ Amelia Halbach                          | ^ I                         | •           | 17 110 01       | 8400 LICHD                     | Truckneny                             | 72              | Bennett                  |
|                                           |                             | = ====      |                 |                                   |                                       |                 |                          |

| NAME.                                                                     | P. OFFICE.                              | RESID.                    | OCCUPATION.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | NATIVITY.                     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|---------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| uis, Marie B. nee Chris-                                                  | Belleville                              | Sec. 8                    | Retired Farmer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | France                        |
|                                                                           | Died M'rch                              | 25, 60                    | Late hus, of M. B. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | GL OLAL OL TH                 |
| etenipt, Paschal                                                          | Belleville                              | Sec 3                     | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | St. Clair Co. III             |
| icie C. Junod                                                             |                                         |                           | Wife of Paschal Letempt                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                               |
| ebert, John                                                               | 60                                      |                           | Farmer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | PrussiaWaster Van O       |
| phia Louser                                                               | "                                       | 12                        | Wife of John Lebert                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Wurtemb'rg.Gr                 |
| cClintock, William                                                        | £1                                      | Sur. 380                  | Retired Farmer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Nicholas Co. Ky               |
| ancy Eyman                                                                | Died M'rch                              | 5, 1875                   | Late wife W. McClintock                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | St.Clair Co.II 17             |
| ason, James                                                               | W. Belleville                           | Sec. 17                   | Prop. Hotel and Saloon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Scotland                      |
| izabeth Archibald                                                         | 66                                      | 17                        | Wife of James Mason                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                               |
| eder, John                                                                | Belleville                              | 16                        | Hos'l Stew'rd Poor Farm                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | St. Louis, Mo.                |
| edrika Allgeyer                                                           | 66                                      | 16                        | Wife of John Meder                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Germany                       |
| iller, R.                                                                 | W. Belleville                           | 18                        | Farmer and Miner                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | England                       |
| orrisey, Thomas                                                           | "                                       |                           | Engineer Yoch Mines                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Fayette Co. Ill.              |
| argaret Lotz                                                              | 4                                       |                           | Wife of Thomas Morrisey                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | St. Clair Co. 111.            |
| eder, Peter                                                               | Belleville                              |                           | Superintend't Poor Farm                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                               |
| argaretta Gahr                                                            | "                                       | 16                        | Wife of Peter Meder                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Germany                       |
| iller, Joseph E.                                                          | 4                                       | 32                        | Wife of Peter MederFarmer, Breeder of Shopshire Sheepand Yorkshire Swice                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | St. Clair Co. Ill.            |
| a Ammel                                                                   | Died Feb.                               | 28. '80                   | Late wife of Jos. E. Miller                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 66 ± 66            |
| arinelli, E.                                                              | Birkner                                 | Sec. 5                    | Farmer & Coal Operator                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | St. Louis. Mo.                |
| cFarland, Amanda J                                                        |                                         | 1                         | Farming & Stock Raising                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | St. Clair Co. III.            |
|                                                                           | Died May                                | 4. 1864                   | Late hus. of Amanda Mc-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Knox Co. Ohio                 |
| cFarland, David                                                           | Belleville                              |                           | Farming [Farland                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | St. Clair Co. Ill.            |
| essinger, May M.Binger, Ids A. Des Kiefho-                            | Denevine                                |                           | Moth. May M. Messinger                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 6 Chan CO. 111.               |
| er                                                                        | Died Oct.                               | 17,'80                    | and the start of the second of | "                             |
| ossiager,JohncBride, F. A.                                     |                                         | Sec. 18                   | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 66 FE                         |
| len Mason                                                                 | W. Belleville                           |                           | Wife of F. A. McBride                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Scotland                      |
| euhoff, George L.                                                         | Belleville                              |                           | Retired Farmer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Frank ort on the Main.        |
| ary Knoebel                                                               | Denevine                                |                           | Wife of Geo. L. Neuhoff                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Germonv                       |
| well, A. J.                                                               | "                                       | 368                       | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Warren Co. Ten                |
| dfield, H.                                                                | "                                       | Sec. 34                   | Proprietor of Livery and Breeder of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | St. Clair Co. Ill             |
| ouisa V. Valentine                                                        | "                                       | 31                        | Proprietor of Livery and Breeder ofFine StockWife of H. Padfield                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Tioga Co. N. Y.               |
| illips, G. W.                                                             | W. Belleville                           |                           | General Merchant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | St. Clair Co. Ill.            |
| illiam, W. W.                                                             | Belleville                              |                           | Retired Farmer [liam                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | " "                           |
| eline Forster                                                             | Died M'reh                              | 16. 79                    | Late wife of W. W. Pul-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | " "                           |
| pley, James H.                                                            | Belleville                              | Sec. 34.                  | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                               |
| san Merrill                                                               | it it                                   |                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | St. Clair Co. Ill.            |
| indle, Jesse                                                              | Birkner                                 |                           | Coal Operator                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | England                       |
| iza Avery                                                                 | 64 CI                                   |                           | Wife of Jesse Randle                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | ""                            |
| ookey, M. M.                                                              | Belleville                              |                           | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | St. Clair Co. Ill.            |
| ahala Little                                                              | "                                       |                           | Wife of M. M. Stookey                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | " "                           |
| hmisseur, Louis                                                           | . 48                                    |                           | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | · 66 61                       |
| hmisseur, Charles                                                         | W. Belleville                           |                           | Prop. Custom Mills                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | ** **                         |
| nily Phillipa                                                             | " Bone tine                             |                           | Wife of Chas. Schmisseur                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | ** **                         |
| yder, Philip                                                              | Belleville                              |                           | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Bavaria, Ger.                 |
| arissa Stout                                                              | Died Jan.                               | 24,'63                    | lst wife of Philip Snyder                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                               |
| rah Sample                                                                |                                         | Sec. 30                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | ee 66                         |
| ookey, John D.                                                            | 44                                      |                           | Farm.& Fine Stk Breeder                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 66 66                         |
| ary Carr                                                                  | "                                       |                           | Wife of John D. Stookey                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 66 66                         |
| hilling, John                                                             | W. Belleville                           |                           | Miner                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | France                        |
| adeline Hoffman                                                           | "                                       |                           | Wife of John Schilling                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 66                            |
| ookey, Edward D.                                                          | Belleville                              |                           | Farmer and Teacher                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | St. Clair Co. Ill.            |
| ementine Coop                                                             | .1                                      |                           | Wife of E. D. Stookey                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Monroe Co. Ill.               |
| ibout, B.                                                                 | Belleville                              |                           | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                               |
| izabeth Bronnely                                                          | Died Feb.                               |                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | France                        |
| argaret Foùrnie                                                           | Belleville                              |                           | Present wife of "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | "                             |
| ylor, Henry                                                               | "                                       |                           | Coal Operator                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Lancashire, Eng               |
| ellinger, Peter                                                           | W. Belleville                           |                           | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                               |
| llen M. Schmisseur                                                        | 44 Genevine                             |                           | Wife of Peter Voellinger                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | " "                           |
| ild, John                                                                 | "                                       |                           | Miner                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | England                       |
| nnah Porter                                                               | c 1                                     |                           | Wife of John Wild                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 4 G                           |
| ilson, Richard                                                            | 4                                       |                           | Prop. Wilson's Grove                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | u u                    |
|                                                                           | "                                       |                           | Wife of Richard Wilson                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 66 66                         |
| ortha Mason                                                               | Belleville                              |                           | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | St. Clair Co. Ill.            |
|                                                                           |                                         |                           | First wife of J. T. Ward                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 61 GIALL CO. 111              |
| ard, J. T.                                                                |                                         | 21. 76                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                               |
| ortha Masonard, J. T.Icy Lee Ashrah C. Ash                    | Died May                                |                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 66 68                         |
| ard, J. T.icy Lee Ashrah C. Ash                                   | Died MayBellcville                  | Sec. 17                   | Present " " "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                               |
| ard, J. T.icy Lee Ashrah C. Ashoch, Joseph                    | Died May                                | Sec. 1718             | Present """"Farmer & Coal Operator                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Pruseia                       |
| ard, J. T.acy Lee Ashrah C. Ashoch, Josephtherine E. Isch | Died MayBellcville                  | Sec. 171818       | Present """"Farmer & Coal OperatorWife of Joseph Yoch                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | PruseiaSt. Clair Co. Ill. |
| ard, J. T.icy Lee Ashrah C. Ashoch, Joseph                    | Died MayBellcvilleW. Belleville | Sec. 17181818 | Present """"Farmer & Coal Operator                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Pruseia                       |

CITY OF EAST ST. LOUIS.

| NAME.                                                                                                                                        | PLAC. OF BUSINESS                                                                                                                                   | OCCUPATION.                                                                                                                                                               | NATIVITY.                                                                                        | Settld                                 |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------|
| recht, Henryeyre, Fred.hony, D. D., Paul W.ewarth, Charleslerson, Georgesley, John W.ker, George F.dy, J. P. | BroadwayCity Hl., Main St.Cor.8th st. & Ohio avCollinsville ave.St. Clair ave.""Nation'l Stk Yds.Cr. Col. & St. Lou.avs | Proprietor of SaloonLicense InspectorDepnty SheriffWholesale Liquor DealerSaloonProprietor of SaloonSalesman C. M. Keys & CoGeneral Dry Goods | GermanySwitzerlandIndianaGermany"OhioChamp'n Co. IllSt. Charles, Mo. | 45777173737075 |
| gh, Levi, Jr.ker, J. P.wn, Quitmandwin, Johnyan, Mauricenett, W. H.                                                      | Near St. Clair aveCr. M'n & Mo. aveMain street                                                                                              | Supt. E. St.Louis Bdg.Co.Prop'r New York Bazaar                                                                                                                       | EnglandGermanyPike Co., Ill.Pennsylvania                                             | 5867787364             |

CITY OF EAST ST. LOUIS .- [CONTINUED.]

CITY OF EAST ST. LOUIS.-[CONTINUED]

|                                             |                                                          | . 10019[CONTINU                                                                                                                | ·····                            |                                         |                                          | JE EAST SI                                                     | LUUIS[CONTINU                                                                                                                                | ED]                                |
|---------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| NAME.                                       | PLACE OF BUSINESS                                        | OCCUPATION.                                                                                                                    | NATIVITY.                        | Settld                                  | NAME.                                    | PLACE OF BUSINESS                                              | OCCUPATION.                                                                                                                                  | NATIVITY.                          |
| Bauchens, Adam                              | Collinsville ave.                                        | Retired                                                                                                                        |                                  | 60                                      | Lohrer, L.                               | Dyke avenue                                                    | Groceries and Liquors                                                                                                                        | Baden, Ger.                        |
| Burmeyer, Fred.Bruce, W. C.             | Or, 7th st. & Pa, avOlijo & Colls, ave               | Mover.Meat Mkt. and Sausage Mfr.                                                                                           | Scotland                         | 7079 1                              | Loesch, JohnLittle, Jarvis & Co.     | Car St. Ferry Landing, St.Louis, Mo.Nutional Stock Vde | Proprietor Saloon                                                                                                                            | Germany                            |
| Brucker, William                            | Missouri ave.                                            | Tobacco Str. & Bar. Shop                                                                                                       | St. Louis, Mo.                   | 67   {                                  |                                          | 111.                                                           | Live Stock Com. Mchts.                                                                                                                       | Madison Co., Ill                   |
|                                             | BroadwayCr. 2d & Bond ste                            | Gro. Imp. & Dir. in Liq.Dir. in Gro. & Liquora                                                                             |                                  | 6463                                | Leber, FritzLynn, R. B.              | Collsv. & Summit av                                            | Meat MarketLive Stk dlr. Hogs asptly                                                                                                     | Germany                            |
|                                             |                                                          | Boarding Hse & Saloon                                                                                                          |                                  | 70                                      | Mootz, Albert                            | Missouri ave.                                                  |                                                                                                                                              | IrelandGerniany                |
|                                             |                                                          | Boat Yard and Saloon                                                                                                           |                                  | 40                                      | Mauer, Charles                           | Collinsville ave.                                              | Hdwr. Stoves & Tin Wre.                                                                                                                      | Illinois                           |
| Bowman, John B.Bird, J. W.              | Main st.P. O. Worden, R. Wor'n,Madison, Co., 111 | Attorney-at-LawStock Shipper                                                                                               | GermanyMadison Co. Ill       | 5044                                | Mootz, HermanMehlig, J. M            | Cr. Coll. & Ill. avCollinsville ave.                       | DruggistMír. Boota & Shoes                                                                                                               | GermanySaxony, Ger.            |
| Bevelot, Clement                            | Mo. av. & Rock Road                                      | Grocer and Miller                                                                                                              | St. Clair Co. Ill.               | 55                                      | Metzler, Charles                         | Cr. 4th & Brdwy                                                | Oyater House & Saloon                                                                                                                        | Germany                            |
| Crotty, P. J.Canby, B. H.               | Center MarketMeints Bl'k, 4th st                     | Meat MarketAttorney-at-Law                                                                                                 |                                  | 5877                                | Martell, M.Mes-ick, J. B.            | Missouri avenueMo. av. Jackeisch bg                        |                                                                                                                                              | N. Orleans, La.Macoupin Co. II |
| Crotty, George                              | 4th Mar. House                                           | Mar. Mas. & Com. Mer.                                                                                                          | Ireland                          | 58                                      | Meumann, Theodore                        | Collinsville ave.                                              | Cashier E. St. Lon. Bank                                                                                                                     | Prussia                            |
| Clark, W. H.Caldwell, S. H.             |                                                          | Retired MerchantCarpenter and Builder                                                                                      |                                  | 6475                                | Meints, Albert M.Mahanan John        | Cr. 4th & Mo. av.                                              | Whsle. & Retl. Gro. & Liq. DrBoarding House and Bar                                                                                      | Germany (Ireland               |
| Chashin. John                               | Main street                                              | Section For man [Casings                                                                                                       | Ireland                          | 7557                                | Mahoney, JohnMuhlfelt, Conrad        | Broadway                                                       | Surgeon and Barber                                                                                                                           | Germany                            |
| Carey, R.                                   | Nat. Stock Yards                                         | Pork Pkr. & Mfr. of Sausages                                                                                                   | •6                               | 77                                      | Millard. M.                              | 4th nr. Broadway                                               |                                                                                                                                              | l'ennsylvania                      |
| Crummel, JohnCleary, W.                 | Dyke avenneSt. Clair ave.                            | Boarding House & SaloonMeat Market                                                                                         |                                  | 6476                                | Mead, MikeMcLean, John J.            | Cr.Christy& Bk'n.aveCr.7th st. & Mo.av                     | Capt. Steamer "Cahokia"                                                                                                                      | IrelandCincinnati, O.          |
| Cromwell, D.                                | 4th Ward House                                           | Breeder of Fine Horses                                                                                                         | New Jersey                       | 67                                      | Mahoney, John                            | 2d st. 3d Ward                                                 | General Teaming                                                                                                                              | Ireland                            |
| Draggon, J. L.Duffy, Thomas             | Cr. 6th st. & 111. av3d-street                       | Agt. St. Clair Mf'g Co.Iron Puddler                                                                                        | CanadaIreland                | 7373                                | Mooney, L. F.Mitchell, Lee B.        | E't & Wiggins stsEast End Bridge                           | As. Yd. Mst. W. St. L. & P.R.RPropr. Lee's Saloon                                                                                        | IndianaSt. Clair Co., Ill      |
| Dausch, George W.                           | Cr. 4th & Br'dway                                        | Cash'r Workingmen's Bk.                                                                                                        | East St. Louis                   | 55                                      | Mahoney, Michael                         | Christy avenue                                                 | Fore, P. H. O'Brien, Contr                                                                                                                   | Ireland                            |
| Davis, E. R.                                | 4th st. op. Cr. Mar.                                     |                                                                                                                                | New York                         | 69                                      | McGinnis, John H.Millon F            | St. Louis, Mo.National Sak Yde.                            | Cap. Fer. Stm. "Springfield."Firm Daily, Miller & Co., Live Stock                                                                        | Pennavlvania                       |
| Dillon, JohnDonigan, F.                 | Fr't st. & Dykeav                                        | Condr. St. Lou. Bridge Co.Liquor Salvon                                                                                    |                                  | 6765                                | Miller, F.Meehan, J. II.             | Collinsville ave.                                              | Cap. Fer. Stm. "Springfield."Firm Daily, Miller & Co., Live StockCommission Merchants.Stock Dealer and Trader.                   | Michigan                           |
| Dooley, Pat                                 | Dyke avenue                                              | Fore. Black. St. Lou. Bdg. Co                                                                                                  | Ireland                          | 70                                      | McLaughlin, Michael                      | St. Clair ave.Fourth street                                | Saloon                                                                                                                                       | England                            |
| Erhart, HenryElliot, H. and H.          | Main street .M'n st. R. St Lou. Mo                   | Saloon and Poul RoomMf'r Elliot Pat. Frgs & Swtchs                                                                         |                                  | 59                                      | Merz, JohnMyers, John                | Chrsty av. nr. 3d st                                           |                                                                                                                                              | GermanyNew Orleans             |
| Eisinger, Sebastian                         | Broadway                                                 | Mfr. & Dealer in Cigars                                                                                                        | Germany                          | 66                                      | Niemes, John                             | Cr. 5th & Mo. ave.                                             | Cont'r Brick & Stone Work                                                                                                                    | Germany                            |
| Eddy, JohnErfort, Charles               | Fr. at. & Wiggins                                        | Prop. S. E. Hotel & Sal'nFishers' & Hunters' Hm.                                                                           | WisconsinBaden Ger           | 5076                                | Noton, Isaac [Co.National Stock Yard | Nat. Stock Yards.                                              | Justice of the Peace                                                                                                                         | England                            |
| Edom, William                               | Nat. Stock Yards                                         | Live Stock Com. Mercht                                                                                                         | Ohio                             |                                         | Isaac H. Knox                            | D. O. T M.                                                     | Densident Math Other Words                                                                                                                   | New York                           |
| Freels, J. M.Fekete, Thomas L.          | Main streetMissourt ave., Jackelset                  | Attorney-at-LawIos., Real Est. & Finan. Agt                                                                                | TennesseeMacoupin Co. Il     | 74                                      | Ott. M. C.O'Neill, Frank             | Ninth st. bet. Summit andPeun-ylvania ave.                 | President Nat. OK 1 arosContractor and Proprietor of FallingSprings Stone Quarry.Stock Dealer & TraderWhether & Lot (Aroccon | PennsylvaniaNew York           |
| · Fitzmaurice, Patrick                      | Building.Cr. 3d st. & Div. av                        | Janitor of City Offices                                                                                                        | Ireland                          | 51                                      | Oebike, Henry                            | Bdwy & Collsv. av                                              | whole, & met. Grocer                                                                                                                         | r ruasia                           |
| Flannigen, A.Friesenteeser, Shniede     | 4th st. Meints blk                                       | Attorney-at Law                                                                                                                | Wash'n Co., Ill                  | 71                                      | O'Halloran, Very P. J.                   | Cr. 6th & Brdwy.3d & Christy ave.                          | Rec. St. Pat. R. C. Ch.                                                                                                                      | Ireland"                       |
| Frawley, Con                                | Front street                                             | Proprietor of Saloon                                                                                                           | GermanyIreland               | 57                                      | O'Brien, P. H.O'Melveny, Geo. F.     | Broadway                                                       | Attorney-at-Law                                                                                                                              | Monroe Co., Ill                    |
| Fitzpatrick, Patrick                        | St. Clair ave.                                           | Boarding House & Saloor                                                                                                        |                                  | 79                                      | Payne, Charles H.                        | Cr. 3d & Mo. ave.                                              | Groceries and LiquorsPropr. Rest. and Saloon                                                                                             | St. Chas. Co. MoGermany        |
| Fitzhenry, MichaelGalloway, George N.   | 3d St. 3d WardBelleville Pike                        | Capt. Tr. Bt. "Jno. Trendley'Railroad Engineer                                                                             | Ohio                             | 7260                                | Pahde, TheodorePracht, Michael       | Main street                                                    | Cigar Manufacturer                                                                                                                           | "                                  |
| Gamble, William                             | Collinsville av.                                         | Asst. Yard Master Wabaab, St. L.                                                                                               | Canada                           | 63                                      | Parent, Louis                            | 9th st. het. Summit andPenna. ave.                         | Br. & St. Mas. & Builder                                                                                                                     |                                    |
| Grady, J. H.Graney, Thomas              | Cr. 7th & Oh10. av                                       | <sup>7</sup> Carpenter and Builder.<sup>1</sup> Justice of the Peace                                                       | MissouriIreland              | 6465                                | Pollard, Hugh F.Quarney, M.          | St Clair avenue5th st. near Ill. ave                       | Groceries and LiquorsTeaming                                                                                                             | Mason Cv., Ill.Ireland         |
| Green, George D.                            | Cor. Mo. & Collsv. av                                    | A horney-at-Law                                                                                                                | Missouri                         | 77                                      | Quarney, Thomas                          | Main street                                                    | troceries and Liquors                                                                                                                        | 44                                 |
| ∫ Goodnow, Z.} D. DeWolf                | Missouri avenue                                          | Proprietor Relay Retrea                                                                                                        |                                  | 7272 (                              | Querney BrothersRechtern, H. C.      | Main & R. R. sts.Cr. 4(b & Brdwy                           | Gro., Tobacco & Liquors.Dealer in Dry Goods & Clthg.                                                                                     | "Germany                       |
| Gutwald, Frank                              | Broadway                                                 | Mfr. of Saddles & Har.                                                                                                         | BelgiumAustria               | 79                                      | Rafter, James J.                         | 4th st. op. Cty. Ct                                            | Attorney-at-Law.                                                                                                                             | Augusta, Me.                       |
| Greer, W. H.Gorla, Joseph               | Nat. Stock Yds.                                          | With Mullhall ScanlanHotel and Saloon                                                                                      | Ohio                             | 7371                                | Renshaw, John W.Roe, Richard         | Main streetCr. 6th & Sum't av                              | Chief of Police                                                                                                                              | Madis'n Co. IndEngland         |
| Heima Brewing Co.                           | Ill. av. & Bell. Pk                                      |                                                                                                                                | SwitzerlandAustria           | 65                                      | Roewe, Henry                             | Collinsville ave.                                              | Dealer in Flour & Feed                                                                                                                       | Germany                            |
|                                             |                                                          | Live Stock Com. Mercht                                                                                                         |                                  |                                         | Rohm, Christ                             | Center Market                                                  | Mt. Mar. & Sau. Manftr.Saloon and Pool Room                                                                                              | (j                                 |
| Hamer, J. S. [& CoHorn, William         | Missouri avenue                                          | Stock DealerProprietor of Saloon                                                                                           | Logan Co., O.Germany         | 7766                                | Reeb, C.Reliford, Charles            | Cor. Main & BdwySt. Clair avenue                           | Hotel and Saloon                                                                                                                             | Ohio                               |
| Hennel, Henry                               |                                                          | Configuration and Divildon                                                                                                     |                                  | 68                                      | Rhedemeyer, B.                           | Front street                                                   | Cigar ManufacturerNat. Hotel and Saloon                                                                                                  | Hanover, Ger.Bourbon Co. Ky    |
| Hanifao, DanielHanifan, Thomas          | City Hull. Ren. cor. 5t                                  | <ul> <li>Botel and Salson. Passenger Direction at Relay Depot</li> <li>Clerk of City Court.</li> <li>Duputy Sheriff</li> </ul> | [reland"                     | 6065                                | Rodgers, J. A.Ricksher, J. H.        | Cr. Br. & Stk. Yds. avDyke avenue                          | Carpenter and Builder                                                                                                                        | Germany                            |
| Healy, Michael                              | (City Hall ~                                             | Deputy Blietin                                                                                                                 |                                  | 58                                      | Strecker, C. F.                          | Collinsville ave.                                              | Physician and Surgeon                                                                                                                        | "Virginia                      |
| Hornal, WilliamHall, Giles              | and St. Clair ave.                                       | It Foreman Blackemith at Elliott'ShopsMfr. of Gd. & Sil. Amal. Mch                                                     | <sup>a</sup> ScotlandEngland | 7077                                | Strickler, P. J.Steiner, Jacob       | Cr. Coll. & St. Lon avCollinsville ave.                    | Groceries and LiquorsStock Dealer and Trader                                                                                             | VirginiaGermany                |
| Hargrave, George                            | Mulliken st bt 2d & 3                                    | d Contractor and Builder                                                                                                       | Wayne Co. N. Y.                  | 68                                      | Sturner, Fred.                           | Broadway                                                       | Cigar ManufacturerBroom 4th Ward House                                                                                                   |                                    |
| Huschle, WendleinHauss, Herman C.       | Dyke av. nr. FronDyke avenue                         | <sup>1</sup> Meat MarketDealer in Flour and Feed                                                                           | GermanyKentncky              | $\begin{bmatrix} 58\\72 \end{bmatrix}$  | Staphens, M. M.Stephenson, James     | Cr. 5th & Ohio av                                              | Propr. 4th Ward HouseGroceries, Milk & Coal                                                                                              | Penn≈ylvaniaKentucky           |
| Hempe, John F.                              | St. Clair avenue                                         | Groceries and Liquors                                                                                                          | Germany                          | 80]                                     | Spremberg, Adolph R                      | Collinsville av.                                               | Cigar Manufacturer                                                                                                                           | Prussia                            |
| Hankins, A.Hamilton, S. A.              | Nat. Stock Yards                                         | Shipping MasterStock Dealer                                                                                                | Illinoia"                    | $\begin{array}{c} 73 \\ 79 \end{array}$ | Summers, B. J.Schmidt, Sebastian     | Fourth streetCr. 3d st. & Mo. av                           | Carpenter and BuilderProprietor of Saloon                                                                                                | IndianaGermany                 |
| Jones, J. W.                                | Mo. av. n. Rel. dp                                       | t Supt. E. St. L. & C. R. R.                                                                                                   | Virginia                         | 73                                      | Sickking, J. B.                          | Bdwy, Res III. av                                              | Post Master                                                                                                                                  | Holland                            |
| Jennings, Thomas C.Joyce, Maurice       | Mo av Jackeisch bd                                       | Physician and Surgeon                                                                                                          | Chautau. Co., N. Y.              | . 6067                              | Shannon, JamesSickels, John M.       | City Hall, Main stBroadway                                 | Mir. & Dlr. in Sad. & Har.                                                                                                                   | IrelandSt. Louis, Mo.          |
| Jarvis, John F.                             | Troy, Mad. Co. Il                                        | V Dir. in Gro., Liq. & Gen. MchI Farmer & Stock Shipper                                                                    | Madison Co., 11                  |                                         | Seibert, John                            | Ce Bdwy & Mn si                                                | Meat Market                                                                                                                                  | Germany                            |
| Kelly, James H.                             | 4th st. nr. Cty Crt                                      | Constable                                                                                                                      | Co. Armaugh, Ire.                | . 62                                    | Schiereck, Theodore F                    | Collingville ave "                                             | Paperhang. & CalciminerFore. P. H. O'Brien, Con'n                                                                                        | St. Louis, Mo.New York City    |
| Kurtz, WilliamKresse, Oscar F.          | Cor. Mo. % St. Louis                                     | Cigar ManufacturerVariety Store                                                                                            | GermanySaxony, Ger.          | 6466                                | Scanlan, P. F.Sackmann, Henry        | Thind at 2d Wand                                               | Ast Sot Wiggins Fer. Co.                                                                                                                     | (+ermany                           |
| Kirk, Jame, W.                              | Collinsville ave.                                        | v Variety StoreSt. Clair Co. Correspondent for thSt. Louis " Republionu."• Coal Merchant.                          | • New York                       | 71                                      | Sutcliffe, John                          | Broadway                                                       | Fur., Stoves & Hsekeep'g GdsManufact r of Wooden Faucets, BungsMailets, etc., Market                                                 | Yorkshire, Eng.                    |
| Kennedy, ThomasKehoe, George            | Res. Missouri ave                                        | Coal Merchant.V Proprietor of Saloon                                                                                       | IrelandGulf of Mexico        | 5249                                | Sternkopf, HenrySeibert, George      | main Det. Converse and                                         | Pront. Meat Warket                                                                                                                           |                                    |
| Kase, Spencer M.                            | Cr. Mo. & Colls. a                                       | Attorney-at-Law                                                                                                                | Pennsylvania                     | 57                                      | Sullivan, P. M.                          | Cr. 3d & Menard sts                                            | Groceries and Liquors                                                                                                                        | Ireland                            |
| Koenig, Rev. Christ'rKempen, Rev. F. J. | Cr. 6th & Brdway                                         | Rec. St. Henry's R. C. Chr.Arctor lumaculate Conception RomCath. Church at Centarville Station                         | Prussia                          | 6978                                | Schaub, GeorgeStack, P. H.           | BroadwayCr. 3d & Dyke av                                   | Hdwr. Stoves & Frm. ImjHotel and Saloon                                                                                                  | Ireland                            |
| Kleinaenn, George                           | Collinsville av.                                         | Cath. Church at Centarville Station                                                                                            | St. Louis, Mo.                   | 61-                                     | Sullivan, D.                             |                                                                |                                                                                                                                              | 66 3                               |
| Kilkery, Patrick                            | Winter st. 3d Wro                                        | License Inspector                                                                                                              | Ireland                          | 64                                      | Schlensker, C.                           | East St. Lou. Lot 8, Ca-hokia Commous.                     | Farmer & Mfr. of BroomsBoarding House & Saloor                                                                                           | PrusaiaGermany                 |
| Keiflein, J. M.Koester, Henry           | Belleville Pike                                          | d Cpr. Tug Bt "S. C. Clubb 'Groceries and Liquors                                                                          | 'E. St. Lou., Ill.Germany    | . 5558                              | Surwald, CasperSnowball, J. J.       | Cr. 6th & Sum. av.                                             | Rd. Mas. C. & A. R. R.                                                                                                                       |                                    |
| Kase, William G.                            | Office Main at. Res. con                                 | Attorney-at-Law                                                                                                                | Pennsylvania                     | 60                                      | Schneider. Theodore                      | Nat Stock Yards                                                | With Jacob Bogel                                                                                                                             | EnglandOhioNew York        |
| Launtz, W. P.Locke, George W.           | Fourth or. Broadw':Brdwy. Res. 6th s                 | y Attorney-at-Law                                                                                                              | Ohio                             | 7175                                | Sheer, J. M.Thoene, George           | Cr Collingy & III av                                           | Master MechanicSal., Mt. Mar. & Sausage Fac                                                                                              | Prussia                            |
| Lovingston, John B.                         | Fr. & Milliken st                                        | s Lumber and Real Estate                                                                                                       | Germany                          | 59                                      | Tissier, Maurice F.                      | Cr 4th & Brdwy                                                 | Ed. E. St. Lou. "Herald"                                                                                                                     | St. Louis, Mo.                     |
| Luecken, Ed.                                | Broadway                                                 | Undertaker                                                                                                                     | "                                | 63                                      | Trendley, John                           | Cr. 3d & Mulliken st                                           | Loc. Agt. Wiggins Fer. Co                                                                                                                    | Germany                            |
|                                             | 1                                                        | 1                                                                                                                              |                                  |                                  |                                          |                                                         | 3                                                                                                                                            | ·                                  |

| NAME.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | PLAC. OF BUSINESS                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | CCUPATION                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Eld.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | NAME.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | P. OFFICE                                                                        | RESTR                                                                                                                                                                                        | OCCUPATION.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | NATIVITY.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | OCCUPATION.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | NATIVITY.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Settld                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | NAME.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                              | ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| rendley, H. E.onuahme, Joseph                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Belleville Pike                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Cap. Str. " E. C. Wiggins "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | St. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Letempt, John B.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | C'ville Sta                                                                      | Sur. 50                                                                                                                                                                                      | Farmer and Stock RuiserFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | St. Clair Co. I                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| oelker, Henry                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | St. Clair avenue                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Wholesl. & Retl. Gro. & Liq'rsFamily Grocer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | St. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 7258                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | { Letempt. John B.} Elonore Bouisonenne                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | ec 16                                                                            | 4                                                                                                                                                                                            | Wife of J. B. Letempt                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 66 66                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| allace, Edmund                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Collinsv. & Ohio ave.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Wholesl. & Ret. Liq. Dlr.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Ireland                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 62                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Lavalle, Joseph, Jr.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | E.St. Louis                                                                      | C'hokis                                                                                                                                                                                      | Carpen'er                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Cakokia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| alsh, Michaelare, Charles T.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 4th & Mo. ave.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 46 - 66                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 63                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Clementine Valentine                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 66 6666 66                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Wife of Joseph LavalleRetired Merchant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Kaskaskia, Ill.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Cr. Mo. & Coll. av.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Judge City CourtPres. E. St. Lo. Bak & Captl'st                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | New YorkSt. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | $\begin{array}{c} 64 \\ 23 \end{array}$                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | McCracken, NicholasFlorina Brackett                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 66 66                                                                            | "                                                                                                                                                                                            | Mother of N. McCracken                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| ittich, Josephine                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Front street                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Propr. Wine & Beer Sal.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Austria                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 64                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Morisseau, Louis V.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 61 66                                                                            | "                                                                                                                                                                                            | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| eick, Capt. Joseph                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Cp. Str. ' Napoleon Mulliken                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Germany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 66                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Marion Peter I. C.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 46 6666 66                                                                   | 66                                                                                                                                                                                           | Civil EngineerWife of P. I. C. Marion                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Calcutta                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| olf, Philipp                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | East St. Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Farmer and Contractor                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 66                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | { Victorine Klein6 Ploudre, Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Cville Sta                                                                       | Cent ville                                                                                                                                                                                   | C'ty Com. & Gen'l Merh't                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | =                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Elmire Geurard                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 66 66                                                                            | "                                                                                                                                                                                            | Wife of Louis Ploudre                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | St. Joseph Mo.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | CITY OF ST                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | . LOUIS, MO.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | . []                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Paridy, Benjamin                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 66 66                                                                            | "                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | St. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Louisa Tillison, Dec'dMary Silvey, Dec'd                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                  | 1                                                                                                                                                                                            | First wife of Benj. ParidyLate "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| hrens, GeorgeJugdell, Wm. T.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | With Jacob FeickertLive Stk Com. Mcht.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Hanover, Ger.Scott Co., Ill.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 60                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | (Pfeiffer, Anthony                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | C'ville Sta.                                                                     | Sur 128                                                                                                                                                                                      | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | St. Clair Co., Il                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| inders, John & Co.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Distr. & Wholesl. Liq. Dir                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Mary A. Chinesseur                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 66 66                                                                            | "                                                                                                                                                                                            | Wife of Anthony Pfeiffer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 66 64                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| eickert, Jacob                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Cr. 2d & Markt sts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Saloon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Germany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 33.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Sertrude Smith                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | E.St. Louis                                                                      | C'hokia                                                                                                                                                                                      | Wife of Alex Perio                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | CahokiaQuincy, Ill.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| ritz, Charles                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 1312 Park avenue                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | . "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | - İİ                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Queiry, Robert                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                              | Sur 62                                                                                                                                                                                       | Saloon Keeper                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Ray Co., Mo.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| uion, James A.ay, Edward                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 121 Nth. 2d street                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Capt. St'r " Edwardsville"Sugar Factor                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Virginia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | f Rayot, Auguste                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | C'ville Sta.                                                                     | Cent'villa                                                                                                                                                                                   | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| loffman. George                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 1715 Nth. 11th st.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Capt. St'r "E. St. Louis "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Philada., Pa.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Julia Cnenot                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | u uE Et Taula                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                            | Wife of Auguste Rayot                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | ''Penn                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| lilger, E. & Co.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 511 N. Main str.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Wholesale Hardware                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | St. Clair Co. Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Russel, William H.(Recorder, L. B.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | E.St. Louis                                                                      | 46                                                                                                                                                                                           | Farming                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | St. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| mbs, J. F.emp, Wm. J.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Cor. Main & Elm2d Carondelet av. & Ars 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Flour MerchantPropr. Western Brewery                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Alsace, FranceSt. Lonis, Mo.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 40                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Recordon, Chas. Jules                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Died                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Father of L. B. Recordon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Switzerland                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| lcFall, John                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Four Courts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Pres. Riv. Render's Co.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Pennsylvania                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | - 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Catherine Pthiroh                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | "                                                                                | 1868                                                                                                                                                                                         | Mother "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| ienstedt, Henry C.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 118 & 120 Vine at                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Restaurant and Saloon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Brunswick, Ger.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | -                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Soucy, ClovisMary Toupen                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | E.St. Louis                                                                      | C'hokia                                                                                                                                                                                      | Farmer & Road Super'srWife of Clovis Soucy                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | CanadaCahokia, Ill.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| riber, E. C.chweickhardt, Henry                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 1407 Nth. 3d street                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Prop. Napa & Sonoma Wine CoRetired                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | GermanyBavaria, Ger. 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 49                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Simmons, H. B.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Physician and Surgeon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | St. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| nart, Thomas R.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Cr. 4th & Olive                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Lupes Saloon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Fairfield Co., O                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Julia Bowler                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~ ~~                                           | Station                                                                                                                                                                                      | Wife of H. B. Simmon-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 66 6666 47                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Vardrop, Charles B.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 215 N. 4th & 326 Ol. st.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Cigars and Tobacco                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | New York City                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Touche'te, AndrewNancy Moorehouse                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | ~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~                                           | 6166                                                                                                                                                                                     | P. M. Station Agt. & Sal. KprWife of And. Touchette                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | England                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| ingate, R. F.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | St. Louis, Mo.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Attorney-at-Law                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Boone Co., Ky.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Tojo, Benito                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 66 66                                                                            | Sur. 128                                                                                                                                                                                     | General Merchant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Spain                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | =  .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | (Touchette, Baptiste                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 44 44                                                                            | " 67                                                                                                                                                                                         | Farmer, Stock Raiser & J. P.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | St. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| TOWNS                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | HIP 2 NORT                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | H, RANGE 10 WE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | ЗТ.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Judith Bisson                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | " "                                                                              | 467 47                                                                                                                                                                                       | Wife of Baptist Touchette                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 61 4668 68                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Ξŀ.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | { Trumble, JosephAngeline Letempt                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | E. St. Louis                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Joseph Trumble                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| NAME.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | P. OFFICE. RESID                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | OCCUPATION.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | NATIVITY.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Settld                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Voudrey, Anthony                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | C'ville Sta,                                                                     | Sur. 119                                                                                                                                                                                     | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | e6 66                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| rcher, Frederick                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Venice Brkl'n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | General Merchant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | -11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Angeline Rodgers                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | es 66                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Wife of Anth'y Voudrey                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | u u                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| osephine R. Hall                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Louisiana                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 4 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Von Closter, ÉvoMary A. Patrie                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | E. St. Louis                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Farmer and Stock RaiserPres't wife of EvoVon Closter                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Germany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| ramer, David                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 46 - 46                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Proprietor of Saloon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Tennessee                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 32                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Julia Polkia, Dec'd                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                              | First " "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Lennedy, Lawrence                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | es (cef (c                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Butcher Marshal                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | New JerseyMadison Co. Ill 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | C'ville Sta.                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Former, Stock Raiser and Bee Cul-turist.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| ettiford, James A.ope, Abram                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Saloon Bagatelle                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Rosa Ann RichardWerest, Michael                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | •••                                                                              | "Cent'ville                                                                                                                                                                              | Wife of Joseph VoudrilFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| ichardson, Felix                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 66 Sec. 9 3-9Med. Co.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Farmer & Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Mias.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Mary Beatrey                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                  | Station                                                                                                                                                                                      | Wife of Michael Wereat                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | St. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| tiles, John R.Vest, William                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 44 Brklyn46 Sec. 93-5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | New JerseyPhillip Co. Ark                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 30¦ .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | E.St. Louis                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Germany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | ,,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | _  _                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Catherine Hertz                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                              | Wife of Fred. Wachtel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| C .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | AHOKIA COI                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | MMON FIELDS.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | _                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | TOWNS                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | HIP 2 8                                                                          | OUT                                                                                                                                                                                          | H, RANGE 9 WE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | ST.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | E. St. Louis C'hoki                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Canada 3                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 37                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                  | 1                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Iary Pillette                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 66 66 66                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Cahokia 2                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 25                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Floraville                                                                       | Sec. 10                                                                                                                                                                                      | Teacher & Notary Public                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | a                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Brandes, August                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                  | aec. 10.                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | liermany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| levelot, Frank                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | France 2                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 26]  {                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Charlotta Neubrath                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | "                                                                                | 10                                                                                                                                                                                           | Wife of August Brandes                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | St. Clair Co., Ill.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Iargaret Vizar                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | """"""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota Teacher                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | France 2Switzerland 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 26   {13                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Charlotta NeubrathFrank Andreas                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | "                                                                                | 10F'ville                                                                                                                                                                                | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n Mkr                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | St. Clair Co., Ill.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Iargaret VizarBeasley, J. A.Osepbine Kelley                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 4 4 Sur. 124 4 C'hoki4 4 6                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111, 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 26435657                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, Henry                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | "                                                                                | 10F'ville"                                                                                                                                                                           | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and Surgeon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | St. Clair Co., IllGermany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Iargaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleycrouilette, Oliver                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 4 4 Sur. 124 4 C'hoki4 4 6                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 4 Farmer and Stock Raiaer Wife of Frank Bevelota Teacher Wife of J. A. Beasley8. Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Ind. 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 2613565719                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 6666666666                                                       | 10F'ville"                                                                                                                                                                           | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral Merchant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Iargaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, OliverIargaret Eunon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | """"""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 4 Farmer and Stock Raiser Wife of Frank Bevelota Teacher Wife of J. A. Beasleys Farmer and Stock Raiser Wife of Oliver Brouilette                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Ind. 4""4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 26435657                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha Daech                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 666666668666                                                 | 10F'ville""                                                                                                                                                                      | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. Horn                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia"                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand. David                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasleys Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Iud. 4""4St. Clair Co., 111. 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 26435657494940                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 666666668666                                                 | 10F'ville""Pada'n                                                                                                                                                            | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacher                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhio                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumble                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley8 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock Raiser0 '''Wife of David Chartrand                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Ind. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 2643565749494044                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, Henry                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | """"Padaborn                                                     | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'ville                                                                                                                                                      | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral Merchant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndiana                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Iargaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, OliverIargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, DavidIary Trumblehapman, Louis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | <sup>44</sup> <sup>45</sup> Sur. 12<sup>46</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley& Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David Chartrand& FarmerWife of Louis Chapman                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Ind. 4St. Clair Co., 111. 4St. Clair Co., 111. 4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 2613565719191919101413                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth Skaer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | """PadabornFloraville                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'ville                                                                                                                                                      | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry Sensel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| largaret Vizareaaley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonroit, T. C.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | <sup>44</sup> <sup>45</sup> Sur. 12<sup>46</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley& Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David Chartrand& FarmerWife of Louis ChapmanFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Ind. 4St. Clair Co., 111. 4St. Clair Co., 111. 4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. 111 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 2643565749494949494949494949494949                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, John                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | """"Padaborn                                                     | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 9                                                                                                                                            | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornIeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Iargaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, OliverIargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, DavidIary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonbroit, T. C.deline Lalimeire                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | <sup>44</sup> <sup>45</sup> Sur. 12<sup>46</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of Louis ChapmanFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of T. C. Droit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""St. Clair Co., III. 4""East St. LouisTennesseeSt. Clair Co. III. 5"""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 2643565749494044435454                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth Skaer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | """PadabornFloraville"                                       | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 9                                                                                                                                            | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joe                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | <sup>44</sup> <sup>45</sup> Sur. 12<sup>46</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>47</sup>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley8 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David Chartranda FarmerWife of Louis Chapman2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of T. C. DroitCarpenter                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4"East St. LouisTennesseeSt. Clair Co. 111. 5""St. Clair Co. 111. 5""St. Clair Co. 111. 5""St. Clair Co. 111. 5""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 2613565719191919191919191919                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, John                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | """PadabornFloraville"                                       | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 9                                                                                                                                            | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornIeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 4         4         Sur, 12           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4      4         4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of Louis ChapmanFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Joe DupnisCarpenterWife of Joe Dupnis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., Int. 4""4St. Clair Co., Int. 4"4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. III 5"5Canada 7Cahokia 55France 55                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 226         4           413         5           557         4           413         4           554         4           5554         4           556         5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. Hoffman                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | """Padaborn"Floraville""                             | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99                                                                                                                                       | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Vogel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.Prussia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.fary E. Droit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 4         4         Sur. 12           4         4         4           4         4         6           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4      4         4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley8 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David Chartranda FarmerWife of Louis Chapman2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of T. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. Dupnis2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. E. Etienne                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4St. Clair Co., III. 4"4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. IIISt. Clair St. Clair St. Clair St. Clair St. Clair St. St. St. St. St. St. St. St. St. St. | 226         4           413         5           57         19           413         40           413         5           554         5           556         5           566         5           549         5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. Hoffman                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | """Padaborn"Floraville""                             | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99                                                                                                                                       | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornIeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.Prussia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.fary E. Droittienne, Celestin                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 4         4         Sur, 12           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4      4         4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley8 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David Chartranda FarmerWife of Louis Chapman2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4""4St. Clair Co., 111. 4""4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. 111. 5"5Canada 7Cahokia 5France 5St. Louis Mo. 4France 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 226     4       133     5       140     4       141     4       155     5       156     5       157     4       157     5       159     4       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSI                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | " " " Padaborn " Floraville " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                  | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTH                                                                                                                               | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Charles C. HornGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Vogel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.ossepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisalia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.lary E. Droittienne, Celestinlary Ploudre                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | ""         Sur. 12           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""           ""         ""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of David ChartrandFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. Salson Kpr                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Ind. 4""4St. Clair Co., III. 4"4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. III 5Canada 7Cahokia 55France 5St. Louis Mo. 4France 5St. Clair Co., III. 4France 7St. Clair Co., III. 4France 7                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 226     4       133     5       140     4       141     4       155     5       156     5       157     4       157     5       159     4       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5       150     5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSI                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | " " " " Padaborn " Floraville " " UIP 1 S Millstadt                              | 10F' ville"Pada'nF' villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 13                                                                                                                  | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Vogel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.Chambersburg                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisolia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.lary E. Droittienne, CelestinLary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Joubard                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 4         4         Sur, 12           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyS Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of Louis ChapmanFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Celestin EtienneMachinist & Saloon KprWife of Claude Fulchiron                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""St. Clair Co., III. 4""East St. LouisTennesseeSt. Clair Co. IIISt. Clair Co. IIISt. Clair Co. IIISt. Clair Co. IIIFranceSt. Louis Mo.FranceSt. Clair Co., III. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., III. 4France"                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 226         4           413         5           557         19           413         4           413         54           554         5           554         5           554         5           554         5           554         7           554         7           71         7                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffinanTOWNSI(Arras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena Cook                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 13Sec. 13Sec. 13                                                                                              | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserFarmer and Stock RaiserFirat wife of John ArrasPres' wife of John Arras                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaGhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., Itl                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisalia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.lary E. Droittienne, Celestinlary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charles A.                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 4       4       Sur, 12         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of T. C. DroitCarpenterWife of Joe DupnisFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Celestin EtienneMachinist & Saloon KprWife of Clande Fulchirona Saloon Keeper                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 5CanadaCahokiaFranceSt. Louis Mo.FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | $\begin{array}{c ccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccc$                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNS(Arras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena Cook(Bange, Frederick                                                                                                                                                                                                               | " " " " " Padaborn " " Padaborn " Floraville " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTESec. 1326, '71Sec. 13                                                                                              | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Charles C. HornGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirat wife of John ArrasFramer & Boad Super sr                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia("OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., Ill""Germany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisalia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.lary E. Droittienne, Celestinlary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Joubardamlin, Charles A.erber, Christ                                                                                                                                                                                        | 4         4         Sur. 12           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley8 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David Chartranda FarmerWife of Louis Chapman2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Celestin EtienneMachinist & Saloon KprWife of Claude FulchironSaloon KeeperFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. 111. 5Canada 7Cahokia 5France 5St. Louis Mo. 4France 5St. Clair Co., 111. 4France 7"St. Clair Co., 111. 4France 7"St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | $\begin{array}{c ccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccc$                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNS(Arras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena Cook(Bange, Frederick                                                                                                                                                                                                               | " " " " " Padaborn " " Padaborn " Floraville " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTESec. 1326, '71Sec. 13                                                                                              | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Charles C. HornGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirat wife of John ArrasFramer & Boad Super sr                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia("OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., Ill""Germany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisnlia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.lary E. Droittienne, Celestinlary F. Droittienne, Celestinlary F. Droittienne, Celestinlary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charles A.erber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.                                                                     | 4         4         Sur, 12           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley8 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David Chartranda FarmerWife of Louis Chapman2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Celestin EtienneMachinist & Saloon KprWife of Claude Fulchirona Saloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon Keeper                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""St. Clair Co., III. 4""St. Clair Co., III. 4""St. Clair Co., III. 5CanadaTennesseeSt. Clair Co., III. 5St. Louis Mo.FranceSt. Clair Co., III. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., III. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., III. 5SwitzerlandSt. Clair Co., III. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., III. 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 226         4           543         56           557         19           40         4           413         54           556         2           566         19           417         17           771         17           771         17           771         17           770         142                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSIArras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, John                                                                                                                                                                   | " " " " " Padaborn " " Padaborn " Floraville " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 13120, '64Sec. 11                                                                   | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Vogel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia"OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., Ill"Germany"                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.lary E. Droittienne, Celestinlary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charles A.erber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.deline Jarvey                                                                                                                              | 4       4       Sur, 12         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. Beasley8 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David Chartranda FarmerWife of Louis Chapman2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. C. Droit2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Celestin Etienne0 Machinist & Saloon KprWife of Claude Fulchirona Saloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperWife of Peter Godin, Jr.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 5Canada7Cahokia5St. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.5""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 226         4           543         56           557         19           40         4           413         54           556         2           566         19           417         17           771         17           771         17           771         17           770         142                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSIArras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. Shellenberger                                                                                                                                    | " " " " " Padaborn " " Padaborn " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 122, '64                                                              | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirat wife of John ArrasFarmer & Road Super'srFirst wife of Fred. BangePres' ""Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Banr                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"France                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| largaret Vizareasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyrouilette, Oliverlargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, Davidlary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireunpnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.lary E. Droittienne, Celestinlary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charlcs A.erber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.deline Jarveyerbert, Edward                                                                                                           | 4         4         Sur, 12           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         5           4         4         4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | <ul> <li>Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelot</li> <li>Teacher</li> <li>Wife of J. A. Beasley</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of David Chartrand</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Louis Chapman</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Joe Dupnis</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of J. C. Droit</li> <li>Carpenter</li> <li>Wife of J. E. Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Claude Fulchiron</li> <li>Aschinist &amp; Saloon Keper</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Chaude Fulchiron</li> <li>Asloon Keeper</li> <li>Wife of Christ Gerber</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> </ul>                              | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. 111. 5Canada 7Cahokia 5France 5St. Clair Co., 111. 4France 7"St. Clair Co., 111. 4France 7St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 4""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 26     4       413     56       57     749       40     4       413     54       556     56       566     57       701     1       701     1       413     54       701     1       701     1       413     1       701     1       701     1       101     1       102     1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSI(Arras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, John                                                                                                                       | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTESec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 120, '64Sec. 13                                               | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasFres' "GangeFarmer & Road Super'srFirst wife of Fred. BangePres' "GangeFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                                                                                                                                           | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"FranceSt. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Iargaret Vizarieaaley, J. A.osephine Kelleyirouilette, OliverIargaret Eunonirouilette, M.hartrand, DavidIary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsoniroit, T. C.deline Lalimeireupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.Iary E. Droittienne, CelestinIary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charles A.erber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.deline JarveyIerbert, Edwardierbert, John B.                                                                                   | 4       4       Sur. 12         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4 <td>4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyS Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of Louis Chapman2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleatin EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleate EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleate Fulchirona Saloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperWife of Peter Godin, Jr.Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Peter Godin, Jr.Farmer and Stock RaiserFarmer and Stock RaiserFarmer and Stock RaiserSaloon Keeper</td> <td>France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Ind. 4""4St. Clair Co., 111. 4"4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 4France 7St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 4""5Cahokia, 111. 1Prairie Du Pont 2</td> <td><math display="block">\begin{array}{c} 226 \\ 43 \\ 556 \\ 577 \\ 19 \\ 40 \\ 44 \\ 43 \\ 554 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 </math></td> <td>Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSIArras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGrav. C. C.</td> <td>" " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "</td> <td>10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 131220, '64Sec. 131313</td> <td>Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith &amp; Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Vogel</td> <td>St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia"OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"St. Clair Co., IllGermany</td>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyS Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of Louis Chapman2 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleatin EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleate EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleate Fulchirona Saloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperWife of Peter Godin, Jr.Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Peter Godin, Jr.Farmer and Stock RaiserFarmer and Stock RaiserFarmer and Stock RaiserSaloon Keeper                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 5Knox Co., Ind. 4""4St. Clair Co., 111. 4"4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 4France 7St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 4""5Cahokia, 111. 1Prairie Du Pont 2                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | $\begin{array}{c} 226 \\ 43 \\ 556 \\ 577 \\ 19 \\ 40 \\ 44 \\ 43 \\ 554 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 \\ 556 $ | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSIArras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGrav. C. C.                                                                                       | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 131220, '64Sec. 131313                                | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Vogel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia"OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"St. Clair Co., IllGermany                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Iargaret Vizarieasley, J. A.osepbine Kelleyirouilette, OliverIargaret Eunonrouilette, M.hartrand, DavidIary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonbroit, T. C.deline Lalimeirebupnis, Joeora Lavalletienne, Joseph E.Iary E. Droittienne, CelestinIary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Joubardamlin, Charles A.erber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.deline Jarveylerbert, Edwardierbert, John B.onisa Allerylinski, A. X.                                                  | 4       4       Sur, 12         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4 <td><ul> <li>Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelot</li> <li>Teacher</li> <li>Wife of J. A. Beasley</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Oliver Bronilette</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of David Chartrand</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Louis Chapman</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of J. C. Droit</li> <li>Carpenter</li> <li>Wife of J. E. Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleating Full</li> <li>Wife of Cleating Full</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Full</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Saloer Achier of E. Herbert</li> <li>Mother "" "Alther of E. Herbert</li> </ul></td> <td>FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4"CanadaFranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland""Cahokia, 111. 1Prairie Du Pont 2Poland</td> <td><math display="block">\begin{array}{c ccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccc</math></td> <td>Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSIArras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine Quinlan</td> <td>" " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "</td> <td>10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 13120, '64Sec. 1221313131</td> <td>Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith &amp; Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserFirat wife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirat wife of John ArrasFarmer &amp; Road Super'srFirst wife of Fred. BangePres' "Earmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John DannaholdFarmer &amp; Sch. TeacherWife of C. C. Gray</td> <td>St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"St. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., Ill</td>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | <ul> <li>Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelot</li> <li>Teacher</li> <li>Wife of J. A. Beasley</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Oliver Bronilette</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of David Chartrand</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Louis Chapman</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of J. C. Droit</li> <li>Carpenter</li> <li>Wife of J. E. Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleating Full</li> <li>Wife of Cleating Full</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Full</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Saloer Achier of E. Herbert</li> <li>Mother "" "Alther of E. Herbert</li> </ul>                                                                                     | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""St. Clair Co., 111. 4"CanadaFranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 4FranceSt. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., 111. 5SwitzerlandMo.St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland""Cahokia, 111. 1Prairie Du Pont 2Poland                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | $\begin{array}{c ccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccc$                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanTOWNSIArras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine Quinlan                                                                  | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 13120, '64Sec. 1221313131                                           | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserFirat wife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirat wife of John ArrasFarmer & Road Super'srFirst wife of Fred. BangePres' "Earmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John DannaholdFarmer & Sch. TeacherWife of C. C. Gray                                                                                                     | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"St. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Iargaret Vizarieasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyirouilette, OliverIargaret Eunonirouilette, M.hartrand, DavidIary Trumblehapman, Louisulia WilsonDroit, T. C.deline LalimeireDupnis, Joeora LavalleAttenne, Joseph E.Iary E. DroitStienne, CelestinIary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charlcs A.terber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.deline JarveyIerbert, EdwardIerbert, John B.onisa Allerylinski, A. X.ayne Butler                               | 4       4       Sur, 12         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4         4       4       4 <td>4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of David ChartrandFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of T. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleatin EtienneMachinist &amp; Saloon KprWife of Cleate Fulchirona Saloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperWife of Peter Godin, Jr.Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Peter Godin, Jr.Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperWife of A. X. Illinski</td> <td>France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. III 5""5Canada 7Cahokia 55France 55St. Louis Mo. 4France 7St. Clair Co., III. 4France 7St. Clair Co., III. 4France 7""5Switzerland 55Switzerland 55Mo. 7St. Clair Co., III. 4"""5Cahokia, III. 1Prairie Du Pont 2Poland 2Cahokia, III. 1</td> <td><math display="block">\begin{array}{c ccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccc</math></td> <td>Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanMary F. HoffmanElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine QuinlanLippire, Frederick</td> <td>" " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "</td> <td>10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 1120, '64Sec. 1120, '64Sec. 11111</td> <td>Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith &amp; Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasFarmer &amp; Road Super'srFirst wife of Fred. BangePres' " " "Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John DannaholdFarmer &amp; Sch. TeacherWife of C. C. GrayFarmer and Stock Raiser</td> <td>St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaGoslach. PrusBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"St. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., Ill</td>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of David ChartrandFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of T. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleatin EtienneMachinist & Saloon KprWife of Cleate Fulchirona Saloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperWife of Peter Godin, Jr.Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Peter Godin, Jr.Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperWife of A. X. Illinski | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. III 5""5Canada 7Cahokia 55France 55St. Louis Mo. 4France 7St. Clair Co., III. 4France 7St. Clair Co., III. 4France 7""5Switzerland 55Switzerland 55Mo. 7St. Clair Co., III. 4"""5Cahokia, III. 1Prairie Du Pont 2Poland 2Cahokia, III. 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | $\begin{array}{c ccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccc$                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanMary F. HoffmanElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine QuinlanLippire, Frederick                                                  | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 1120, '64Sec. 1120, '64Sec. 11111 | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasFarmer & Road Super'srFirst wife of Fred. BangePres' " " "Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John DannaholdFarmer & Sch. TeacherWife of C. C. GrayFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                        | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaGoslach. PrusBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"St. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., Ill                                                                                                                                                                |
| Iargaret Vizarieasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyirouilette, OliverIargaret Eunonirouilette, M.'hartrand, DavidIary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonoroit, T. C.deline Lalimeirebupnis, Joeora Lavalledienne, Joseph E.Iary E. Droittitenne, CelestinIary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charlcs A.erber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.deline JarveyIerbert, EdwardIerbert, John B.onisa Allerylinski, A. X.ayne Butlerich, Anthony                | """       Sur, 12         """"       """"""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | <ul> <li>Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelot</li> <li>Teacher</li> <li>Wife of J. A. Beasley</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Oliver Bronilette</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of David Chartrand</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Louis Chapman</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of T. C. Droit</li> <li>Carpenter</li> <li>Wife of J. E. Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Claude Fulchiron</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Christ Gerber</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Fatmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Christ Gerber</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Father of E. Herbert</li> <li>Mother ""</li> <li>Physician and Stock Raiser</li> </ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | France 2Switzerland 4Ripley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""East St. Louis 1Tennessee 5St. Clair Co. 111. 5Canada 7Cahokia 5France 5St. Clair Co. 111. 5St. Clair Co., 111. 4France 7""St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 5Switzerland 5Mo. 7St. Clair Co., 111. 4"""St. Clair Co., 111. 4""Cahokia, 111. 1Prairie Du Pont 5Poland 3Cahokia, 111. 1St. Clair Co., 111. 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | $\begin{array}{c} 266 \\ 577 \\ 577 \\ 519 \\ 519 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \\ 557 \$ | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanMary F. HoffmanCrownSi(Arras, JohnElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine QuinlanLippire, FrederickMargaretta Ganzper | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTESec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 1120, '64Sec. 1313131311                  | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Charles C. HornGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasPres' """Farmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John DannaholdFarmer & Sch. TeacherWife of C. C. GrayFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Fred. Lippire | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussiaOhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany"St. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., Ill |
| Iargaret Vizarieasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyirouilette, OliverIargaret Eunonirouilette, M.hartrand, DavidIary Trumblehapman, Louisulia WilsonDroit, T. C.deline LalimeireDupnis, Joeora LavalleAttenne, Joseph E.Iary E. DroitStienne, CelestinIary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charlcs A.terber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.deline JarveyIerbert, EdwardIerbert, John B.onisa Allerylinski, A. X.ayne Butler                               | 4         4         Sur, 12           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4      4         4         4 <td><ul> <li>Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota Teacher</li> <li>Wife of J. A. Beasley</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of David Chartrand</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Louis Chapman</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of T. C. Droit</li> <li>Carpenter</li> <li>Wife of J. E. Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Etienne</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Wife of Christ Gerber</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Wife of Peter Godin, Jr.</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of E. Herbert</li> <li>Mother " "</li> <li>Physician and Surgeon</li> <li>Wife of A. X. Illinski</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of J. A. Surgeon</li> </ul></td> <td>FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4Faat St. LouisTennesseeSt. Clair Co., III.St. Clair Co., III. 5St. Clair Co., III. 5Cahokia, III. 1St. Clair Co., III. 5Cahokia, III. 1St. Clair Co., III. 5""""</td> <td><math display="block">\begin{array}{c} 266 \\ 567 \\ 719 \\ 711 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\</math></td> <td>Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine QuinlanLippire, FrederickMargaretta GanznerSchniedt, Margaretta</td> <td>" " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "</td> <td>10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 1120, '64Sec. 111111</td> <td>Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith &amp; Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Vogel</td> <td>St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia"OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany""FranceSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllFrance</td>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | <ul> <li>Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota Teacher</li> <li>Wife of J. A. Beasley</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of David Chartrand</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Louis Chapman</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of T. C. Droit</li> <li>Carpenter</li> <li>Wife of J. E. Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Etienne</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of Cleater Etienne</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Wife of Christ Gerber</li> <li>Saloon Keeper</li> <li>Wife of Peter Godin, Jr.</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of E. Herbert</li> <li>Mother " "</li> <li>Physician and Surgeon</li> <li>Wife of A. X. Illinski</li> <li>Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of J. A. Surgeon</li> </ul>                                                                                                                                                      | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4Faat St. LouisTennesseeSt. Clair Co., III.St. Clair Co., III. 5St. Clair Co., III. 5Cahokia, III. 1St. Clair Co., III. 5Cahokia, III. 1St. Clair Co., III. 5""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | $\begin{array}{c} 266 \\ 567 \\ 719 \\ 711 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \\ 717 \$ | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine QuinlanLippire, FrederickMargaretta GanznerSchniedt, Margaretta                       | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 1120, '64Sec. 111111                      | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornTeacherWife of Jos. E. KenningGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John Vogel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia"OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany""FranceSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllFrance                                                                                                                                                      |
| Iargaret Vizarieasley, J. A.osephine Kelleyirouilette, OliverIargaret Eunonirouilette, M.thartrand, DavidIary Trumblehapman, Louisulia Wilsonbroit, T. C.deline Lalimeirebupnis, Joeora Lavalledienne, Joseph E.Iary E. Droittienne, CelestinIary Ploudreulchiron, Claudedalina Jouhardamlin, Charles A.eerber, Christdeline Chatillionodin, Peter, Jr.deline JarveyIerbett, Edwardlerbert, John B.onisa Allerylinski, A. X.ayne Butlersch, Anthonyprvis, Jule | 4         4         Sur, 12           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4           4         4         4      4         4         4 <td>4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of Louis ChapmanFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleade FulchironSaloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Claude FulchironSaloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperSaloon KeeperSaloon KeeperSaloen KeeperWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperSaloen KeeperWife of Christ GerberSaloen KeeperWife of A. X. IllinskiFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Jule JarvisFarmer and Stock Raiser</td> <td>FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4Faat St. LouisTennesseeSt. Clair Co., III.St. Clair Co., III. 5St. Clair Co., III. 5Cahokia, III. 1St. Clair Co., III. 5Cahokia, III. 1St. Clair Co., III. 5""""</td> <td><math display="block">\begin{array}{c} 266 \\ 567 \\ 749 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\</math></td> <td>Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine QuinlanLippire, FrederickMargaretta GanznerSchniedt, Margaretta</td> <td>" " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "</td> <td>10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 122131311115, '75Sec. 1</td> <td>Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith &amp; Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Charles C. HornGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasPres' """Farmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John DannaholdFarmer &amp; Sch. TeacherWife of C. C. GrayFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Fred. Lippire</td> <td>St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia"OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany""FranceSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllFrance</td> | 4 Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Frank Bevelota TeacherWife of J. A. BeasleyFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Oliver BroniletteFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of David ChartrandFarmerWife of Louis ChapmanFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of J. C. DroitCarpenterWife of J. E. EtienneFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Cleade FulchironSaloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Claude FulchironSaloon KeeperFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperSaloon KeeperSaloon KeeperSaloen KeeperWife of Christ GerberSaloon KeeperSaloen KeeperWife of Christ GerberSaloen KeeperWife of A. X. IllinskiFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Jule JarvisFarmer and Stock Raiser                                                                                       | FranceSwitzerlandRipley Co., Mo. 6St. Clair Co., III. 4"""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4St. Clair Co., III. 4""4Faat St. LouisTennesseeSt. Clair Co., III.St. Clair Co., III. 5St. Clair Co., III. 5Cahokia, III. 1St. Clair Co., III. 5Cahokia, III. 1St. Clair Co., III. 5""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | $\begin{array}{c} 266 \\ 567 \\ 749 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \\ 100 \$ | Charlotta NeubrathFrank AndreasGanter, HenryLena KemperHorn, Charles C.Dorotha DaechKenning, Joseph E.Mary HamerSensel, HenryElizabeth SkaerVogel, JohnMary F. HoffmanElizabeth MuellerGustena CookBange, FrederickChristiana HoffmannLouisa MundBaus, JohnMargt. ShellenbergerDannahold, JohnCaroline KruppGray, C. C.Uatherine QuinlanLippire, FrederickMargaretta GanznerSchniedt, Margaretta                       | " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                            | 10F'ville"Pada'nF'villeSec. 99OUTHSec. 1326, '71Sec. 1320, '64Sec. 122131311115, '75Sec. 1               | Wife of August BrandesBlacksmith & Wag'n MkrPhysician and SurgeonWife of Henry GanterGeneral MerchantWife of Charles C. HornFeacherWife of Charles C. HornGeneral MerchantWife of Henry SenselFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John VogelFarmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasPres' """Farmer and Stock RaiserFirst wife of John ArrasFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John BaurFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of John DannaholdFarmer & Sch. TeacherWife of C. C. GrayFarmer and Stock RaiserWife of Fred. Lippire | St. Clair Co., IllGermanySt. Clair Co., IllPrussia"OhioIndianaBosslach. PrusSt. Clair Co., IllPenn.PrussiaST.ChambersburgMonroe Co., IllGermany""FranceSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllGermanyOhioSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllSt. Clair Co., IllFrance                                                                                                                                                      |

.

TOWNSHIP 1 SOUTH DANCE O WEST

TOWNSHIP 1 SOUTH, RANGE 9 WEST.-[CONTINUED.]

| TOWNS                                      | HIP 1, 8               | OUT            | H. RANGE 9, W                                                              | EST.                                   |                                         | TOWNSHIP 1                                  | SOUTE                                   | I, RA           | NGE 9 WESF                                                    | [Continued.]                     |
|--------------------------------------------|------------------------|----------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| NAME.                                      | P. OFFICE.             | RESID.         | OCCUPATION.                                                                | NATIVITY.                              | SettId                                  | NAME.                                       | P. OFFICE.                              | RESID.          | OCCUPATION.                                                   | NATIVITY.                        |
|                                            |                        |                |                                                                            |                                        |                                         | f Laughlin, Thomas                          | Millstadt                               | Sec. 20         | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                       |                                  |
| lskin, Charles T.Malinda J. Russel     | Millstadt"         |                | Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Chas. T. Askin                          |                                        |                                         | ) Mary Crowe/ Lark, Mrs. E. A.          | دددد                                | 20Millstadt | Wife of Thos. LaughlinRetired                             | IrelandSt. Clair Co. Ill.    |
| ltschuh, George                            | "                      |                | Manufr of Carriages and Wagoaa                                             | St. Clair Co. Ill.                     |                                         | Lark, William                               |                                         | 25, 1879        | Late husband of E. A. Lark                                    | England                          |
| Altschuh, JacobMary Keek               | "                      | "              | Father of Geo. AltschuhMother ""                                       |                                        | 47                                      | Mueller, ThomasHelena Bruckert          | Millstadt                               |                 | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                       |                                  |
| Baltz, Fredrich                            | "                      | 1              | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                    |                                        | 36 38                               | (McBride, W. E.                             | Belleville                              |                 | Wife of Thomas MuellerFarmer and Stock Dealer             |                                  |
| Ragena Richert                             | "                      | 7              | Wife of Fredrich Baltz                                                     | "                                      | 42                                      | Jennie L. Thatcher                          | "                                       | 1               | Wife of W. E. McBride                                         | ** **                            |
| Backer, Fred.Mary Miller               |                        | Millstadt      | Prop'r of Merchant and Oustom MillWife of Fred. Backer                 | GermanyMillstadt, St. Clair Co III | 61                                      | (McBride, Mrs. W. J.Marxer, Alois       | "Millstadt                          |                 | Mother of """Farmer and Thrasher                          | 66 EE66 EE                   |
| Brenfleck, Valentine                       | "                      | "              | Prop'r of Saloon and Brewer                                                | Baden, Germa'y                         | 4646                                | Muskopf, Henry                              | MIIIIStadt"                         |                 | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                       |                                  |
| Barbara Funsch                             | "                      | 66             | Wife of V. Brenfleck                                                       | Bavaria                                | 4 6'                             | Charlotte A. Ullrich                        | "                                       | 22              | Wife of Henry Muskopf                                         |                                  |
| Bangert, WilliamMary A. Mild           | Died Feb.              | 6600 1975  | ButcherFirst wife of Wm.Banger                                         | GermanyMonroo Co Til               | 49                                      | f Miller, LouisChristina Udech          | "                                       |                 | Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of Louis Miller               | **                               |
| Elvina Schulze                             | Millstadt              | Millstadt      | Present wife of "                                                          | Rock Island Co.                        | 6872                                | f Miller, Fred.                             |                                       | Milistadt       | Blacksmith                                                    | St. Clair Co. Ill.               |
| Briesacher, Henry                          |                        | Sec. 3         | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                                    | France                                 | 28                                      | Mary Frank                                  | "                                       | "               | Wife of Fred. Miller                                          | Germany                          |
| Catharine Diesel                           |                        | 8              | Gen'l Merchandise, Wines & Liquor                                          |                                        | 36                                      | { Nolte, George                             | 4456                                | "               | Stove and Tin Store                                           | 46                               |
| Brueggenjuergen, Herm':Victoria Besse  | "                      | fi fi          | Wife of H. Brueggenjuergen                                                 |                                        | $\begin{bmatrix} 72\\54 \end{bmatrix}$  | Charlotta BuchholzOldendorph, Geo., Jr. | "                                       |                 | Wife of George NolteBlacksmith                            | St. Clair Co. Ill.               |
| Boemer, Casper                             | "                      |                | Farmer and Stock Raise                                                     |                                        | 40                                      | Mary Briesacker                             | "                                       | "               | Wife of G.Oldendorph, Jr.                                     | """"                             |
| Catharine Rodemich                         | "                      | 1              | Wife of Casper Boemer                                                      | Hesse Darmstadt, Ger.                  | 37                                      | { Probstmeyer, Charles                      | "                                       | "               | Justice of the Peace                                          | Germany                          |
| Breidecker, P. Fr.Catharine Justin     |                        | Millstadt      | Manufr of Saddles and HaraessFirst wife of P. Fr. Breidecke            | St. Clair Co. Ill.                     | 4448                                | Leonora WagnerPommer, Rev. Louis        | 66                                      | "               | Wife of C. ProbstmeyerPastor Catholic Church              | "                                |
| Christiana Herrmann                        | Millstadt              | Millstadt      | Precent " " "                                                              |                                        | 4049                                | f Petri, Henry                              | "                                       | "               | Boot and Shoe Manufacturer                                    | St. Clair Co. Ill                |
| Baur, Franz                                | 6666               | "              | Prop'r Baur's Mills                                                        | Germany                                | 50'                                     | Mary Momeger                                | Died June                               |                 | Wife of Henry Petri                                           |                                  |
| Latharine WeberBoemer, Frederick       | "                      | 400 1          | Wife of Franz BaurFarmer and Stock Raise                               | St. Clair Co. Ill.                     | $\frac{43}{47}$                         | { Preusher, William{ Louisa Henecke     | Millstadt"                          | Millstadt"  | Manufacturer of WagonsWife of Wm. Preusher                |                                  |
| Catharine Miller                           | "                      | 17             | Wife of F. Boemer                                                          | 46 £6                                  | $\frac{47}{48}$                         | f Roach, R.                                 | Belleville                              |                 | Prop. Grist and Saw Mill                                      | "                                |
| Baird, Edward                              | "                      |                | Farmer and Stock Raise                                                     | r " "                                  | 27                                      | A. N. Tarr                                  |                                       | "               | Wife of R. Roach                                              | Adams Co. Ill.                   |
| Baird, Evan                                | Deceased.Milistadt |                | Father of Edward Bairo                                                     | Fleming Co.Ky.                         | 27                                      | Rudolf, George                              | Millstadt                               |                 | Farmer and Stock RaiserWife of George Rudolf              |                                  |
| Baird, MaryCajacob, George             | 44                     | Millstadt      | ia                                                                         | St. Clair Co. III.                     | 07                                      | Roos, Valentine                             | "                                       |                 | Farmer and Stock Raise                                        |                                  |
| 'atharine Greenowold                       | "                      |              | Wife of George Cajacob                                                     | St. Clair Co. Ill.                     | 37                                      |                                             | "                                       |                 | Wife of Valentine Roos                                        | "                                |
| Johrmann, Henry, S                         | :. ""              | "              | Carpenter and Builder                                                      | Germany                                | 56                                      | Shoening, Ed. F.                            | "                                       | Millstadt       | MillerWife of Ed. F. Shoening                             | Dellemilly III                   |
| Iary BletteDoerr, John                 | "                      | 66             | Wife of H. Dohrmann, SrProp. Hotel and Saloon                          | St Louis Mo                            | 56                                      | Lina BruckerSchwinn, L. P.              | "                                       |                 | Farmer                                                        | St. Clair Co. Ill                |
| atherine Brenfleck                         | Died Jan               | . 28, 1871     | First wife of John Doer                                                    | r St. Clair Co. III.                   | 54                                      | Elizabeth Scherming                         | "                                       | "               | Wife of L. P. Schwinn                                         | " "                              |
| )ehn, J. George                            | Mill-tadt              | Sec. 2         | 4 Farmer and Stock Raise                                                   | r Darmstadt, Ger.                      | 38                                      | f Schneider, Emil                           | "                                       | "               | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                       |                                  |
| nna Barbara GrossmanIddrich, August    | n "                    | 2              | 4 Wile of J. George DehnBlacksmith                                     |                                        | 32                                      | \ Lizzie Herr  Schlernitzauer, Adolph   |                                         |               | Wife of Emil SchneiderPhysician and Surgeon               | France                           |
| Atharine Baker                             | "                      | Millstadi      | Wife of A. Diddrich                                                        | Germany"                           | $\frac{47}{53}$                         | A Mary Ball                                 | Died Dec                                | 1               | First wife of A. Schlernitzaue                                | Washington Co. Ill               |
| Delin, John                                | "                      |                | Shoemaker & Postmaste                                                      | r Darmstadt, Ger.                      | 49                                      | (Mary H. Palmer                             | Millstadt                               | Millstadt       | Present " " "                                                 | Toledo, Ohio                     |
| Barbara Resenberge                         | 6255               |              | Wife of John Dehn                                                          | Bayern, Ger.                           | 47                                      | f Schneider, GeorgeMary Euhl            |                                         |                 | EngineerWife of George Schneider                          | FranceSt. Clair Co. III      |
| Diesel, John M.Dorn, Louisa            | "                      | "              | Wagon and Buggy ManufacturerWife of J. M. Diesel                       | St. Clair Co. Ill.Hancock Co. Ill. |                                         | Schmahlenberger, D. C                       | "                                       | "               | Blacksmith                                                    | ** **                            |
| Ernst, Jacob                               | "                      |                | 9 Gardener                                                                 | Nassau, Ger.                           | 47                                      | Caroline P.Ohlendorph                       | n "                                     | "               | Wife of D. C. Schmahlenberge                                  |                                  |
| Catharine Loux                             | "                      | 1              | 9 Wife of Jacob Ernst                                                      |                                        | 47                                      | Sieber. William                             | "                                       | "               | M'frof Carriages, Wagons, Plows, &cWife of William Sieber | •                                |
| Fischer, ChristianAugusta Gust         | "                      | Millstad(( | Manuf'r of Soda WaterWife of C. Fisher                                 | GermanySt Clair Co III             | 47                                      | ∖ Mary Dorne∫Saltenberger, John         | "                                       |                 | Physician and Surgeon                                         | Germany                          |
| Hol.s, Rev. F. W.                          | "                      | "              | Minister Lutheran Ch.                                                      | Germany                                | 51                                      | l Louisa Suemnicht                          |                                       |                 | Wife of J. Saltenberger                                       | "                                |
| Estier Fermenstein                         | Died Jul               |                | Late wife of Rev. F. W. Holle                                              |                                        | 36                                      |                                             | "                                       | Millstadt       | Clerk and Book-keeperHarness Maker                        | St. Clair Co. Ill                |
| Huber, HenrySophia E. Krieger          | Millstadt"         | Millstad"  | Retired MerchantWife of Henry Huber                                    | Bavaria, Ger.St. Clair Co. Ill.    | 53                                      |                                             |                                       | "               | General Merchandise                                           | Germany                          |
| Linton, Henry                              | "                      | "              | Manuf'r Carriages and Wagor                                                |                                        | 56                                      | Margaret Mueller                            | "                                       | "               | Wife of Nick Theohald                                         | "                                |
| atharine Buchholz                          | "                      | 6666       | Wife of Henry Hinton                                                       | "                                      | 58                                      | [Tegtmeier, Henry                           |                                         | "               | Manufr and Dealer in Clothing                                 |                                  |
| Herrmann, Wm. C.Datharine Werner       |                        | 66             | Undertaker & CarpenterWife of W. C. Herrman                            |                                        | 60                                      | Christeno Bodenhager                        | 1 "                                     |                 | Wife of Henry TegtmeieFarmer and Stock Raise              | r "                              |
| Hoelscher, Charles                         | 66                     | Sec.           | 8 Farmer and Stock Raise                                                   | 14                                     | $\begin{array}{c} 62 \\ 40 \end{array}$ | Veildt, Gustena                             | "                                       | 1.2             | Wife of Fredrich Vogel                                        | ~~                               |
| Iellena Duthenhaus                         | "                      |                | <sup>8</sup> Wife of Chas. Hoelschei                                       | r Germany                              | 65                                      | ∫ Wagner, Louis J.                          | "                                       | Millstadt       | Village Clork, and Restaurant                                 | St. Clair Co. 11                 |
| Ienrici, Jacoh E.Elizabeth Lindenstrut | ин и               |                | 8 Farmer and Teacher8 Wife of Jacob E. Henrid                          |                                        | 46                                      | ) Plliss Diehl( Weible, Trumbull        | 44                                      | Sec. 16         | Wife of Louis J. WagneFarmer and Stock Raise              | r St. Clair Co. II               |
| Hepfinger, Jacob                           | "                      |                | 8 Farmer and Stock Raise                                                   | er "                                   | $\frac{35}{37}$                         | Weible, John                                | Died                                    | . 1865          | Father of T. Weible                                           | Tuscarawas Co. O.                |
| Catharine Temptner                         |                        | 1              | 8 Wife of Jacob Hoepfinge                                                  | er "                                   | 61                                      | Jane Townsler                               | Millstadt                               | Sec. 16         | Mother of ""Due Ciner Festers No S                        | New York                         |
| Hartman, Fred.                             | 6666               | Millstad       | <sup>t</sup> Wagon ManufacturerWife of Fred Heatman                    | St. Louis, Mo.                         | 40                                      | ∫ Wilkens Franz} Philipena Hartman      | "                                       | Millstadt44 | Prop. Cigar Factory No.8Wife of Franz Wilkens             | St. Clair Co. II                 |
| fary A. ReidlinghavIertel, George      | er                     | 1              | Wife of Fred. Hartman9 Farmer and Wine Growe                           |                                        | $\frac{61}{33}$                         | (Werner, John                               | "                                       |                 | Farmer and Stock Raise                                        | r Germany                        |
| lagdalena Huppert                          |                        | 2              | 9 Wife of George Hertel                                                    | 46                                     | 47                                      | Mary Ropp                                   | "                                       |                 | Wife of John Werner                                           | Monroe Co. Ill                   |
| acobus, Charles                            | "                      | illstad        | Clerk and Book-keeper                                                      | Prussia                                | 59                                      |                                             |                                         | 1               |                                                               |                                  |
| largaretha Kroppones, Edward           |                        |                | Wife of Charles JacobuSchool Teacher                                   | New York                               | $\frac{45}{78}$                         | TOWN                                        | SHIP L                                  | SOUT            | H, RANGE 7 WE                                                 | ST.                              |
| lacobi, John                               | "                      | Bec. 2         | 9 Farmer and Stock Raise                                                   | er St. Clair Co. Ill.                  | . 47                                    |                                             | _                                | [               |                                                               | [ .                              |
| fary Vogt                                  |                      |                | 9 Wife of John Jacobi                                                      | Monroe Co. Ill.                        |                                         |                                             | Freeburg                                | F'hurg          | General Merchant                                              | Kerr Hesse, GerBavaria, Ger. |
| Knocke, Henry, Jr.Elizabeth Jung       |                      | dillstadff | Carpenter and BuilderWife of H. Knocke, Jr.                            | St. Clair Co. Ill.                     | $\cdot 53 \\ 56$                        |                                             | ~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~~ | Sec 1           | Wife of Henry BarthelFarmer and Stock Raise               |                                  |
| Kalbfleisch, Peter                         | "                      | "              | Prop. Hotel and Saloon                                                     | "                                      | 5046                                |                                             | • 6                                     | 17              | 7 " " "                                                       | St. Clair Co. Il                 |
| Keller, Mary                               | "                      | 6666       | Wife of Peter Kalbfleisc                                                   | h " "                                  | 47                                      | f Blattner. Samuel                          |                                         | F'burg          | Carpenter and BuilderWife of Samuel Blattne               | Switzerland                      |
| Cring, Eugene C.Ceck, John             | "                      |                | Druggiet and Medical Studen3 Farmer and Stock Raise                    |                                        | 5646                                |                                             |                                         |                 | MC11 Classic                                                  | Hesse Darmstadt, Ge              |
| Keck, JohnKeck, Marv                   | u                      |                | <sup>3</sup> Wife of John Keck                                             | 66 66                                  | 4049                                |                                             | "                                       | "               | Wife of Charles Becker                                        | St. Clair Co. Ill.               |
| Kinkel, Philipp                            | "                      | Millstad       | Manuf'r and Dealer in Cigar                                                |                                        | 47                                      | Costello, William                           | "                                       | "               | Book Keeper                                                   |                                  |
| lary Volier (nee Kinke                     | ) "                    | 8              | Wife of Philipp Kinke                                                      | 4                                      | 50                                      |                                             | 1666                                | 6666        | Wife of William CostellDruggist                           | Madison Co. II                   |
| Kern, Henry L.Atharine Dewald          |                        | il 9, 186      | 9 Farmer and Stock Raise3 Wife of Henry L. Kern                        | St Clair Co III                        | 36                                      | ∫ Dare, Phil. C.\ Nancy Irwin           | ¢ 6                                     | 66              | Wife of Phil C. Dare                                          | St. Clair Co. Il                 |
| atharine Peter (nee Engle                  |                        | Sec.           | 9 Present wife of ""                                                       | Germany                                | - 5552                              |                                             | Belleville                              | Sec. 1          | 7 Farmer and Stock Raise                                      | er 46 46                         |
| Lindauer, William                          | Smithtow               | n   2          | 25 Engineer                                                                | "                                      | 53                                      | Rosa Valentine                              | "                                       | 1               | 7 Wife of Louis Fiedler6 Farmer and Stock Raise           |                                  |
| Lindauer, Christine                        | M:11atalt              |                | 5 Mother of Wm. Lindau                                                     |                                        | 53                                      |                                             | Fayettevil                              | 1 9             | C Wito of Chanlos History                                     | 1 OF TRUE 010.                   |
| Little, A. J.Little, John M.           | MillstadtDied Ser  | t. 4. 186      | <sup>5</sup> Farmer and Stock Raise<sup>5</sup> Father of A. J. Little | Louisville, Kv.                        |                                         |                                             | "                                       | 2               | 5 Farmer and Stock Kaise                                      | r St Clair Co. Il                |
| Nancy Atchison                             | Millstadt              | Sec.           | 5 Mother of ""                                                             | Monroe Co. Ill.                        | 29                                      | Ellen Wilderman                             | "                                       | 2               | 5 Wife of John Griffin                                        |                                  |
| Lindauer, Geo. Jacol                       | "                      |                | 8 Farmer, Wine Grower & Stock Rais8 Wife of G. J. Lindauer             | Germany                                | 53                                      | (Herman, Peter Jr.                          | Freeburg                                | F'bur           | g Gen'l Merch'dise & Far. ImWife of P. Herman, J          | P Messo Darmatadi Os             |
| Lindauer, Catharine                        | 66                     |                |                                                                            |                                        |                                         | Margt. E. Reinheime                         |                                         |                 |                                                               |                                  |

TOWNSHIP 1 SOUTH, RANGE 7 WEST.-[CONTINUED]

TOWNSHIP 2, NORTH, RANGE 8, WEST.

| FAME         P. OPTIOL         REED         COURTINGS         FATURE         F. OPTIOL         REED         COURTINGS           Heid, Jain         F. OPTIOL         Parmy L.P. 4. Proprint of State Mill         The Demonstration of the State Million                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | NATIVITY          | UUUUI ALIUM.                                               | TOTAL.            | r. orriog.     | NAME.                                 |                          |                              | 1       |              |                        |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------|----------------|---------------------------------------|--------------------------|------------------------------|---------|--------------|------------------------|
| <ul> <li>Hill, Peter G.</li> <li>Hill, Peter G.</li> <li>Province of Livery 2 Ers. Agt.</li> <li>Province of Livery 2 Ers.</li> <li>Province Divery 2 Ers.</li> <li>Province Divery 2 Ers.</li> <li>Province D</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | t a c             |                                                     |                   |                |                                       |                          |                              | F'burg  | Freeburg     |                        |
| <ul> <li>Habeh Tue in Australia and a strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the strain of the st</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | France            | Farmer and Hotel                                           | Sec. 29           | Ridge Prairie  |                                       | St. Clair Co. Ill. 44    | Wife of Jolin Heid           | "       |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>amage and solve and sol</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | o'y "             | Late hus. of Mary R. Amsb'y                                | 6, 279            | Died Nov.      |                                       | 30                       |                              |         | 1            |                        |
| <ul> <li>arrite Hanshoff, Cash Mine, Cash Mine, Cash Mine, Cash Mine, Cash Mine, Sano, Gaong, G., arrives, G. Sano, Died Moet, S. Stock, K. St</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                   |                                                            |                   | Ridge Prairie  |                                       | 01                       |                              |         |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>udom, George A.</li> <li>"." Coul Miner</li> <li>"." Wife of C. A., Houle Ra.</li> <li>"." Wife of R. W., Lonnen</li> <li>"." The State of Research State State</li> <li>"." The State li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Johnson Co.       |                                                            |                   | "              |                                       |                          | Wife of Otto Heizmann        | "       |              |                        |
| arry Darmasietter         "         "         Wile of G. A. Hubern         St. Clar Co. 111 561         Beedie, S. H.         "         15 [Parmer and Book Raises           mean, Goorge C.         "         "         "         Wile of S. R. Levele         "         13 [Parmer and Book Raises           mean, Goorge C.         "         "         "         "         13 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         14 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         13 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         14 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         12 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         12 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         12 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         12 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         12 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         12 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         12 [Parmer and Book Raises         "         12 [Parmer and Book Raises         "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                   |                                                            |                   | "              |                                       | " " " 77                 |                              | "       | 16           |                        |
| <ul> <li>Banen, Bohert W. ()</li> <li>See, 31 Armer and Stock Raken ()</li> <li>Wile of M. V. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. V. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. V. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. V. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. V. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. V. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. V. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. V. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. N. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. N. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. N. Lennen, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. Shiller, ()</li> <li>Wile of S. Badgler, ()</li> <li>Wile of M. Shiller, ()</li> <li>Wile of S. Badgler, ()</li> <li>Wile of A. J. Compton, ()</li> <li>Wile of A. J.</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                   |                                                            |                   |                |                                       | St. Clair Co. Ill 56     | Wife of G. A. Hudson         | ¢6      |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>Trans R. Bookey</li> <li>Torkar M. Songey</li> /ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | "                 |                                                            |                   | 46             |                                       | " " 35 "                 | Farmer and Stock Raiser      | Sec. 31 |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>a. 37 Finite of the such as the second state of the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as the such as t</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | e' ''             | Farmer and Stock Raise                                     | 14                | Collinsville   | ) Bowler, G. W., Jr.                  | 00[]                     |                              |         | 1            | arbara E. Stookey      |
| aria Griffin Control of a Mailer of a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail and a mail a                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Jr "              | Wife of G. W. Bowler, Jr                                   | 14                |                |                                       | 0.01                     |                              |         |              | emen, George C.        |
| <ul> <li>Hite, W.S., Preburg, Be, 31 [Carmor and Stock Raise]</li> <li>Hu, H.J., W.S., Marner, M.S., Marren, Bedling, C.S., Marro, T.L., Marro, /li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | er Williamson Co. | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | 23                | O'Fallon       | )                                     | 0.0                      |                              | . 3, 57 | Died Nov.    |                        |
| <ul> <li>In Hull "A lock and the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                   |                                                            |                   | Gugownillo     |                                       | 00                       |                              | Sec. 21 | Freehowa     |                        |
| <ul> <li>Iller, Jacob ar: McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar McGainer ar</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Miami Co. ()      |                                                            |                   |                |                                       | 70                       |                              |         | r reeourg    |                        |
| arr MachineBernag, NelovineBernag, Nelovi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | a Augusta Co.     | For or and Stock Rejuer                                    | 22                | Ridgo Proirie  | (Bagole C S                           |                          |                              |         | 65           |                        |
| seerang, Nicholas Predurg Plung Planter & Dir. in Paint St. Cair Co. III. 49iller, Peurg Belleville See. 34 Parmer and Stock Raiseseerang Alberian State States St. Cair Co. III. 49Buckley, James A. Schlasson and St. Cair Co. III. 49Buckley, James A. Schlasson and States Bailestates and State States St. Cair Co. III. 49Buckley, James A. Schlasson and States Bailestates Data States St. Cair Co. III. 49Buckley, James A. Schlasson and States Bailestates and State States St. Cair Co. III. 49Buckley, James A. Schlasson and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and States Bailestates and Sta                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Cook Co. Ill.     |                                                            |                   |                | Begole, Laura M.                      |                          | Wife of Jacob Miller         | 13. 71  | Died May     |                        |
| arg Skaer       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       "       <                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                   |                                                            |                   | $6            |                                       | St. Clair Co. Ill. 49    |                              |         |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>Iller, Peer Marken, Roise Marken, Raise Marken, San Marken, Barken, Genz Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken, Marken,</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Pa.               |                                                            | 44                | "              | Buckley, Aun                          |                          |                              |         | "            | ary Skaer              |
| <ul> <li>A. Budgley B. T. A. Budgley B. C. Parmer and Stock Raise S. Chir Co. 111, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise S. Chir Co. 112, 54</li> <li>B. Charles Parner 13, 56, Raise Parner 13, 56, Raise Parner 13, 56, Raise Parner 14, 56, 76, 76, 76, 76, 76, 76, 76, 76, 76, 7</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | er St. Clair Co.  | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | Sec. 34           | Belleville     | Badgley, James A.                     | " " 42                   | Farmer and Stock Raise       |         |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>izziebet J. Hill</li> <li>iziebet J. H</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                   |                                                            |                   | 64             | Lucy Sissom                           | Lorraine France 55       | Wife of Peter Miller         |         |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>Andre J. Jacoph</li> <li>Andre J. Jacoph</li> <li>Brite Perge Perge To Perge To Perge Y (Perge Y)</li> <li>Brite C. Balanci Y. Hull Balanci Y. Statis C. Balanci Y. Hull Balanci Y. Statis C. Balanci Y. Hull Coll. Statis Coll. Balanci Y. Hull Coll. Balanci Y. Hull Coll. Balanci Y. Hull Coll. Balanci Y. Hull Coll. Balanci Y. Hul</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | "                 |                                                            |                   |                |                                       |                          |                              |         | Freeburg     |                        |
| artah Rauth artah Kauth artah                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Ohio              | Wife of S. Badgley                                         |                   |                |                                       |                          | Wite of B. F. Phillips       | Eth.    | 4            |                        |
| <ul> <li>and E. Bais C. Engla M. Skobling and Skok Raiser Darastad, Ger 34 (Mary Terry Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer and Skok Raiser Died Marz, 27 (Farmer)))))))))))))))))))))))))))))))))))</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | er Greene Co. O   | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | 33                |                |                                       |                          |                              | gring   | 1            |                        |
| ariah E. Balzmiheimer, George J. Pre-brugthe S. Koblhauff"""the S. C. 17, France and Stock RaiseDarmstalke B. Koblhauff"""the S. C. 17, France and Stock RaiseDarmstalke S. C. 111, St. 1Belleville""""""the S. C. 17, France and Stock RaiseDarmstalke S. C. 111, St. 1Belleville"""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Ke St. Clair Co.  | Late whie of Jack. Brake                                   | 10, 79            | Collinar, lo   |                                       | Hesse Darmstadt, Ger- 54 | Retired                      | **      |              |                        |
| sinheimer, George J. Preeburg11 Wife of G.J. Reinheimer, Kleineyre, Ger 43Liachonas, Saml R Belleville16 Former and Stock Raise J. Chair Co. 111.5017 Barles A. J.18 Star Preiser18 Partner and Stock Raise J. Chair Co. 111.5019 Star J. Preeburg19 Wife of S.R. Effictences Washington Chill19 Star J. Preeburg19 Wife of S.R. Effictences Washington Chill19 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of S.R. Effictences Washington Chill19 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of S.R. Effictences Washington Chill19 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of S.R. Effictences Washington Chill19 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of S.R. Effictences Washington Chill19 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of S.R. Effictences Washington Chill19 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of A.J. J. Coopt19 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of Her. Spitzmass M. Chair Co. 111.5010 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of Her. Spitzmass M. Chair Co. 111.5010 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of A.J. Coopt10 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of A.J. Coopt10 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of A.J. Coopt10 Star J. Preeburg10 Wife of Her. Spitzmass M. Chair Co. 111.5111 Star Badgley11 Wife of A.J. Scar J. Pro-sia20 Star J. Preeburg12 Wife of A.J. Scar J. Pro-sia20 Star J. Preeburg12 Wife of A.J. Scar J. Pro-sia20 Star J. Pro-sia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | er "              | Farmer and Stock Kaiser                                    | ສອບ, 3∣ງ າາ/⊡ | Died Mar       |                                       | wany                     |                              | 1. 70   |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>th. S. Koblhauff " " 17 Wife of G. J. Relniemer, Kleinbyer, Ger 43 J Budde, Tacob</li> <li>seeler, August R. Belleville " 60 Farmer and Stock Raise 'J. Chir Co. III. 50 Josephine Schullbase " 20 Wife of Jacob Bodde Raise 'J. Chir Co. III. 50 Josephine Schullbase " 20 Wife of A. J. Cooper, A. J.</li> <li>stans, Herman Belleville " 6 Farmer and Stock Raise 'J. Chir Co. III. 50 Josephine Schullbase " 20 Wife of A. J. Cooper, A. J.</li> <li>stans, Herman Belleville " 6 Farmer and Stock Raise 'J. Chir Co. III. 50 Josephine Schullbase " 20 Parmer and Stock Raise 'J. Chir Co. III. 50 Josephine Schullbase " 20 Parmer and Stock Raise 'J. Chir Co. III. 50 Josephine Schullbase " 20 Parmer and Stock Raise 'J. Chir Co. III. 50 Josephine Schullbase 'J. 2000 Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Josephine Jos</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | a maryland        | Widow of Joshna Regele                                     | a, 14             | Collinsv'le    |                                       | Darmstadt. Ger. 34       | Farmer and Stock Raiser      | Sec. 17 |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>itenhous, Sam'l R Belleville</li> <li>ciber, Augusta</li> <li>freeburg</li> <li>from 2 Propriet or of Brevery</li> <li>sc. 19 Farmer and Stock Raiser</li> <li>the Sc. 19 Farmer and Stock Ra</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | er Hanover (10    | Farmer and Stock Raison                                    | 3.                | Ridge Prairie  |                                       |                          |                              | 17      | "            | th. S. Kohlhauff       |
| <ul> <li>nubas C. England         <ul> <li>(Wife of S. B. Bittenhouses washingsonco.11).75</li> <li>[Baldan, George J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <li>(Wife of Jos. P. Sinth J.</li> <l< td=""><td>Madison Co.</td><td></td><td>32</td><td>4</td><td>Eliza Nurden</td><td>St. Clair Co. Ill. 51</td><td>Farmer and Stock Raiser</td><td>6</td><td>Belleville</td><td></td></l<></ul></li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Madison Co.       |                                                            | 32                | 4              | Eliza Nurden                          | St. Clair Co. Ill. 51    | Farmer and Stock Raiser      | 6       | Belleville   |                        |
| <ul> <li>anth. Joseph P.</li> <li>Arther G. (1996)</li> <li>anth. Joseph P.</li> <li>Arther S. (1996)</li> <li>anth. Joseph P.</li> <li>Arther S. (1996)</li> <li>anth. Joseph P.</li> <li>anther J.</li> <li>anther J.</li> <li>anth. Joseph P.</li> <li>anther J.</li> <li>anth. Joseph P.</li> <li>anther J.</li> /ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | er France         | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    |                   | French Vill'ge | Baldus, George                        | WashingtonCo.Ill. 75     | Wife of S. R. Rittenhouse    | 1 6     | 4            | ouisa C. England       |
| nith, Joseph P.nith, Joseph P.nith, M. Chessey H.19 Wife of Jac. P. Smith6 Farmer and Stock Raise19 Wife of Jac. P. Smith6 Farmer and Stock Raise19 Wife of Jac. P. Smith6 Farmer and Stock Raise10 Wife of Jac. P. Smith6 Farmer and Stock Raise10 Wife of Jac. P. Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith10 Wife of Marker Smith11 Parmer and Stoc                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Canton Switz, Sw  | Wife of Geo. Baldus                                        | 3(                |                | (Josephine Schultbaes                 | st. Clair Co. Ill. 50    | Propri for of Brewery        | f"burg  | Freeburg     |                        |
| <ul> <li>101, M. Chesney</li> <li>118, Wie of Jos, F. Smith, """</li> <li>121, Wie of Jos, W.  Jos, W. Smith, """, """</li> <li>121, Wie o</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | er St. Clair Co.  | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | 2:                |                |                                       |                          |                              |         |              |                        |
| ary Fonck       "       6 (Wife of Her. Spitzmass       Sc. Clair Co. 111.50       Dirkon, G. S.       Belleville       Belleville       Sc. 31       Former and Stock Raise         ancy J. Helems       "       Sympt or Mether of Nanover, Ger. 32       Nanove Alliman       Died Dec. 3, 7;       it wife of G. S. Dizo         ancy J. Helems       "       Sympt or Mether of Nanover, Ger. 32       Deppe. Willim       Balleville       Sc. 31       Frees.       Sc.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | r "               | Ist wife of A. J. Cooper                                   | 1850              |                |                                       | 99  -                    |                              |         |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>Jidmas, Richard arey J. Helens</li> <li>S. Farmer and Stock Raiser, Prasia</li> <li>Wile of Rich. Spirmas, St. Clair C, 111</li> <li>K. Clair C, 114</li> <li>K.</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Cape Girardeau Co |                                                            |                   |                |                                       |                          |                              | -       | benevine     |                        |
| anor J. Helems       4       8       Wife of Rich. Spitznass, St. Chair Co., 111. 34       Einz Badeley       Belleville       Sc. 34       Press. 4       Sc. 34       Press. 34                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | er Stokes Co. N   | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | 34                | Died Deg       |                                       |                          |                              |         | Freeburg     |                        |
| oronbase Helems       "       8. Mother of Nanoy Helem-Hanover, Ger. 52       September Manoy Helem-Hanover, Ger. 52       September Manoy Helem-Hanover, Ger. 52       Bredge ParitieSet. Clair Co. 11       Ridge ParitieSet. Set. Augusta Ch. Germany       Ridge ParitieSet. Set. Augusta Ch. Germany       Ridge ParitieSet. Set. Augusta Ch. Germany       Ridge ParitieSet. Set. Set. Augusta Ch. Germany       Ridge ParitieSet. Set. Set. Set. Set. Set. Set. Set.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                   | Prog "                                                     | ), ' )     | Belleville     | L Eliza Badgley                       |                          |                              |         | "            |                        |
| <ul> <li>Hiderman, W. H.</li> <li>a b burg Propr. of Predrick Mill-Wite of V. H. Widerman,a b b b b b c c b b b c c b b b c c b b c c c b b c c c s c c b b c c c c c c c c c c</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | St Clair Co.      | Free & Pand Supergia Diet No. 11                           | Sec. 34           | Ridge Prairie  | (Deppe, William                       | Hanover, Ger. 52         | Mother of Nancy Helem-       | 8       | [            |                        |
| <ul> <li>vrrie C. Bauch</li> <li>vrrie C. Bauch</li> <li>wirfe of W. H. Wilderman</li> <li>propr. Freeburg Hotel</li> <li>Baden, Ger.</li> <li>Baden, Ger.</li> <li>Baden, Ger.</li> <li>Baden, Ger.</li> <li>Schiller M. Barner and Stock Raiser</li> <li>C. Laiz Co. III. 26</li> <li>Preburg Stock Raiser</li> <li>Wife of J. C. Wilderman</li> <li>Wife of G. C. Wilderman</li> <li>Sc. Clair Co. III. 26</li> <li>Wife of H. Wilderman</li> <li>Sc. Clair Co. III. 26</li> <li>Wife of Mr. Walderman</li> <li>Wife of Mr. Walderman</li> <li>Wife of J. C. Wilderman</li> <li>Sc. Clair Co. III. 26</li> <li>Wife of Mr. Walderman</li> <li>Wife of Mr. Walderman</li> <li>Wife of Mr. Walderman</li> <li>Sc. Clair Co. III. 26</li> <li>Wife of Mr. Walderman</li> <li>Wife of Mr. Bayteski, John</li> <li>Wife of Mr. Bayteski, John&lt;</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | pe Prussia        | Late wife of Wm. Denne                                     | 9. 27 9    | Died July      | ) Fredrika Kuhlmann                   | St. Clair Co. 111, 51    | Propr. of Fredrick Mills     | F burg  |              | ilderman, W. H.        |
| <ul> <li>101, Adam J.T.</li> <li>101, F.F. Preburg survey</li> <li>102, F.F. Preburg survey</li> <li>103, Adam Volf, J. Experiment and Stock Raiser</li> <li>104, Clair Co. 111, 5</li> <li>114 artha Fitts</li> <li>114 art</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | er St Clair Co    | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | Sec. 19           | Caseyville     | ) Eversmann, Louis                    |                          |                              | - fr    |              |                        |
| Indento Guento Berline View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf Adam Wolf, Jr. Serr Hessen View of Adam Wolf, Jr.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Madison Co        | Wife of L. Ever-mann                                       | 19                |                | Louisa Gausmann                       |                          |                              | 1       | 1            |                        |
| Indernan, F. A.fartha PitsSec. 5 (Sample and Stock Raise) 5. Chair Co. 11.(Sec. 1)(Sec. 1) <td>er Bavaria, Ger</td> <td>Farmer and Stock Raiser</td> <td>27</td> <td>O'Fallon</td> <td>· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·</td> <td></td> <td></td> <td>•</td> <td>1</td> <td></td>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | er Bavaria, Ger   | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | 27                | O'Fallon       | · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · |                          |                              | •       | 1            |                        |
| Iartha Pirís""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""" <th< td=""><td>• "</td><td>Wife of George Freder</td><td>27</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></th<>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | • "               | Wife of George Freder                                      | 27                |                |                                       |                          |                              |         |              |                        |
| <ul> <li>Jilderman, J. C.</li> <li>"" Sec. 1 [Farmer and Stock Raiser I" "" Jilderman "" "" "Jilderman "Jilderman "" "" "Jilderman "" "" "Jilderman "John H. H.</li> <li>Glen, Thomas "John H. H.</li> <li>Golinevili. Sec. 1 [Farmer and Stock Raiser "" "" "Jilderman "John H. H.</li> <li>Glen, Thomas "John H.</li> <li>Jiderman A. H.</li> <li>Golinevili. Sec. 1 "Gramer and Stock Raiser "" "" "Jilderman "John H.</li> <li>Jiderman John H.</li> <li>Jiderman "" "" "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "Jilderman "" "" "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John "John</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Miami Co. O       | Kettred Farmer                                             | 22                |                | Forman, Rebecca, (nee Beedle.)        |                          |                              |         | r reebing    |                        |
| AnalogAnder Ander JohnMarger and Stock RaiserAnder Historgaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa<                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | In Bourbon Co.    | Coal Mine & Pit Boss One-fi th prop.                       | 21, 118           | Collinsvill.   | (Fletcher William                     |                          |                              |         | "            |                        |
| AnalogAnder Ander JohnMarger and Stock RaiserAnder Historgaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa<                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Chisble Co. F     | Npring Well.Wife of Flatabor William                   | Sec. 4            | 4              | Julia Ridgway                         | " " 35                   | Wife of J. C. Wilderman      |         | 1            |                        |
| and afther Hindingtosella Moorewile of the Wilderman(""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | er Lincoln Co N   | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | 34                | Belleville     | Glenn, Inomas                         | Hesse Darmstadt, Ger- 48 | Farmer and Stock Raiser      | " 29    | 1            |                        |
| Alderman, H. H.""""""" 6 Agent for grt1 Imp.St. Clair Co. 11.57[Hogan, Harriet J.Collinsv'llt.2 [Retired FarmerVilderman, John H."""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""" <t< td=""><td>L St Clair Co</td><td>Wife of Thomas Glenn</td><td>34</td><td>"</td><td>  Hannah C. Phillips  </td><td>St. Louis, Mo.  00  </td><td>whe of Geo. winkler</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></t<>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | L St Clair Co     | Wife of Thomas Glenn                                       | 34                | "              | Hannah C. Phillips                    | St. Louis, Mo.  00       | whe of Geo. winkler          |         |              |                        |
| Vilderman. John H.FayettevilleDied Mar.29 Farmer and Stock Kaiser'St. Clair Co. 111 261" " 301" " " 301" " 301" " " 301" " " 301" " 301" " " " " 301" " " " " " " " " 301" " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " " "                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Londen Co. Y      | Ketired Farmer                                             | - 21              | Collinsy'lle   | (Hogan Harright I                     | St. Clair Co. 111. 5711  | Agent for gri'l Imp.         |         |              |                        |
| Anderman. John II.Payer and Stock RaiserColling vin Content and Stock RaiserColling vin Content and Stock Raiseroseph WildermanVaeltz, Williamarbara Dressel15, 76 Late wife of J.14, Wilderman""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | m St Clair Co.    | Late hus. Har. J. Hogan                                    | 7, '75            | Died Apr.      | Hogan, James                          | Madison Co. 111.75       | Wite of H. H. Wilderman      |         |              |                        |
| oseph WildermanYaeltz, Williamarbara DresselFayettevilleEsc. 15 S n of """"""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | er Alsace, Fran   | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | Sec. 91           | Collinsv IIC   | ) Hueckel, John                       |                          |                              |         |              |                        |
| Vaeltz, William"FburgRetired FarmerGermany33Hocker, HenryDied Feh.10, '71Late hus. of Car. HoeelArbara Dressel""""Germany33Hocker, HenryHoldmann, John T.Died Mar.19, '61Stwife J. T. HoelmanArbara Dressel""""Germany73Magdalena ErmannDied Mar.19, '61Stwife J. T. HoelmaArbara Dressel""""Hocker, HenryTo HoelmanDied Mar.19, '61Stwife J. T. HoelmaArbara Dressel""""Hacker, HenryTo HoelmanCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyville""MerchantTOWNSHIP 2SOUTH, RANGE 8, WEST.##########"##"############################################################################ <td></td> <td>Retired Farmer</td> <td>9</td> <td>"</td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                   | Retired Farmer                                             | 9                 | "              |                                       |                          |                              |         |              |                        |
| arbara Dressel"""Wife of Wm. WaeltzPator St. Joseph. St. John(the Bapt. & St. Angusta Ch.Saxony, Ger.40(Hoeltmann, John T.(Magdalena Ermann)Charlotte Peters(Charlotte Peters(Charlotte Peters)CaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Prussia           | Late hus of Car Hooshop                                    | 10 71             | Died Feb       |                                       |                          |                              |         | 14           |                        |
| Virtschoreck, Rev. A."""Rastor St. Augusta Ch. Germany73Magdalena ErmannCharlotte PetersHeckek, William II.Anne M. Maisef Kohlmann, WilliamAnna HastottaDied Mar. 19, '6.' Ist wife J. T. HoelfmanCaseyvilleWife of Wm. H. HneelWife of Wm. H. HneelSco. 31 Parmer M. Stock RaiserSmithtonMagdalena ErmannCharlotte Petersf MacketelKohlmann, WilliamAnna Hastottaf Kohlmann, Williamf Anna Hastottaf Kohlmann, Williamf Kohlmann, Williamf Anna Hastottaf Kohlmann, Williamf Anna Hastottaf Kanpmever, C. H.Died Mar. 19, '6.' Ist wife J. T. HoelfmanCaseyville(CaseyvilleWife of Wm. H. HneelSec. 32 Parmer and Stock Raisec. 7 Farmer & Stock RaiserSmithtonsec. 2 Farmer & Stock Raiserforn, Leonhardarg. Gruber (nez Leffler)"Magdalena Ermann(Charlotte Petersf Kenhann, Williamf Anna Hastottaf Mary Kramerf Mary Kra                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | t'r Prossie       | Gen Mer & Cual Operat'r                                    | Casony'le         | Casevville     |                                       |                          |                              | - 4     | 44           |                        |
| CaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleCaseyvilleMerchantTOWNSHIP 2 SOUTH, RANGE 8, WEST.Huckel, William II.Anne M. MaiseAnna HastoottaAnna HastoottaMerchantMerchantMerchantirkner, JohnHeckerSec. 31 FarmerDied Meb.4, 1865 1st Wife John BirknerBavaria, Ger.38Kampnever, C. H.Bavaria, Ger.38Kampnever, C. H."""Bavaria, Ger.38Wife Of Wm. KuhlmaIcksenstein, JosephSmithtonSec. 31 2d Wife"""""""38Kampnever, C. H.""""""Bavaria, Ger.38Kampnever, C. H."""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | nn "              | 1st wife J. T. Hoeltmann                                   | 19. '67           | Died Mar.      |                                       | Germany 73               | Pastor St. Joseph. St. John  |         | 66           | Virtanhorenk Rev A     |
| TOWNSHIP 2 SOUTH, RANGE S, WEST.Hueckel, William II." MerchantTOWNSHIP 2 SOUTH, RANGE S, WEST.irkner, Johnhristina B. Schorrnna M. Saubertleckenstein, Joseph(ary Ann Wachtel(ill, Josiab P.ane Smith onr, Leonhardarg, Gruber (ace Leffler)HeckerSec. 30Sec. 31 Farmerfarmer & Stock Raiser(Stock Raiser(Stock Raiser)Bavaria, Ger.(ary An Wachtel(Stock Raiser)Hueckel, William II.(Anna Hastcotta)(Kahlman, William(Anna Hastcotta)(Kahlman, William(Anna Hastcotta)(Kahlman, William(Anna Hastcotta)(Kahlman, William(Anna Hastcotta)(Kahlman, William(Anna Hastcotta)(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William)(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William)(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William)(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William)(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, William(Kahlman, Kahlman, Kahlm                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Hanover, Pr       | Pres. " "                                                  | Caseyv'le         | Caseyville     |                                       | Germany 75               | (the Bapt. & St. Augusta Ch. |         | •            | II ISOLOICON, INCV. IN |
| TOWNSHIP 2 SOUTH, RANGE'S, WEST.(Anne M. Markeirkner, JohnHeckerSec. 31FarmerBavaria, Ger.Sec. 38Kahlmann, WilliamRidge PrairieSec. 32Farmer and Stock Raiirkner, JohnHeckerSec. 31FarmerBavaria, Ger.38Kampmeyer, C. H.Kampmeyer, C. H.Sec. 31Wife of Wm. K. Malmahristina B. SchorrDied Mcb.4, 1865 1st Wife John Birkner""36Kampmeyer, C. H.Sec. 31Wife C. H. Kampmeyeleckenstein, JosephSmithtonSec. 7Farmer & Stock RaiserPrussia37Mary Kramer"18Farmer and Stock Raiizry Ann WachtelDied Dec.2, 1872Wife of Jos. FleckensteinSt. Clair Co., III28Late Wife of J. P. SmithSt. Clair Co., III28Latemen, Joseph"Sasand"""Bidge PrairieSt. Sasandirst, Ellen (nee Bam-"Sec. 33RetiredSt. Clair Co., III17Saxony, Ger.38Kalter, JohnSt. Cair Co., IIISt. Clair Co., III </td <td>St. Clair Co.</td> <td>Merchant</td> <td>66</td> <td>"</td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | St. Clair Co.     | Merchant                                                   | 66                | "              |                                       |                          |                              |         |              |                        |
| irkner, Johnhristina B. Schorrnna M. SaubertHeckerSec. 31 FarmerDied Mcb.Bavaria, Ger.4, 1865, 1st Wife John BirknerHeckerBavaria, Ger.4, 1865, 1st Wife John BirknerHeckerBavaria, Ger.4, 1865, 1st Wife John Birkner"""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | cel St. Lonis, Mo | Wife of Wm. H. Hueckel                                     |                   |                |                                       | ST.                      | H, RANGE 8, WE               | SOUT    | ISHIP 2      | TOWN                   |
| irkner, Johnhristina B. Schorrnna M. SaubertHeckerbied Mcb.Sec. 31 Farmer4, 1865 1st Wife John BirknerHeckerBavaria, Ger."38"Kampmeyer, C. H.Mary Keipschlager(%Wary Keipschlager(%Wife C. H. Kampmeyer(%Wife C. H. Kampmeyer(%Wife C. H. Kampmeyer(%Wife C. H. Kampmeyer(%Wife C. H. Kampmeyer(%(%)(%)19Wife C. H. Kampmeyer(%19Wife C. H. Kampmeyer(%)Wife C. H. Kampmeyer(%)(%)Index Metherleckenstein, Joseph(11] Josiab P.ane Smithton(°, Lechand(°, Lechand<                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | er Prussia        | Farmer and Stock Raiser                                    | Sec. 32           | Kidge Prairie  |                                       | ·                        | 1                            |         | 1            |                        |
| hristina B. Schorrnna M. Saubertleckenstein, JosephLeckerstein, JosephMay Y. ReipschlagerHeckerSec. 31 2d Wife John BirknerHeckerSec. 31 2d Wife John BirknerSec. 31 2d Wife John BirknerHeckerSec. 31 2d Wife John BirknerSec. 32 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 2 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 30 Farmer & Stock RaiserSt. Clair Co., III 27Hat Husband of E. HirstSec. 4 Farmer & Stock RaiserSec. 4 Farmer & Stoc                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                   |                                                            |                   | Casevville     |                                       | Bavaria Ger 30           | Farmer                       | Sec 2   | Hecker       | irkner, John           |
